

the philanthropist; Crossley and Morley; Daniel Webster, Rufus Choate, and Geo. Bancroft,—of England and America. Isaac Watts and Phillip Doddridge, poets and preachers; Eliot, Missionary of the 17th century; John Williams, the martyr of Erromanga, Knill and Ellis of the London Missionary Society; Goodell, and Dwight, and Hamlin. Missionaries of the American Board; Jonathan Edwards and Edward Payson; Dr. Kirk and Dr. Hopkins; Leonard Bacon and Dr. Thompson; Dr. Todd and Horace Bushnell; Ray Palmer and Ward Beecher, of the United States. Dr. Wardlaw and Matthew Henry; John Angell James and Dr. Alexander; Raleigh and Raffles; Thos. Binney and Enoch Mellor; Dr. Vaughan and Newman Hall, of the Mother Country; Dr. Wilkes and Dr. Lillie, of Canada. Count Ajenor de Gasparin and Merle D'Aubigne, Monod and Pressensé, of the Evangelical Churches of the European Continent.

NUMBER OF CONGREGATIONAL CHURCHES:— In Eng- land, about 2200; Wales, 750; Scotland, 120; Ireland, 26; Channel Islands, 18; the Dominion of Canada, 120; other Colonies, 150. . . . .	3384
In the United States, about . . . . .	3100
In Heathen and other lands, . . . . .	500
Evangelical or Independent Churches on the Continent of Europe, . . . . .	200
Total, . . . . .	7184

There are also a large number of Union Churches essentially Congregational in their Church government. And in addition, not less than 15,000 Christian Churches bearing other names; the greater part of them having terms of Communion which Congregationalists do not consider essential, yet similar in their mode of government.