

EVERY SAFEGUARD THROWN AROUND THE CHILDREN

Those in New Brunswick
Protestant Orphans' Home
Are to be Gradually Placed in Christian Families — Interesting Facts and Figures

The monthly meeting of the New Brunswick Protestant Orphans' Home directorate was held yesterday afternoon in the Wright street branch of the amalgamated institution, the chair being occupied by Dr. James Manning, vice-president, in the absence of D. C. Clark, the president, who is en route to Alaska. Those present were—Dr. James Manning, Judge J. G. Forbes, F. A. Kinnear, H. Usher Miller, H. C. Rankine, Richard Magee, H. C. Lawton, James Brittain, J. King Kelley, Jas. E. Ardure, William M. Campbell, E. D. Tilley, Walter H. Golding, Richard Magee, Mrs. F. W. Murray, Mrs. Graham, Mrs. E. C. Cowan, Mrs. Stinson, Mrs. George Taylor, Mrs. F. C. Harding, Mrs. W. C. Allan, Miss Mabel Sidney-Smith, Mrs. Robert Wills. Reports were submitted by Secretary H. Usher Miller and from the visiting officials for the different sections of the institution covering the activities of June. The ladies who reported were: Mrs. F. J. Harding for the Britain street and West St. John departments, and Mrs. Graham for the Wright street institution. H. C. Rankine reported as to finance. The building committee told of work done to the three buildings in the past four weeks and of prospective plans. J. King Kelley and Judge Forbes explained the transaction by which the land was recently acquired from W. A. Quinton on the Manawagonish road as a site for the new modern orphanage. There was considerable other routine business.

Secretary Miller in his report rendered a statement of the occupancy of the three buildings in the N. B. P. O. H. group which showed that the Britain street institution was capable of housing forty-five children and had thirty-seven in residence, leaving room for eight more. The Wright street building could care for forty-five children and had forty in residence, leaving accommodation for five more. The West St. John structure had room for sixty-six children and there were sixty-one there at present, leaving space for five additional. These figures total a capacity of 156 children, in residence 138, available quarters for eighteen. This statement indicated to the directorate the capabilities of the three-fold institution at the present time so that no needy cases be turned aside under the assumption that the buildings were completely filled. A committee has investigated the situation thoroughly and arrived at the above estimate. The margin of accommodation is available in not wide and indicates the great need for a much larger plant.

Children Doing Well.
In the reports of the matrons of the three houses it was disclosed that the children have been enjoying remarkably good health, the percentage of petty illnesses being small and the hospital cases especially so. All the public school pupils were reported as progressing rapidly in their internal school, which is part of the general public school system. Some donations were reported and ordered acknowledged, and there was a discussion as to dental work for the West St. John orphans. It was hoped Dr. F. L. Kennedy would find himself able to resume his kind services on the west side upon his complete recovery.

The standing committee, which body has the disposition of the children entering and leaving the orphanage, reported that at the present time there are twenty-two little ones of various ages in the home given in for adoption. That is, these children being without parents or guardians and of sound health and good parentage may be legally handed over to reliable Christian homes for adoption as members of the household. The New Brunswick Protestant Orphans' Home directors in surrendering these children to carefully investigated homes retain an interest in their welfare year in and year out and have the power to reclaim them if circumstances warrant. However, it has been the happy experience of the past that few such cases have arisen.

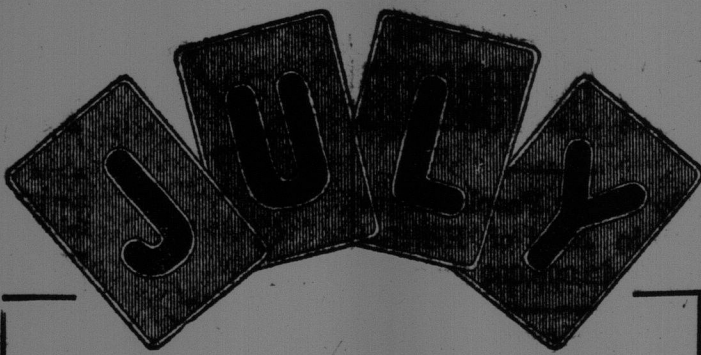

Vice-president Dr. Manning and the Hon. J. G. Forbes, in speaking of this matter of adopting the institutional children, said it was the aim and sincere desire of the officials of the orphanage to find real homes for their little ones, where they can be fathered and mothered in a home-like way as individual children. The orphanage was a blessing in the community, to be sure, and a necessity in times of dire need, but its true object was to keep the children well housed, well fed and educated until Christian folks seeking the comfort of a little boy or girl asked one for adoption.

The children who are taken into the orphanage are first found free of infectious or contagious disease, their antecedents are carefully investigated for informative purposes and thought given to the serious points attendant upon the taking over of a human being about to be shaped into self-supporting manhood and womanhood. Therefore, in giving out these boys and girls who grow up in the home, Protestant families are assured that every safeguard has been thrown around them during their residence in the institution. Many graduates of the home are today splendid men and women in various parts of the continent, some of whom keep in touch with their orphanage "mothers" through grateful correspondence.

In the past adoptions from the home have not been keeping pace with the intake of new children, but now with What's the Price of Good Clothes ?

Good Clothing is made up of three things—good fabric, good design, and good tailoring. Skimping in any one of them will cheapen clothing in price, but it will cheapen it far more in quality.

You can buy cheap clothes that will look well when you first put them on; they may have one or more of the essential points of good clothing—but, the real test comes after you wear it. That's when quality will begin to show up.

The difference between the cost of good clothing and poor clothing is small. But the difference in value—in satisfaction to the wearer, is great.

The price you pay for "Society Brand" suits represents the quality that's in them. It's the kind of clothing that makes satisfied customers—and that's the kind we want.

trabled numbers and the prospects of still greater enrollment of orphans from all sections of the province the directorate, especially the standing committee, of which J. King Kelley is chairman, will concentrate upon this important phase of their guardianship, that of locating the children where they will be privately homed and trained, and where their bright little personalities will doubtless enhance the happiness of the household.

RECENT DEATHS

James E. Dever.

One of the most respected citizens of the North End passed to rest yesterday in the person of James E. Dever, who died yesterday at the Infirmary, leaving four brothers—Cornelius, Henry, Hugh, all of this city, and Charles P., of Boston. One sister, Mrs. E. McKenna, of Boston, and one adopted daughter, Miss Maud Donohoe, also survive. He was born in the North End and had lived there all his life. He was for many years engineer on No. 5 engine of the local fire department.

The Late Robert P. Wetmore.

Robert Parker Wetmore, who died in New York on Saturday, was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wetmore of this city. He leaves a sister, Miss Josephine of New York, formerly of St. John. W. J. Wetmore, D. C. Clinch and Peter Clinch of this city are nephews.

SHOOT THREE CHILDREN AS THEY PASS IN CAR

Gunmen Pour Two Volleys Into Family Party Going to Coney in Covered Truck.

New York, July 7.—Six gunmen in an automobile on Tuesday fired several volleys of shots into another automobile as they passed it in the Wallabout Market section of Brooklyn, and wounded three children, one of them seriously, who were among twelve persons on their way to Coney Island. Witnesses of the shooting later told the police that three of the numerals on the license plate of the gunmen's car were "084."

tercepted by policemen. One of these cars was halted in Coney Island, and a policeman brought its six occupants to the Coney Island Station, where they were questioned for many hours. From the start of their investigation of the shooting, the police were convinced that the shooting was not intentional and that when the gunmen shot into the tarpuin sides of the commercial car in which seven children and five adults were seated, they did not know there was anybody inside except the chauffeur.

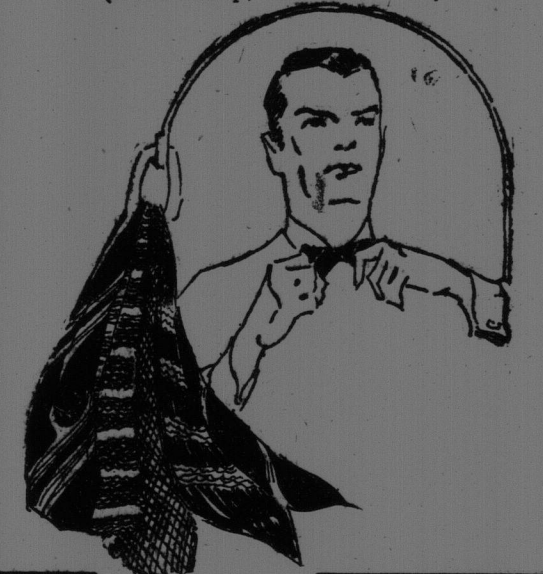

Toronto Barrister Dead.

Toronto, July 7.—Stricken with acute indigestion, death came suddenly yesterday at his home at Restolue to H. W. Maw, a Toronto barrister. He left here on a vacation a week ago, apparently in excellent health. His wife was with him when he died. Mr. Maw, who was in his sixty-second year, was born at Flora, Ont., and was a son of the late Robert Maw.
