No More Europeans For Gould Family

MISS HELEN VIVIAN GOULD.

When Marjorie Gould was wedded to Anthony Drexel last April she got out of the way of Helen Vivian Gould, her next youngest sister. Now Helen, or Vivian, as members of the family call her, is "Miss Gould;" formerly she was only "Miss Helen." She was born in 1892; she is not as pretty as her sister Marjorie, but she has a stronger face. Her father has declared that none of his daughters shall marry foreigners, noblemen or otherwise.

BUDGE FROM DISTRICT GRL

Muses Added to Staff of Hub Public Schools—Peeks at Rhododendrons on Pretty Estate.

Boston, June 10.—The physician will yet be the high priest of the social order. Canada, one notes, is in line for medical inspection in the public schools, and here's to the success of her undertaking. Boston in 1894 became the pioneer in introducing medical inspection, and has recently gone a step forward and installed medical supervision, which is quite a different thing. The children in the schools of the Hub are now under surveillance of trained specialists in the medical world, and a corps of nurses regularly endeavors to inculcate the same principles of health in the homes of the pupils as are taught in the schools. There's something more practical than just calling in the doctor when a child looks to the teacher to be ailing. The system is very successful and deserves to be generally copied.

Paeons of joyfulness from happy suffragists are heard across Copley Square, now that the local organizations working jointly in the suffrage cause have been brought together on one floor under one roof. Miss Catherine Wilde, long associated with the journalistic fortunes of the late Henry B. Blackwell, his daughter, Miss Alice Stone Blackwell, and the Woman's Journal, which they edited from the down town aerial, writes pleasantly of the delightful of being more closely in touch with the active state league and the inspiration of constant association with Mrs. Page, of the Massachusetts Association and Mrs. Fitzgerald of the Boston Equal Suffrage Association for Good Government.

"Also," she says, "it recalls old times pleasantly to be once more in the same house with the New England Women's Club, although many voices that made the glory of those days are forever still. We look on at the vineyard of state suffrage on the one side, and the noble face of the Public Library on the other. Truly, 'Our lines are cast in pleasant places.'" One of Miss Wilde's first visitors in the new quarters was Mrs. Cheney, of old fame from Cincinnati, bringing reports of the success of a woman designer in that city, Miss Lilian Noble Herschede, who took the prize for the design of a poster at the late Cincinnati exposition. As more and more New England women become aware of the cordial welcome that always awaits them at 585 Boylston street, the record of interesting visits will grow apace.

Boston's safe and sane Fourth is to be none the less a crackerjack. President Taft, first and foremost, is to be the special guest of the day, and will review a spectacular parade composed of military companies, bands, cadet corps, floats, and 4,000 or more school boys from all over the city. An interesting feature of the parade will be the stop before the Old State House when the orator will step forth to read a certain antiquated and half forgotten document called the Declaration of Independence. Plans are now afoot all over the city for fireworks, art shows, and horribles and athletic sports. It may yet be possible to have a glorious Fourth without blowing the children's fingers off, blinding them for life, or allowing them to scatter their arms and legs in the trail of cannon crackers and pistols as of yore.

Raw as the June days have been the usual rare vistas of rhododendrons and azaleas have been outspread for the benefit of Bostonians and many other visitors who enjoyed the annual pilgrimage to view the beauties of Holm Lea, Professor Charles Sprague Sargent's magnificent Brookline estate. Mr. Sargent, for many years the director of Harvard's living tree museum, the Arnold Arboretum, is probably the most successful floriculturist in this part of the country, and the privilege of an annual entrance at the gates of his estate is highly prized locally.

Martha Washington, of New York, will have a rival in Mary Washington of Boston: Working girls of the Hub are at last to have a hotel all their own, according to plans which are now well under way. Its name will be as just indicated. Girls who are earning small wages may obtain a little suit with kitchentete for $1.50 a week, or two girls may take a suite together. There will be one, two and three-room suites, all including heat, light and janitor's service. In addition there will be a cafe in the basement where meals will be served for fifteen and twenty cents, and a delicatessen store for those who prefer to cook in their own rooms. An industrial exchange will be established for those working women and girls who depend upon embroidery, sewing and similar pursuits for their living. The hotel to be located on its board and will have no hampering restrictions. Large reception rooms and small parlors will furnish accommodations for entertaining. This institution will be it is believed, so far toward doing away with the present hundreds of garret rooms which are occupied with girls who cook over oil stoves and dry their handkerchiefs on the window pane in the struggle to live and remain respectable on six dollars a week and the hope of a raise. The idea was originated by Mrs. Charlotte Smith, a woman prominent in social welfare work, and has the backing of such reputable citizens as its board of directors as ex-Mayor Thomas N. Hart, W. A. Gaston, president of the National Shawmut Bank, Alexander McGregor, John B. Schofield of the Tremont Theatre, A. Sherman, Rev. W. P. McQuaid, James W. Vahey, Joseph O'Neill of the Federal Trust Company, S. W. Shelair of Clifton & Sturgis, architects, James J. Phelan of Hornblower & Weeks, and James M. Morrison. The scheme should be a notable step in stamping out the social evil by helping the girls to help themselves.

PAID $6,000,000 FOR THEATRE SITE
Lee Shubert and His Associates Still Buying Property and Will Erect Building Costing $4,000,000.
 New York, June 10.—Lee Shubert, as the head of a syndicate of capitalists, has announced the purchase of the easterly half of the block bounded by Broadway, Seventh avenue, Thirty-fifth and Thirty-sixth streets, which was reported sold earlier in the week. It is understood that the syndicate paid $6,000,000 for the property, which is the biggest plot under one ownership in the neighborhood of the Pennsylvania Railroad terminal, with the possible exception of Macy's department store on the block below and Gimbel Bros' store, now being built on the original site acquired by the Hudson and Manhattan Company for its uptown terminal. The syndicate proposes to improve the plot with a big building that will be part office, part hotel and part theatre. The building planned by the syndicate will cost, according to a rough estimate by architects, about $4,000,000.
