

THE WELL-DRESSED MAN

inspires confidence. To be well-dressed is not to be over-dressed, but to be attired in suitable clothing.

The Curzon tailoring is something more than ordinary workmanship, just as the Curzon cut is something outside the realm of mere draftsmanship. It means Distinction and Character. That is why well-dressed men, not only in Canada, but all over the World, wear Curzon clothes.

A Sure Cure.—"There's only one thing I can think of to head off this suffragette movement," said the mere man.

"What is that?" asked his wife.

Always That Question.—Isaacstein—"I vos tired of life. Gif me some poison, and so I will kill myself."

Chemist (jocularly)—"All right. What do you want—arsenic or strychnine?"

Capable.—A certain editor had cause to admonish his son on account of his reluctance to attend school.

"You must go regularly and learn to be a great scholar," said the fond father, encouragingly, "otherwise you can never be an editor, you know. What would you do, for instance, if your paper came out full of mistakes?"

The boy looked up into his parent's face with childish innocence.

"Father," he said, solemnly, "I'd blame 'em on the printer!"

And then the editor fell upon his son's neck and wept tears of joy. He knew he had a successor for the editorial chair.—Sacred Heart Review.

Perhaps Deserved It.—It was after the distribution of prizes at a Sunday-school.

"Well, did you get a prize?" asked Johnny's mother.

"No," answered Johnny; "but I got horrible mention."—Tit-Bits.

No Hope.—Foreign Enemy—"Then you think it is useless for us to attack the country by way of New York?"

Assistant—"Certainly. Our investigations tell us that it is impossible. First we would have to pass a trained army of customs inspectors, then a squad of quarantine officials, and what was left of us would be swept away by a picked delegation of reporters asking us how we liked the country."—Puck.

The English Tongue.—The Customer—"Do you sell invisible hair nets?"

The Assistant—"Yes, madam."

The Customer—"Will you let me see one, please?"—The Sketch.

A Slight Jar.—Motormaniac—"What do you think is the most difficult thing for a beginner to learn about an automobile?"

Frankenstein—"To keep from talking about it all the time."—Toledo Blade.

Pity the Chinaman.—The Chinese compositor cannot sit at his case as our printers do, but must walk from one case to another constantly, as the characters needed cover such a large number that they cannot be put into anything like the space used in the English newspaper office. In setting up an ordinary piece of manuscript, the Chinese printer will waltz up and down the room for a few moments, and then go down stairs for a line of lower case. Then he takes the elevator and goes up into the third story after some caps, and then goes out into the woodshed for a handful of astonishers. The successful Chinese compositor doesn't need to be so very intelligent, but he must be a good pedestrian.—Bill Nye.

What He Did.—An American tourist who has recently visited London gives his experience of the extent to which the "tipping" evil has developed at the big hotels.

After he had had lunch he tipped the head waiter, the waiter's two helpers, the man who gave him his hat and gloves, and the man who whistled for a taxicab. The vehicle rolled out into the Strand, and the American
