

PRIVATE SECRETARY TO THE KING

Lord Stamfordham, (once Sir Arthur Bigge). He entered the Royal Artillery in 1863, fought in Zululand in 1879-80 and retired in 1883. He became private secretary to the King in 1890, and was made Baron Stamfordham of Stamfordham in Northumberland in 1910. (London Graphic.)

NEW ZEALAND TO BUILD AND MAINTAIN HER OWN NAVY

Wellington, N. Z., Oct. 28.—The government of the Dominion of New Zealand decided today to adopt the policy of building a navy of its own on the same lines as that of the Commonwealth of Australia, and to discontinue its subsidy to the Imperial British navy.

Premier Massey, in announcing the reversal of the present system, explained that the decision of the government to assume the greater responsibility was due to the inability of the British Admiralty to carry out its agreement of 1909 and station two cruisers of the Bristol type of 4,800 tons displacement, in New Zealand waters, the dominion bearing the cost of their upkeep.

The British Admiralty had substituted for these two cruisers the Psyche and the Pyramus of 2,135 tons displacement, which were unsatisfactory to the dominion, and the premier proposed to recommend to the New Zealand parliament an order for the construction in England in 1914 of a cruiser of the Bristol type at a cost of $2,000,000.

“... and other was adopted by New Zealand, the premier said, would be under the administration of the dominion in peace time, but would pass automatically into the control of the admiralty during war time, or when they might be urgently needed.

Premier Massey concluded that the British dominions in the Pacific aimed at nothing less than the same naval supremacy in those seas, as was held by their kinsmen on the other side of the world.

TRADE OPENINGS IN SOUTH AFRICA

Ottawa, Oct. 29.—Canadian manufacturers and shippers have a fine opportunity for developing a much larger trade with South Africa if they only go after it, according to the latest report of the Canadian Trade Commissioner. He says:

“If Canada is to go ahead in a large way, direct representation is an absolute necessity. This may seem a sacrifice on the part of some firms who are now doing a fair trade on indirects through New York channels. However, now is the time by co-operation to build up direct trade by establishing a reputation for good values and prompt shipments with ability to supply.

“If Canadian producers would co-operate in such lines as brushware, woodware, household hardware, handles of all kinds and carriage parts of all kinds many orders would be secured that now go to other markets. Another combination for other houses would be organs, furniture of all kinds and lumber of all kinds.

“Another combination which would pay would be in the lines of what are termed rough goods in this country, i. e., all grocery commodities, such as bacon and hams, canned goods of all kinds, cheese (if Cheddar were put up in 15 to 20 pound parcels), grain, flour, condensed milk, wrapping paper, paper bags and twines and butchers’ supplies, tools, wire of all kinds, shovels, axes and handles.”

The commissioner also emphasizes the necessity of Canadians replying to business communications from South Africa by return mail. English and continental houses are careful to do this, and they are nearer than Canada.

THE LAURIER POLICY BEST

(London Times.)

Thus it is difficult to predict at present on what system the preservation of British maritime supremacy will be carried out. The idea of a centralized navy appeals to the armchair strategist, but it is probable that the development of the so-called local navies will do far more to develop the maritime instincts in the dominions, and so stimulate the desire of each to play a worthy part in providing for the defence of the common heritage. And there is no reason why fleets standardized as regards type of vessel and armament, organized on a uniform system, manned by crews trained in similar tactics and practiced in common manoeuvres, should not, when placed under one control in war time, prove a formidable fighting force.

HEARST'S ACTIVITIES

William Randolph Hearst, multi-millionaire newspaper proprietor is one of the hardest working men in New York. With his immense energy and intense interests in Mexico and California, capitalistic cares provide plenty of worry for him. But his main attention is still given to publishing Hearst aims to lead not merely direct, the policies and activities of his big chain of papers and magazines that stretch from Atlanta in the South to San Francisco on the Pacific, back again to the Atlantic seaboard and over to London. Hearst maintains personal oversight of all his papers and ventures and at present is actually supervising the work of twenty-eight different publications. It takes money to drive these enterprises, too. Some idea of his financial scope may be gathered from the fact that the Hearst organization pays out every year $6,000,000 for newspaper alone.

In the Italian Elections on Sunday Garibaldi's son Ricotti secured only twenty-four votes out of 6,000.

THE GANG INFLUENCE ON YOUTH

Bad Boys in Montreal Court Led Astray By Their Companions

(Montreal Telegraph.)

“The boy would undoubtedly appear to have criminal tendencies,” said Judge Choquet this morning of one of five lads who appeared before him on various charges of a serious nature this morning. “He has the chief characteristic of the burglar, a narrow pointed brow. I think that he will have to go to a reformatory. Perhaps they can direct his mind to other things.”

This boy, with another, endeavored to break into a house at the corner of St. Viateur and Bloomfield streets. They were surprised and frightened by a woman who appeared just as they were smashing the window through which they meant to gain an entrance.

The other boy was sixteen, but the fat haired youngster with the weak mouth and the pointed brow was but twelve. He, it would seem, was the leader. The boys had nothing to say. They admitted the offence and were remanded for several days.

Too Many to Look After

The father of the older boy stated that he had twelve children and had married twice. With such a large family he perhaps could not give them all the attention they needed. There were a lot of bad boys in the neighborhood, and his son had evidently been led astray.

Two other boys, who on the 9th of October broke into a house at 831a Seigneurs street and stole jewelry valued at $150, also appeared. The district in which they live is one which sends more boys to the court than any other. There are various gangs in the neighborhood, and lacking restraint, they consider it legitimate sport to annoy the police by little acts of law-breaking. From this step they to be taken, it is not long before they are before Judge Choquet.

TORY LEADER

IS TARGET FOR SIR WILFRID

(Montreal Telegraph.)

Shows Him as Leader of Reactionary Government That Has Accomplished Nothing—A Mythical Emergency

Teeswater, Ont., Oct. 28.—At a meeting in support of R. E. Traux, Liberal candidate in South Bruce, held in this town last night, Sir Wilfrid Laurier was given a hearty reception in an able speech in which he fired many hot charges at the Borden administration, calling the government the most reactionary ever held in Canada. He condemned the highway measure and applauded the action of the senate in killing it because the government had proposed to spend the money by order-in-council.

Turning to the naval question, Sir Wilfrid described the Borden policy as having “been conceived in iniquity, and mendacity and ended in disaster.”

“The bill provided for an appropriation by parliament at once, the money to be expended at once. To be controlled by parliament? No. But under order-in-council once more. If that bill had been passed and the signature of his royal highness edited, the minister of finance would have been bound to pay over the $85,000,000 to be expended by order-in-council. Another direct violation of constitutional usage was that the money was to be paid over in one lump sum, although it could not be entirely used for four or five years.”

Sir Wilfrid declared that the government was adopting a policy with the Canadian people that the First Lord of the Admiralty would never have before the British parliament, a policy that had not been used in England for 200 years.

Another amendment rejected by the government was that brought forward by W. M. German that the ships should be built under contract awarded by public tender. For these great principles the opposition in the house of commons fought day and night.

When the government found they could not break down the solid front of the Liberals they put on the gag.

The “Emergency” a Myth.

“Where was the emergency?” pressed Sir Wilfrid, amid cheers.

“They said this measure was for the relief of the British navy on account of an emergency. The emergency was heard of only in the speeches of Mr. Borden and Mr. Foster, and some of the orators who have been here.”

The claim of an emergency was against the statement of Mr. Churchill in 1909 that the British navy was not in need of help, but whatever Canada was prepared to offer the motherland would be glad to accept.

Sir Wilfrid scorned the idea of secret correspondence with the Canadian government. “The emergency was simply the difficulty of the Borden government with its impudently supporters on the one hand and the reactionary tendency of the Nationalist supporters on the other.”

No German Peril.

So it was in 1909 that Canada decided to have a navy defend her commerce and then relieve the British navy.

“We are growing more and more people,” declared Sir Wilfrid, “and as a national people we are prepared to undertake all the duties and responsibilities which appertain to a people. Speaking for myself and the others who are about me, we are prepared to take our share to relieve England of the necessity of defending us.”

“They said there was a German peril. He would deny any suggestion that Germany was building a large navy for the purpose of attacking England. Between Germany and England there never was a day of quarrel. Their armies never fought one against the other. The German army fought against France, not against England. The German navy has been brought about because that country has built up a great sea commerce, and is bound to have a navy to defend it, and Canada having a commerce of her own, must build a navy to defend it.

So it was in 1909 that Canada decided to have a navy defend her commerce and then relieve the British navy.

“We are growing more and more people,” declared Sir Wilfrid, “and as a national people we are prepared to undertake all the duties and responsibilities which appertain to a people. Speaking for myself and the others who are about me, we are prepared to take our share to relieve England of the necessity of defending us.”

THE DUKES AND THE LAND SCHEME

(Montreal Star Cable)

London, October 27.—The dukes are taking up Lloyd George's challenge in the line style. The Duke of Marlborough's favorite pose in the picture papers just now is as a superior ploughing opinions at Benham Park, where he is putting under crops one thousand acres granted by a grateful nation to his famous fighting ancestor, two hundred years ago.

The young Duke of Sutherland, writing to the Daily Mail, offers Lloyd George his 200,000 acres of highland deer forest at 22 an acre, to enable the government to do what Lloyd George condemns the duke for neglecting to do, namely, to grow corn and repopulate the glens.

“This,” says the duke, “is cheaper than land can be bought in any country named by Lloyd George, and hardly above the price of prairie land in Canada.”

Of course, should Lloyd George accept as he will not, the duke will put the resulting 1,000,000 into six or seven per cent Canadian investments.
