Principal's Address.

Mr. Ross, the principal speaker, was a graduate of the old Horton Academy and a class-mate of the present Principa of the Collegiate at Acadia University He afterwards graduated from Yale where he has been addressing the students where he has been addressing the students, and from thence he came to Wolfville. He also studied at Dalhousie and practised at Sydney before establishing himself in Montreal, where his sphere of interest has developed into other branches, especially, economics, and liferature. cially economics and literature,

His advice to the students Monday ght was timely and inspiring. He begged them not to be afraid to be called dreamers or poets, but to endeavour to cultivate the art of writing poems as much as possible. His recitals of quotations were most apt and pleasing. In particular he urged them to have the sort of courage that will enable them at all times to stand with the few for what ried away by it, but always to study it well before pronouncing judgement upor it. Above all, let them have a definite aim in life from the start and resolutely atrive to reach it.

BACCALAUREATE SUNDAY

The service at the Baptist Church on Sunday morning was very largely attended, the seating capacity of the combined auditorium and school-room being taxed to the utmost. Rev. Dr. Cutten presided and beside him on the platform were Rev. Dr. Manning, chairman of the Board of Governors; Rev. W. C. Goucher, D. D., of St. Stephen, N. B.; Rev. Herbert Johnson, D. D., of Boston, Mass.; Rev. Clarence A. Barbour, D. D., of the Rochester Theological Seminary, Rochester, N. Y.; The service at the Baptist Church logical Seminary, Rochester, N. Y.; and Rev. J. H. MacDonald, pastor of the church. Miss Ethel Norton and Mr. Warren Peters rendered the proces narch and a string orchestra, under the direction of Miss Langley, of the violin de-partment and a choir directed by Mr. W. A. Jones, of the vocal department of Acadia Seminary, led the congregational

Following the doxology and invocation by Dr. Johnson, the grand old hymn, "O God our help in ages past," was sung and the scripture lesson was read, after which the choir rendered "Nearer My od to Thee."

The preacher of the logical Seminary who was introduced by President Cutten in fitting terms. His subject was "The Process of Posses-sion" taken from Josahua 1:3. "Every place that the sole of your feet shall tread upon that place I give you, as I said unto Moses."

After briefly summarizing the journey of forty years ending with the burial of Moses by God on the mountain top, when with some relief and not without some sorrow the Great Leader had been some sorrow the Great Leader had been privileged to see the Promised Land, the speaker referred to Joshua as a young general of fine character and courage taking up the reins that Moses had laid To illustrate/what he meant b ownership with process of possession Dr. Barbour recalled the celebrations of the arrival of the first settlers, in the search of material for something to say in connection with which he had discovered that the settlers possessed maps on which were marked between parallels the several territories to which they were given title deeds. It was only the of a moment to mark the maps but it took two hundred years to take posse of the whole territory. Ownership was not of much use without possession.

not of much use without possession.

There were moral and intellectual hoboes who always took the line of least resistance and therefore never accomplished anything worth while. The price of mental power was battle every time, the setting of hard problems to the mind and compelling the mind to work them out. Ownership of success in a worth while life was only possible through the slow process of possession. Little Molly, who has shown aptness for music, is between the parallels and can only reach the goal by keeping going on over the hard places and mastering the difficult tasks. A man's Bible was no bigger than that part of it which he has a ppropriated to himself.

He liked Van Dyke's description of a worth while life, which was (1) To think without confusion clearly; (2) to love one's fellowmen sincerely; (3) To act from honest motives purely; (4) To trust in God in Heaven accurely.

In conclusion, addressing the graduating class, he impressed upon them the absolute need of applying these leasons to themselves as they go out into the world, to make it better by their own determination to live a life worth while to study as though they had to live study is though they had to live forever, and to live as though they had to die tomorrow.

ELECTRIC COMMISSION

The regualr meeting of the Electric Commission was held on Thursday of ast week at the Council Chamber with last week at the Council Chamber with all the members present.

The chief business was to consider the appointment of a successor to Superintendent Chisholm whose resignation was accepted at a previous meeting. A number of applications for the position were heard and it was finally decided that, in view of the probability of Mr. Chisholm being able to resume the work after a few months reat, that the matter of his resignation be re-considered and that he be given four months leave from June 1st, with two weeks pay. Mr. Chisholm was entrusted with the duty of securing the services of an efficient man to take up the work during his in to take up the work during his

THE CHIMES OF NORMANDY

One of the biggest musical treats the One of the biggest musical treats the people of Wolfville have had the pleasure of enjoying for some time was the presentation of the opera, "The Chimes of Normandy", at the Opera House on Wednesday and Thursday evenings. Governor General's Medal—John A. was neard to remark, the only lault with his singing was that there was not enough of it. Mr. Nat Evans took the very difficult part of Gaspard, the miser. and no one could have acted the part better. Mr. Fred Rand as the Bailli, furnished the comedy and kept the audience in laughter whenever he appeared on the stage. The Notary was acted by Mr. T. Stackhouse.

It was hard to decide which of the ladies, Miss Evelyn Duncanson as Ser polette and Miss Mona Parsons as Germaine, we enjoyed the most, their parts were so different and each taken so well. Their acting was a surprise to every one and quite as good as their singing which is saying considerable.

Misses Frances Stackhouse, Amy
Prescott, M. Schlege and Margaret Stackhouse, as village maidens, took their parts very well.

The music of "The Chimes of Norman
