HUB all wet after sprinkler set off

by Lisa Hall

"It was a swimming pool," said one of the maintenance workers assigned to clean up the water-logged apartment in HUB International Mall.

One of the residents of the apartment, Chung-Sea Lau, accidentally set off the sprinkler system in his bedroom when he was reaching into his closet. The activated system inadvertently made HUB fire alarms go off, which summoned Campus Security and the Edmonton Police Department to the scene.

The two groups arrived, however, not to find a fire, but to find eight inches of water flooding the third-floor apartment, and the sprinkler still going strong.

Once the sprinkler was shut off, maintenance workers were called to clean up the water and the mess it left behind. "The water was really dirty, and now the whole apartment smells," said Lau. "I hope I can sleep here tonight."

Water also leaked down to apartments and stores below. Residents were forced to move their belongings onto tables and into the stairwell while workers removed the water.

Two HUB merchants, Candelier Card and Gift and Handbags and More, had considerable damage done to their stores. "I came to open the store at 9:00 and found half the merchandise covered in water, and most of it was leather," said Pushpa Sharma, owner of Handbags and More.

Tiffany Tsang, residence life coordinator with Housing and Foods Services, could not estimate how much damage had been done, but said it would probably take the whole day to clean up the apartments. After university workers had mopped and vacuumed what they could, Steam-o-matic cleaners were called in to finish cleaning carpets and linoleum and to deodorize the apartments.

"We haven't had a chance to decide if someone is going to be fined for this, but chances are someone will," said Tsang.
