WONDERFUL DIVING HORSES

Novel Trained Animal Exhibition at Hanlan's Point This Week. Those who visit the big exposition and who wish to see all the points of interest should not overlook Hanlan's Point. This celebrated amusement resort is not only famous as Canada's Coney Island, but it is known all over the United States. Situated as it is just across the magnificent Toronto Bay it is an ideal pleasure place, where all the latest fun-making devices are to be found. The management have prepared a number of special attractions for visitors. One of the principal of these is "Queen's and King's." Of their marvelous performance at Dreamland, Coney Island, The New York Journal has said: "High diving horses are the latest novelty in the line of animal performers. From a platform raised nearly 50 feet from the ground, two horses of water, the animals, now the property of J. W. Gorman of Boston, belonged to George F. Holloway of Hencroft, Iowa, who raised and trained them to perform their wonderful feats. Both of the horses are remarkable beauties of their kind, of milky white color. Each are seven years old and measure seventeen hands high. A long wooden walk of a gradual slant enables the horses to reach the platform, which is erected at the edge of the tank. With apparent nonchalance, one of the horses saunters up to the platform. Standing almost erect above the heads of the audience, the animal calmly surveys the crowd below, and without the slightest hesitation makes the dive. The animal does not jump into the water, but actually dives, striking the water with his fore feet, and bounding on the pavement and caught a bit of fear and dive without any urging. They seem to do it as a matter of course."

PARISIAN CORSET MODELS

Great interest has been shown by women in the display of Woolnough Corsetiers, in the manufacturers' building, where the new fall creations in tailored-to-order corsets are on view. Particular comment has been made by many of this firm's regular patrons and visitors from the large American cities, that the Parisian style tendencies for the fall season have been faithfully produced in the designing of their models. The question of style is not the only outstanding feature for the Woolnough tailored-to-order corset, the very important consideration of comfort and correctness has been equally prominent in the designer's mind. Visitors to the Canadian National should call and view these models, also receive a corset booklet and souvenir, which are given to those interested.

RICHARDS PLANS CAMPAIGN

Toronto's only labor candidate intends to battle for the federal honor of East Toronto. W. J. Richards, friends met at the Labor Temple last night and mapped out their campaign. All the labor forces of the city, it is stated, will be concentrated upon the east riding. The leaders claim to have a host of workers ready to jump right into the fight. The first meeting will be held in Boland Hall, East Queen-st., and will be for the purpose of organization. The District Trades and Labor Council will give the candidate their endorsement at their meeting next week.

WAGSTAFF'S PURE FRUIT

The secret of the ever-increasing popularity of Wagstaff's line of pure fruit lies in the painstaking care and splendid quality of the products taken in the factory in Hamilton, where the fruits are made. The factory is a model in every way. Besides the precautions taken by using only the best and most improved machinery, it is fitted through in white enamel walls, separate sanitary conveniences are provided for the men and women, and bath rooms for the women. Only pure fruits can be made when such sanitary measures are taken.

BIRD'S DINING HALL

The large commodious building directly behind the grand stand is again occupied by Bird's popular twenty-day canteen. The uniform excellence of the food served, and the quick service has given to this restaurant a reputation for providing the best means for the ground or exhibition visitor. Fewer and fewer of the cumbersome lunch baskets are seen about the grounds. The patrons of the exhibition have begun to realize that at Bird's a full course palatable meal is served at a popular price, and the large crowds that every day eat there, give ample

9,000 AT FAIR DESPITE RAIN

On the first Saturday afternoon were discouraged by the weather and stayed at home. Million Mark Likely. It is the management have the most "ornery" kind of luck with weather conditions this week, they will nearly reach their objective of one million attendance. Every year they have succeeded in this object and virtually assured the success of their aim. It was on the same rule of the weather for the first week, and this in spite of the fact that rainy weather cut the Labor Day attendance down to 88,000. Reckoning on the same rule of the weather for this year as well, and given fine weather to-day, the Canadian National will pile up a record of attendance that will eclipse every other in its history and total well over one million.

Never before has the grand stand performance been so well patronized during the first week of the fair. It is doubtful if a bigger crowd than that of Saturday evening has ever passed the entrance turnstiles to the grand stand. With the entrance capacity taxed to the uttermost limit and thousands packed on the lawn in front, it is estimated that at least 25,000 more than the previous year were present at the point of vantage. The total grand stand attendance for the week is estimated at about 120,000.

After the Saturday afternoon concert and evening performance, the fame of the Coldstream Guards, Band and Pipe Band, spread throughout the city and province. Their program on the main band stand on the plaza in the afternoon attracted ten thousand people who forgot the rain in their delight at hearing the finest band of musicians in the empire do such a variety of classed and popular selections and to the striking fantasia composed and arranged by its conductor, Lieut. Mackenzie Rogan.

It was this foretaste of the abilities of the band, coupled with their widespread fame, that led to the desire in so many thousands to see them perform again in the evening. At any rate, every entrance to the grand stand was open and seating and standing room was all occupied even before the vaudeville performance began.

It was the wholehearted welcome the Coldstreams received from the immense throng in the grand stand inspired the band to a greater effort than ordinary. Doubtless, too, their coming enthused and inspired their local associates. A musical concert and festival of music was rendered by the massed bands on Saturday evening in a manner that was a revelation to the night to the thousands of auditors.

Under the conductors of Dr. Rogan the bandmen seemed to feel that much of their life and effort went into the music that it was as if a new program were being rendered. And this can be said with confidence, for the slightest note from the credit drum Bandmaster Waldron for his splendid work of the first four days of the performance.

It is evident, too, that the management made a wise and business-like move when they secured the services of the Coldstream Guards for their performances. Their music appeals alike to the ordinary lover of harmonious sounds and to the more discerning of the art and acting. To-day the Coldstreams give a one-hour concert, and the evening performance at eleven o'clock and a two-hour performance in the afternoon from four to six o'clock. They will give a performance in the evening.

If the weather be fair to-day there will be only one limit to the success of the bandmen, and that is the attendance, and that is the street car service. The attendance on Labor Day last year was $8,000, and it is estimated that this year should patronize the fair to-day and to-night.

Crowds Game to Open. As soon as the gates were opened on Saturday morning, the crowds kept on arriving and the numbers kept increasing all the morning. The gates closed that night, and the gates were closed that night, and the gates were closed that night.

Strong on Repairs. On Saturday afternoon a smart young lady passing the Salada Tea Company's exhibit stopped for a sample package. Informed that distribution had ceased for the time being, the fair applicant asked why she could not get one reposing on back of a small ebony elephant. To do that, she was informed, would deprive the elephant of his load. "I am sure," was the instant retort, "he has enough to do to carry his trunk." Persistence and humor carried the day.

RAILWAY ENQUIRY IS LIKELY TO BE BIG ONE. Only Four Witnesses Examined, and Commission Has Been Sitting a Week.

LONDON, Sept. 3.—The commission appointed by the government, Aug. 22, to enquire into the trouble between the railroads of Great Britain and the employees, which led to the recent strike, has already been in session for one week, and gives promise of being as long-lived as some of its predecessors.

The railroads are represented on the commission by Sir Thomas E. Ellis, secretary of the Mine Owners' Association, and Sir Charles Beale, vice-chancellor of the University of Durham, while the representatives of the men are Arthur Henderson, Labor member of parliament for the Barnard Castle division of Durham, and John Burnett, labor correspondent of the Times.

The commission is taking the evidence of the men's representatives first, and the whole week did not suffice to exhaust the flow of information sought to be imparted by only four out of a host of officials from the different railroads.

There was not a good word to be said of the commission's work by anyone established by the chancellor of the exchequer, Mr. Lloyd-George, in 1907. The general trend of suggestion favored a board for each railroad made up of an equal number of representatives of the men and the company, with a national board, on which the company's and men's unions are equally represented, for service as a kind of a court of appeal.

The witnesses objected to the appointment of an impartial arbitrator as chairman of these boards, holding that if the men could not settle a dispute themselves they could not be bound by the casting of a vote of such an arbitrator if the terms were unacceptable.

The only point upon which there was complete agreement among the four witnesses was the demand for recognition of the trades unions, as the best and only method of bringing about peace on the railroads. The natural claim of the executives was that the unions would be in a better position to enforce an award if they were concerned in it, and they agreed that strike pay should not be granted to men coming out against the terms which had been accepted by the union.
