FASHION FAVORS SILK FOR SUITS

Approaching Summer Events
Call for Stunning Taffeta
Tailleur.

THREE-PIECE MODELS

Exploit Very Latest Features in a Host of Fascinating Designs.

Pussy willow taffeta is favored for the midsummer suit, which is to be worn to a great many of the most fashionable outdoor functions. The adorable three-piece suits in which the waist section is abbreviated into a smart little giraffe jumper over an under bodice of chiffon, combined with lace, are now being developed of this lovely material with unlimited possibilities on the very newest lines.

The three or four yard skirt, corded almost to the waist, is extremely popular, but has several close rivals. Not least in demand is the gracefully flaring short skirt with front and back panels and series of full ruffles tiered at the sides. And one of the very most alluring, especially fascinating when worn by the youthful devotee, is the quaint Victorian skirt, which is a series of full, fluffy little frills applied in rounded scoops, straight or pointed line.

The Van Dyke skirt, too, has a host of admirers, with its handsome hem of contrasting points. Then there is the demure little empire model with its simple voluminous and extremely short skirt, which shares honors with the new "apron" skirt, the deeply scooped design, and the many novel treatments of the single, double and triple tulle.

Little Silk Coats.
For each of these many striking designs is created an irresistible little silk coat. It may be a bolero, a tight-fitting little Victorian jacket, a high-waisted empire with closely pleated skirt section and nifty belt, or it may be a creation of one of the modern geniuses—a brilliant little affair all ruffles and gathers with ridiculously unsubstantial sleeves of chiffon and a great pointed "Quaker" collar of the same material. With such a range of captivates styles and such a host of beautiful silks the devotee should find it a pleasure rather than a problem to choose her summer costume.

A Different Player-Plane.
The big feature of the Player-Plane made by De Ode Firme of Heintzman & Co., Ltd., Kingston Hall, 183-185-187 Yonge street, is its patented aluminum action. This action is absolutely impervious to climatic changes and weather conditions, insuring a permanency of tone not possible in a wooden action player-plane.

The Easiest Way

Every child has a mental and moral nature, the development of which positively refuses to be postponed. It begins to grow very early, whether we take a hand in it or not, and is firmly established long before a child is four years old. So it is well to begin with him early and make the habits that are formed good ones. Train him to do the right things from the start and you will have no undoing. The first time a child understands a spoken command he begins a habit either of obedience or disobedience according as the command is enforced or not. The first time he kicks and screams in a rage, at some denial or disappointment marks a dividing of the trail. If he is given in to him as well started on the road of disobedience and selfishness; if he finds that such methods only bring trouble on himself, he has learned his first big lesson and is already on the way to self-control. If he is allowed for two or three years to suppose that he is the only person who has decided wishes or any rights worth considering he will form a habit of selfishness and disobedience that can only be overcome by the most severe experience. You have heard mothers say they could not bear to be cross with the "poor little things." It is not necessary to be cross. Firmness is just as firm, when given expression in loving terms as in the crosser tone you can command. To give way to a baby is the easiest way of course—for a while.

LIEUT. A. E. MUIR REPORTED KILLED

Toronto Athlete Had Only Been on Firing Line Few Days.

Lieut. Arthur Edward Muir, a great Toronto athlete, has been killed in action, according to an announcement from Ottawa. Lieut. Muir was connected with the 4th Highlanders, and did not go to France until after the battle of Langemark, when several battalions, which had been held in reserve, were rushed over from England. The news of the death of Art Muir, who was a Varsity graduate and popularly known in many local circles, was indeed a shock. His friends did not know that he had left England. He had only been on the firing line a few days.

Brother in Winnipeg.
Lieut. Muir's parents are dead, but he leaves one brother, Robert, who lives in Winnipeg. He was a great sports player, and was connected with the Varsity team in the days when it was absolutely unbeatable. After leaving college he went to Winnipeg, where he played in many local circles, in his own right being worth a quarter of a million dollars.

While in the western city he captained the crack Winnipeg Rowing Club crew. He returned to Toronto two or three years ago, and played middle wing for the champion Argonauts' rugby team, and was rated as the best line man on the team. He received his commission in Valcarier and became a very efficient officer.

Died of Pneumonia.
Lionel A. Willis, a well-known Toronto oarsman, died in England 13 days after he had said good-by to his parents at the Exhibition camp. Death was due to pneumonia, contracted on the trip across the Atlantic. Willis, formerly of the 4th Highlanders, was a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Willis, 178 Victoria street.

One of his best known soldiers, among other sportsmen and athletes, who have helped many times to give Toronto the reputation of having the best oarsmen in America. Willis was a member of the Don Rowing Club. He figured on several Canadian champion and international crews. He was a member of the junior four crew that won the national championship for the Don's at the Royal Henley, St. Catharines, in 1911. In 1912 he was a member of the same crew that won the international rowing regatta.

Willis also rowed with Fred Carter in the doubles when they won the junior, intermediate, and senior titles in 1912. Willis was widely known in the States, where he went with the Don's, participating in regattas.

Thin Folks Get Fat On Three Meals A Day

Specialist Explains Why Food Does Not Always Produce Flesh and How Thin People Can Increase Weight.

Most people who are thin and under normal weight eat heartily but get no nourishment in flesh, while plump, chunky folk of normal weight eat less than they do and keep stout all the time. The secret of this is not in the quantity of food, but in the quality of the food. Nature intended them to be thin, that the amount or nature of their food has nothing to do with flesh-making and that nothing can make them fat. But this is not so.

A stout, strong, robust body can come alone from food nourishment. Food is the source of all fat and if you are thin and underweight it is merely a certain indication that only a small portion of the flesh-making nourishment in your meals is reaching your blood and tissues. The assimilative functions of your stomach and intestines are not working properly and the larger part of the food value is leaving your body as waste.

To correct such a condition, to gain flesh, increase weight and get 100 per cent value from your food, a single Sargol tablet taken at each meal will work. Sargol is a scientific combination of six splendid assimilative agents. It promptly stops the leakage of fats and while aiding digestion, also separates every last particle of the fats, oils, sugars and starches of your food from the waste matter and prepares the food for assimilation. The blood readily absorbs and distributes throughout the body. Weight increases usually begins within a very few days after Sargol is used with meals. In my opinion two ordinary hearty meals eaten with Sargol is equal in flesh-making value to six or seven hearty meals eaten without it. Try it, you people who are thin, run down and underweight, and see if I'm not right. You can buy Sargol from practically any druggist hereabouts and every package contains a positive guarantee of increase or money back. While also valuable as a treatment for nervous indigestion, it should not be used by those who do not wish to increase weight.

Pentstemon—Another Scarlet Blossom—Beard Tongue.

Now, while this week's articles were to be devoted especially to the scarlet blossom plants, of which one variety of Pentstemon is a specimen, yet it may be as well here to deal with the Pentstemon as a whole tribe.

These plants are really perennial herbs, and there are fully a hundred or more species, so that my gardeners will understand that it is only possible to speak about the most desirable of them, as far as blossom plants are concerned. The Pentstemons are not so well known among ordinary gardeners as I could wish, and yet they are easy to manage, and give as great a return in blossom and range of colorings as many of our more common perennials.

Pentstemon, I may as well say here, is a Greek word, meaning "five stamens," a peculiarity of this family. The blossoms are odd, long, tubular, and sometimes two-lipped, and are grouped together in leafy clusters of the most marvelous tints. The whole plant in bloom has a characteristic grace and beauty of its own, and no other perennial of July, August and September holds a place just like it.

The plants send up erect stems three to five feet high, branching from the base, leaves lanceolate, of a rich, glossy green, and singularly free from vermin of any kind. Long, arching spikes of blossoms, topped by leafy clumps, make masses of entrancing color, lasting from six to eight weeks. Like the perennial phloxes, the colors range thru whites, yellows, pinks, purples, and all the richest and royalist of blues that can be imagined.

Some of the dwarf specimens are splendid rock plants, while the taller varieties make grand backgrounds in the herbaceous borders ranking in importance with such aristocrats as Larkspur and Papaver Orientale. The especially important variety that this article wishes to emphasize is P. Burgate Torreyi, the scarlet beard tongue, a sturdy, gorgeous flower-giver.

The Pentstemons are tramps of the wild, wandering from the rocky canyons of the Colorado to the farthestmost ridges of the Rockies. Thru the eastern states they run rioting, wild, but can be transplanted to any home garden. Here in Canada our gardeners must guard not so much against the dangers of extreme frost as against the dangers of too much moisture, collecting beneath a too-thickly mulching leaf on late in spring.

Where possible, start your specimens about the end of seedlings, transplanting the plantlets early in the spring of the second year. Care should be given to prevent the forming of too many branches from the base of the plants. All cuttings should be propagated, and so increase stock.

After bloom cut down the flower stems and top-dress the exhausted root with manure to encourage fresh shoots for next year.

Of the different varieties, choose especially, as I have said, the scarlet sort, but do not plant this scarlet thing near any of the other flame flowers, for obvious reasons.

Of the blues, P. Paeonifolius is a lovely blue thing for the rockery, and P. Gentianoides is the most riotous little tramp in purple and lavender you can imagine. Arrowhead, King W. No. 1, am afraid we cannot use the small arrowhead as an exchange medium. There is too much to talk about, to teach and to learn.

PICKED UP FOR DEAD UNCONSCIOUS AN HOUR

Experience of Thomas Home Who Had Difficult Struggle When Lusitania Was Struck.

Mrs. Beebe of College street, Toronto, has received a letter from her brother, Thomas Home, traveler, by Goulding & Son of 55 Wellington street, who was a passenger on the Lusitania. The letter was dated Cork, May 18. "I am only up here for a few hours to get some clothes. My foot was injured by falling splinters from the boat when the torpedo exploded. I saw it coming and did not have enough strength to get out of the way. At any rate I got the crack before she went down.

"Mine was a marvelous escape. I went down without a belt, and after floating around on wreckage for about an hour, I took one off a floating corpse, and then struggled for a time longer, to be picked up for dead. I was unconscious for an hour and then found myself in a dry bed."

By the Seashore.

A holiday by the seashore is the form of vacation most appreciated by thousands of people from the inland centres. Portland and its environs abound with attractions to suit all tastes, from the quiet retirement of Cape Elizabeth and Cushing's Island to Old Orchard and Kennebunk, popular chiefly for their beaches and quiet bathing. "Mountains of New England and the Sea," just issued by the Grand Trunk Railway system, contains full information, complete list of hotels and boarding houses, etc., and may be had on application to C. E. Horning, district passenger agent, Union Station, Toronto, Ont.
