The Dream of Pilate's Wife

It was not sleep that bound my sight, Upon that well-remembered night;
It was not fancy's fitful power Beguiled me in that solemn hour.
But o'er the vision of my soul
The mystic future seemed to roll;
And in the deep prophetic trance, Revealed its treasures to my glance.

Before my wondering eyes there stood A vast, a countless multitude—The hoary sire, the prattling child, The mother and the maiden mild, The glad youth, and man of care —All tribes, all ages, mingled there;
And all, where'er I turned to see,
In humble silence bent the knee.

Still o'er the crowded scene I gazed: Against the lurid eastern sky I saw the shameful Cross upraised; I saw the sufferer doomed to die.
Twas He whom late with sorrowing mien,
In Zion's streets I oft had seen,
And now, in blood and agony, He turned a dying look on me.

Then softly from the gathering throng Arose the sound of solemn song;
And while I caught the swelling lay, The myriad voices seemed to say—
"And we believe in him that died, By Pontious Pilate crucified—That He shall come, when time is fled, To judge the living and the dead."

I woke—thou wast not by my side, I heard a loud exulting cry;
I heard the scornful priests deride, The elders murmur "Crucify." O Pilate! hadst thou marked my prayer,
That guiltless blood to shield and spare, That deed of horror would not be,
A stain to thine—a curse to thee!

Our scenes of early love are past;
Our youthful spring is withered all;
Afar from Rome our lot is cast, Beneath the sunny skies of Gaul;
The thoughts that memory treasures yet
Of other days, begin to flee;
But never shall my heart forget The Crucified of Galilee!

BAPTIST ANNIVERSARY

Very successful anniversary services were held in the Baptist church on Sunday last. There was an overflow attendance at the evening service, many arriving about 7 o'clock being unable to gain admittance.
The Rev. W. S. McAlpine, B.A., B. Th., of Delta preached at both services. His evening discourse was based on the delineation of Heaven as found in the 21st chapter of Revelation and his treatment of the subject was strictly scriptural and the purpose of the speaker was clear to all. It was a sermon that will live in the memory of all who heard it.

As usual at the Baptist Church anniversaries, the choral service was excellent. Mrs. McAlpine and Mr. T.
Horsfield assisted the choir, and Rev.
Mr. McAlpine also rendered a solo.

The Potato Rot

District Representatives of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, report that Ontario farmers are preparing to rush their potatoes to market as they fear that rot will develop in the remnant of the year's crop. The damage by rot is general throughout the province, in some cases sixty per cent of the crop being lost. Where the fields were sprayed, however, the potatoes almost entirely escaped rot and blight.

Under the direction of Mr. Walter H. Smith, local representative of the Department, a test was made by Mr.
Erastus Livingston of the benefit of spraying with Bordeaux. The result was entirely satisfactory. The leaves showed pronounced evidence of blight when the mixture was first applied, but they revived, the color returned, and the large yield was free from rot.

Experience teaches that Drainage and Bordeaux are winning cards in the game of Agriculture, but recognition of this fact is not spreading as rapidly as it should.

on.

NOVA SCOTIA'S TOWER

WHAT NEWLY-DEDICATED MONU-MENT STANDS FOR.

The Memorial Which the Duke of Connaught Inaugurated a Few Days Ago is of Special Significance to Canadians—It Marks the Place Where the First Parliament Was Formed.

On one of the hills which give diversity and beauty to the site of the City of Halifax, there now stands a lofty and beautiful stone tower, from whose turret-crowded top can be had a charming view of the historical city and its magnificent harbor. A few days ago that tower was dedicated by H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught to the memory of the first elective Legislature that ever met on territory now within the boundaries of the Dominion of Canada. The tower, therefore, commemorates the birth of our Parliamentary institutions.

One hundred and fifty-four years have passed since that first Canadian Parliament was called to order in its opening session, but in order to understand the circumstances that attended its creation it is necessary to go a little further back in our history, and start, in fact, with the beginning of British rule in Canada.
British Canadian history, and British Parliamentary institutions in Canada have their beginning in Nova Scotia. That little province has been the way along which much of our political life has passed, and in many things set an example for the other British-Canadian communities.

She has also contributed to our public life some of our ablest men, among them being three who have been Prime Ministers of the Dominion. Her contributions to our history, her achievements in solving the problem of colonial self-government, and her contributions to those elements of our population that established government and developed this country fully entitle her to the name she bears.
She certainly is the New Scotland of British North America, filling in this Dominion a position very similar to that filled by old Scotland in the United Kingdom.

The treaty of Utrecht that brought to a close what is known as Queen Anne's war, gave Acadia to the British crown, and Acadia may be generally described as all that territory now forming the province of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, but for almost seventy years after the cession the whole formed the one province of Nova Scotia.

During the first six years of its history as a British possession, Nova Scotia was under military government, which consisted of the general commanding the troops there, and his officers. It was the rule of the soldiers and not the civilian. It was in 1719 that the governor, Col. Phillips, in accordance with instructions received from London, established a form of civil government, which consisted of the governor and an appointed council whose duties were both executive and legislative. This form of government, however, was intended to be only temporary, for an elective House of Assembly was promised, and it was not long before people began looking for the fulfilment of the promise.
They had to wait thirty-nine years—that is until 1758.

At this time Sir Charles Lawrence was governor of Nova Scotia. He had repeatedly been instructed by the Government in England to call a House of Assembly, or elective Parliament, but he had neglected to do so because he knew that as soon as such a representative body came into existence he would have less power than he exercised with only an appointed council to be responsible to and to co-operate with. And Lawrence loved power and clung to it tenaciously. In 1758, however, he received orders from London that he could not ignore. The long-deferred House of Assembly had been created.

Early in the spring the British fleet commanded by Admiral Boscawen arrived in Halifax harbor. With it came a large number of transports having on board a powerful army commanded by Amherst, who two years later brought the war to a close on this continent by the capture of Montreal and the surrender of Canada by Governor Vaudreuil. With Amherst as his chief lieutenant, was a young officer, James Wolfe, who in the following year conducted the siege of Quebec, and "died victorious" on the Plains of Abraham. The fleet sailed away for Louisbourg, and Lawrence was impatient to follow it and take part in the siege. But before he could go he must carry out his orders and set up the long-delayed Parliament.

Governor Lawrence called his council and together they planned that first of Canadian Parliaments, whose House of Assembly was to consist of twenty-two members to be elected by the freeholders. The part of the province not yet divided into counties, and it was the larger part, was to elect sixteen members, the township of Lunenburg, two, and the township of Halifax four. The appointed council was retained as an Upper House, corresponding to the Senate of today.

Then followed the elections—the first Parliamentary elections held in this country, and on October 2, 1758, the first session of that first Canadian Parliament was opened at Halifax.
Robert Sanderson being chosen Speaker of the Assembly. That first session opened much the same way that sessions of provincial legislatures or of Federal Parliament open to-day —with a speech from the throne by the governor, read to both Houses.
The session lasted from October 2 until April 17, but the House did not sit continuously for there was a long recess. The sittings were held in the Court House, and the members were called together by the ringing of a bell. The members were not paid salaries or indemnities, as the remuneration of members is now called.
That earliest of Canadian Parliaments met only two sessions, when it was dissolved and a second election held.

1912 PRIZE CONTEST FOR FARMERS

This contest is along the same lines as the one which was so successful last year, except that there are three times as many prizes, and therefore three times as many chances for each contestant to win. Every farmer in Canada who uses "Canada" Cement is eligible to compete. The conditions are such that large and small users of cement have equal opportunities to win a $50 prize.

The contest is divided into three classes, and there are first, second, third and fourth prizes ($50, $25, $15 and $10) in each class.

CLASS "A"—Prizes to be awarded to the four farmers in each province who use most "Canada" Cement on their farms in 1912.

CLASS "B"—Prizes to be awarded to the four farmers in each province who send photographs of the best concrete work done with "Canada" Cement on their farms in 1912.

CLASS "C"—Prizes to be awarded to the four farmers in each province who send the best description, telling how any piece of concrete work was done with "Canada" Cement. (Entries for this prize must be accompanied by photographs of the work.)

In addition to thus being divided into classes, so as to give small users of cement an equal chance with those who use more, the Contest is also divided into nine divisions, one for each province. So you see you need only to compete with the other farmers of your own province, and not with those all over Canada.

Don't think that because you have never used cement, you cannot win a prize. Many of last year's prize winners had never used cement before they entered the Contest. We will send you a free book, "What the Farmer Can Do With Concrete," that will not only help you in the Contest, but will tell you everything you could want to know about the use of cement on the farm.

Don't delay, but send us your name and address to-day and get this free book and full particulars of the Prize Contest right away.
Use a letter, postal or coupon.

"What the Farmer can do with Concrete" will be sent to all who request details of the Prize Contest.
