

Roster of 104th Near 1,000 Recruiting Goes on Well—Draft For Construction Corps Being Signed on Here

Recruiting still goes on in encouraging manner for the 104th, and there are many so highly pleased with the returns of the last few days that they look to see the battalion complete its strength on its roll, and reports today indicate that the list must be by now at least 1,000. Nine more were signed here this morning, mostly from this city—George Clarke, Harry McGourty, John Darrah, Francis McCullough, Ernest Henwood, Arthur Sheehan, and St. John; T. Beasley, Holderville; Reginald Belyea, Glenwood, and Frank P. Faulkner, Wolford. Quite a large number of recent recruits are to go forward tonight to Sussex.

Construction Corps. A reinforcement draft for the Canadian Overseas Construction Corps is being formed here, and about forty men are required. They are equipped with uniforms. Sergt. Major Woods, of West St. John, is now here having been sent back from England to assist in the formation of the draft. Applications for enlistment will be received here by Mr. W. A. Lockhart, agent in the general office, King street, who aided greatly in the formation of the original corps. He has recently sent forward the following recruits who signed here: Alex. Blair, D. D. MacAlister, Frederick Allan and Chester B. Tracey, all of Fredericton Junction; Malcolm A. McLeod, Magalloway; S. H. Pickard, Kenwick; J. H. Kelly, Upper Woodstock; W. J. Porter, Westfield Beach; and Charles C. Binney, Ottawa.

Five Types. The last named recruit, Sapper Binney, is a civil engineer, who has been very active in athletics in Ottawa. He was one of the champion football players from that city, and also had a seat in the Ottawa four in rowing races at Henley. The recruits being accepted are of the same high standard as characterized the main body mobilized here. There are openings still for eighteen gardeners, two shoemakers, two boiler-makers, two blacksmiths, three motor truck drivers, six cooks, two tailors, two shoemakers, and two buglers. Private Draper and Private Baston, of this city, who enrolled with the 64th and were transferred to the 104th, have been sent to the city to aid in the local recruiting offices in Mill street. They are now on duty there, having relieved Privates Martin and Ward, who have gone to join the 64th.

Non-day Meeting. The first of a series of noon-day meetings to be held in Market Square was conducted today by Sergt. Norman Knight. He delivered one of his characteristic addresses in appealing to young men to volunteer. The Canadian Concert Band furnished music. These meetings will be continued each day at 12.45 o'clock.

FINE MEETING SATURDAY NIGHT. The reception to recruits for the 104th at the Queen's Rink on Saturday evening was one of the most interesting of the many recruiting meetings held. A committee of which W. A. Lockhart was chairman, provided smokes, crackers and cheese, cake and coffee, and there was an abundance for everybody.

More Letters From St. John Soldiers On Battlefield. Thomas L. Wilson received a letter this morning from his brother, Corporal Walter Wilson in Belgium. As it was written on October 12 there were no particulars given about his brother, Sergeant Frank Wilson, who was injured on October 11. He told of visiting his brother that day and of an anticipated visit the following day.
