GIRLS ARE NEAR DEATH IN RIVER

Miss Bertha Carter Makes Brave Effort to Save Companion

Young Men in Boat Rescue Mary Fitzgerald and Her—Another Experience Off Rothesay.

A dual fatality was narrowly averted at Raynes Beach on the Saint John river yesterday. Miss Mary Fitzgerald, daughter of Edward Fitzgerald of Milford, with other girls went swimming and when some distance from shore became fatigued and cried out for help. Miss Bertha Carter started to her assistance, but the girl sank. She appeared on the surface again and went down the second time. Miss Carter by this time had reached the spot and diving met the body coming to the surface. Taking hold of her by one of her arms she started to swim toward shore and at the same time endeavored to keep her face above water.

While endeavoring to secure a stronger hold on the half drowned girl her companion she began to struggle and before she realized it the younger girl had seized her by the throat. To break the grip of her companion she began to struggle and both sank in the deep water.

The plight of the girls was noticed by Daniel and Edgar Lunney of North End and John Powers, their cousin, who lives at St. Leonard's, but is here on a visit. Manning a flat bottom boat lying on the beach they quickly rowed towards the spot where they had seen the girls go down for the second time. As they reached there they saw the two sinking for the last time.

ARE RESCUED.

One of the young men plunged his one arm and, working it under their bodies, gave them a quick push which brought them to the surface. Mr. Powers then leaned over the side of the boat and seized Miss Fitzgerald, while Daniel Lunney caught hold of Miss Carter.

Edgar Lunney, realizing the danger of the small flat-bottomed boat being overturned, threw his weight on the other side and thus kept the small craft from upsetting. Both girls were lifted into the boat and taken ashore. Miss Fitzgerald soon revived, but Miss Carter lapsed into unconsciousness and was very ill for some time afterwards. Today, however, she had completely recovered from her trying experience and is receiving the congratulations of friends for her plucky fight to save the life of the other girl.

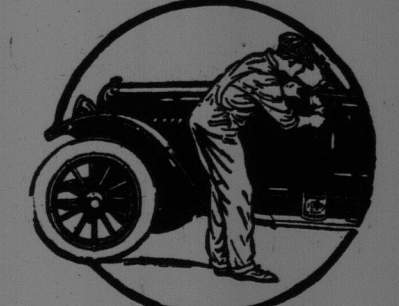

LEARNED AT SCOW.

Miss Carter was very reticent about the incident today. She said she had learned her position when Miss Fitzgerald seized her by the throat and three times succeeded in breaking her hold, but the fourth time she was almost strangled and she weakened that she hardly knew what she was doing. She learned to swim at the city swimming scows at the foot of Kennedy street three years ago. She is a daughter of William Carter, who is in the employ of the Public Works Department.

ANOTHER NEAR ROTHESAY.

Two young men, Harold Williams and Jack MacMurray, while out in a canoe near Rothesay yesterday were thrown into the water when the craft upset. They tried to right it but failed and then set out to swim to shore, a considerable distance away. Fortunately, both are good swimmers and kept their heads and managed to attract attention to their plight from people on shore. Several boats put out after them and picked them up. They were little the worse for their adventure.

IS WARNED OF RISK

Auto Driver Said to Have Had Close Call at Railway Crossing.

A serious accident probably was narrowly averted yesterday afternoon at the railway crossing in Sand Cove road, Lancaster, when a taxi driver attempted to reach the crossing before a Canadian Pacific engine. The engineer, according to the railway officials, blew his whistle loudly, but when he saw the driver was trying to make the crossing first, he applied his brakes and managed to avert striking the car. The matter was reported by the engineer and the police officials warned the driver this morning of the danger he was running and told him if it happened again that court action would be taken.

To reach MacLaren's Beach, people travel in these buses which meet the street cars. On fine Sundays they are laden and it was said this morning the driver should have exercised more care for the safety of passengers.
