MORNING NEWS

OVER THE WIRES

A run off occurred on the Central Railway on Wednesday, about ten miles outside of Norton. Several cars were badly damaged and the rolling stock also suffered considerably.

The man killed in the collision at Derby Junction yesterday between the Maritime Express and the Indian train, was Harvey McDougall, aged 34 years, of Indian River. Those most severely injured were: Andrew Foy, Indian River; Charles O'Brien, Derby Junction; Alfred Sturgeon, Main River; R. Atkinson, Derby Junction; Mrs. Tobin, Upper Nelson.

The naval estimates for Great Britain for the present year provide for an expenditure of $221,000,000, an increase of $10,000,000 over last year. The programme includes five Dreadnoughts, three protected cruisers, one unarmored cruiser, twenty destroyers, six submarines and an increase of 5,000 men.

D. Arnold Fox of St. John, gave an excellent organ recital in Christ Church Cathedral last night.

Archibald Bell, census commissioner for the dominion, announced yesterday that all the commissioners had been appointed for taking the census and that the enumerators would begin work soon. He expects that the figures will show that Canada has a population of 8,000,000 or nearly 80 per cent more than the census in 1901. The maritime provinces are expected to show a slight increase.

A carnival was held in the Arctic Rink in Fredericton last night. The St. John Valley Railway and Recreotrocity were both represented.

The Liberal members who will represent the Canadian house of commons at the coronation include P. B. Carvell, for New Brunswick. The members selected to represent the opposition side of the house are Hon. John Haggart, Hon. George E. Foster, H. B. Ames, Dr. Daniel and C. A. Magrath.

SUN LIFE OF CANADA

The figures which the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada place before our readers on another page tell of something more than mere size.

The increases shown in every line are large, very large, and make the company's records of ten or twenty years ago, when it was considered to be as it is even now, one of Canada's leading financial institutions, seem very small indeed; but more size is not all.

From an insurer's point of view the very large amount distributed as profits, together with the prudence of management as shown by the reserves accumulated and the reduction in ratio of expenses, are features which will be appreciated.

The Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada is enjoying the full share of Canada's growth and prosperity, and its management is to be congratulated on the results of last year's business. The local office is situated at No. 8 Market square and under the management of G. C. Jordan.

THEY GET SOME COAL

The arrival of the schooner Rebecca C. Windmill, at Calais, on Monday, with coal for H. B. Ede & Co., has made a welcome break in a coal famine that has lasted for several weeks. The coal is selling at $7.75 at the wharf.

Probably there is nothing more industrious than the idle rumor.

CANADA'S FIRST HAREM SKIRT

The first harem skirt seen in Toronto, and perhaps in Canada for that matter, worn by an actress from one of the local burlesque houses in the principal streets of that city. The event may be said to have been "staged" but just the same it caused a lot of excitement, crowds following her wherever she went.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

THE State of New Hampshire has recently passed a law aimed to prevent the horrors of baby farms—that is, those terrible establishments where the little unwelcome babies are boarded out, and given full opportunity by their hostesses to depart, if they will be so kind—from a world that has little use for them.

In connection with the passing of this law there was a little incident about which I want to tell you, because for splendid selfless courage it seems to me worthy to rank with any heroic deed I have ever heard of.

A few days before the bill was to come up, a nice looking, dignified appearing young woman came to the committee who were working for the bill, and said:

"I have heard that you need all the evidence you can possibly get. I have come to tell you that if you think it necessary I make my story public. My baby died in one of those places. I had no idea what sort of a place it was when I took him here. I have letters and evidence to prove what I say. No one around here knows anything about this, and, of course, I do not wish to say anything unless it is absolutely necessary, but I have it with you. If you think it is necessary for the passing of the bill, call upon me and I will tell all I know."

Now, please try to think what that promise meant.

The girl was looked up by the committee and found to be a bookkeeper, a woman of excellent standing in the community.

And now she was willing to lay it open, to bring down upon herself the disgrace she had managed to escape, in order that wise legislation might be furthered.

I love to think of that incident, because it shows the presence, to an unexpected degree, of a quality all too rare among ordinary human beings—that is, altruism.

Altruism, you know, is a sort of splendid big brother to selfishness.

The altruist is the man who wishes to see the greatest good for the greatest number, even if he be one of that number.

He can look beyond personal discomfort and inconvenience, see the good of the race and be content.

I heard a man the other day saying that he had no use for Colonel Roosevelt.

Being an admirer myself, I ventured to ask why.

"Because he got that interstate commerce law passed."

"What's the matter with that?" I always heard it was a good law.

"Oh, I suppose it is a good law," he admitted indifferently. "But it took my railroad pass away from me, so I haven't any use for the Colonel."

That man, as I happily said, is unusually small in his family life; but he hasn't that large minded, far-seeing kind of selfishness called altruism.

He can't be glad of a law that he admits to be beneficial because it pinches him a bit.

Yes, I know that isn't strange at all. I know most of us would feel the same way.

Only I want all to admit that we ought not to feel that way, and to realize fully what a beautiful world it would be if there were more people in it with the splendid spirit of that little bookkeeper.

Whatever her sin, I cannot but feel it has been more than atoned for by that offer.

Daily Hints for the Cook

LUNCHEON POTATOES.

One quart of diced potatoes, butter size of large walnut, one small onion; put together in stew pan, add enough boiling water to nearly cover, season with pepper and salt; simmer gently until tender and water has boiled away, then add one-half cup of sweet cream and simmer on back of stove two to three minutes.

CORN BREAD.

Two eggs well beaten, two tablespoonfuls of white or light brown sugar, two cupfuls of buttermilk, one-half cupful of cream or small piece of butter for shortening, and a small teaspoonful of baking soda. Use one-half of flour with the cornmeal. Sift sour and meal together and make a batter a little thicker than for pancakes. Steam three hours, then put in oven for short time to brown.

SOUP CREAM PUT CAKE.

Break two eggs in a large cup and fill the cup with soup cream. Put in a mixing bowl and add a level teaspoonful of soda and a cupful of sugar. Beat all well, then add flour enough to mix a little stiff. Flavor with vanilla. Take one large cup of Rich Walnut milk, chop fine, mix into the batter. Bake in a moderate oven and cover top of cake with half walnut meats.

NEW TURNIP DISH.

Attractive and appetizing vegetable dish. Boil as many turnips as you wish until tender, scoop out the inside and fill in with cooked peas. Have several carrots cooked. Cut into dice and place around the turnip. Pour over all a moderate oven and cover top of cake with half walnut meats.

JOHN SANSFIELD'S CHAT

WITH HON. DR. LANDRY

(Rehoboth Review)
Fredericton, Mar. 1st, 1911

Dear Editor:—

I arrived here from Buctouche yesterday, and had a pleasant trip on account of meeting Dr. Landry, who boarded the train at Moncton. He was on his way from Sheldrake where he had delivered his great lecture on "Economy in Neckties."

Both of us being interested in agriculture I tried to sell him a plow. He would not consider it a minute. He said if I was selling Kentucky horses I could do business with him, and he could steer me on to some good trades with other members of his department, but he said, so far as his department was concerned, plows were obsolete. "What for instance," he would be asking, "would a farmer like myself do with a plow?" "I imagine," says he, "my holding the handles of a plow, one in each hand, or even both in one hand, and following a yoke of patient oxen around a field; while Hatheway is telephoning all over the country the attitude of the Farmers' and Dairyman's Association on reciprocity."

"Like a true medical farmer," I have discarded the plow for a pullman car, and if the smallplow will do its duty, an automobile will be next."

"Are any members of your department farmers?" I asked.

"There was one," says he, "but we expelled him. We were originally devoted to agriculture, but we have outgrown that stage and we are now giving our attention strictly to politics and the dismissal of Liberal office-holders, in Kent county and other parts of New Brunswick."

"Why don't you appoint yourself chairman of the board of health?" I asked.

"Every man to his own graft," says he, and I realized the force of the remark and relapsed into deep silence.

"Is Grimmer a farmer?" I asked, and a deep frown settled on the Doctor's face.

"Not in good standing," says he. "He didn't keep up his fences last year and his deer got into our orchards and his partridges also flew in there and—"

"But," says I, "what's your department got to do with orchards?"

"Nothing," says he, "but can't you let a man alone when he is playing two deuces?"

"Grimmer may call you," I suggested.

"No," he says, "it takes all Grimmer's time to figure up his expense account and the contents of a suture log that will make a fishing pole."

"Has Grimmer as much influence in the legislature as he tries to make the people believe?" says I.

"If he had," says he, "he'd have John Morrissey for his private secretary. But I will tell you Mr. Casey, a small hand that never is called is better than a full house when the other fellow has four."

I didn't exactly understand the metaphor, but his tone was so impressive that I agreed with him, and I should have had more of his wisdom but just then we reached Fredericton.

Yours very truly,
JOHN SANSFIELD CASEY.

THE RETORT COURTEOUS.

(The Chicago News.)

Congressman John T. Heard, of Missouri, was one of the most polite and Chesterfieldian gentlemen ever known in the national house of representatives. On the day that the house passed a bill opening to settlement the Cherokee strip, Mr. Heard voted for the bill and then was leaving the Capitol when he met with Mrs. Hechmann, who had been diligently lobbying against the bill. She asked:

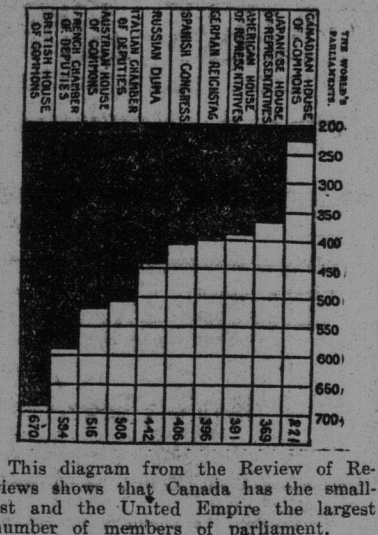

"What was done with the Cherokee strip bill?"

"It has just passed the house, madam," said Mr. Heard, holding aloft his hat and bowing low. "It passed by a vote of 142 to 108."

"So there were 142 railroad thieves, were there?" Mrs. Hechmann hissed spitefully.

"And only 108 cattle thieves, by the official count," replied polite Mr. Heard as he passed on.

It took four horses to haul the tree to the landing. The tree was perfectly sound, except for a few scars where it was spotted about forty years ago.

ST. ANDREWS MAN WHO SERVED COUNTRY WELL

(St. Croix Courier.)

The oldest resident in St. Andrews, George Egleton, will celebrate the ninety-sixth anniversary of his birthday next Saturday, the 12th inst. He is a Yorkshire man. He enlisted in the 6th Regiment and served the full period of twenty years. While in with the colors he saw active service in the Island of Cephalonia, suppressing a rebellion. He served with the colors in the West Indies, from there with the regiment he returned to England, and then to the Ionian Islands. The regiment lay six years in Corfu, and eventually returned once more to England. Subsequently it was detailed for duty at St. John, N. B. Mr. Egleton was with his regimental company, where he did garrison duty, at Fort Tipperary in the year 1882. He took his discharge at St. John in 1887, and then, with his wife, returned to St. Andrews, where he has resided up to the present. His wife predeceased him in 1895, and since that time he has resided with his daughter, who is only too happy to be privileged to take care of her father. In addition to her, he has three sons and a daughter living in the United States. Mr. Egleton, since his discharge from the army, has been in receipt of the pension usually granted to soldiers for faithful service and performance of duty. For a man of such patriarchal age as ninety-six years, Mr. Egleton has to a remarkable degree, retained possession of his faculties. He is a sincere adherent of the Church of England, and is respected and held in esteem by the people of St. Andrews, who hope that he will be spared to celebrate many more returns of his birthday.
