Realize on His Value

Fifty to one hundred dollars seems like a long price to give a man for a pure-bred dairy bull. But is it? Consider what that bull will make for you in the increased value and the superior milk production of his female progeny. A good, pure-bred dairy bull from high-producing ancestry, is worth, and can be made to yield splendid returns on many times the sum asked by the prominent breeders, who advertise in these live stock columns of Farm and Dairy.

Yes, quite true, you say; indeed there is another side to the question: I must get a new bull every two or three years to avoid inbreeding on my young stock. The investment is larger than I feel like risking. My well-bred, high-priced dairy bull will not sell for beef and bring me what I paid for him. And you are right! He will not. There are other farmers however—thousands of them—in just such a situation as you. That bull of yours is good for many more years of service. Why not arrange a trade with another dairyman? Our advertising columns will help you do it.

A one-inch advertisement in Farm and Dairy will tell 10,000 farmers of your bull you wish to trade. The ad. will cost you only 99 cents. Try this means of exchanging your bull or of selling him for his full value. Write us to-day and send in your advertisement that will do the trick.

Your Life is in Danger

When you handle your bull unless you handle him with the latest invention—The Never-Fail Simplex Staff

The largest and most unruly bulls can be handled with ease by this device. It is all steel, tubular, light in weight, can't get off, fastens on bull's ring with hook and set screw. Absolutely safe, lasts a lifetime. Don't take chances with your bull, but use the D on which it enables you to twist and throw the animal.
