BILL SOWERS.

Sdith Martin Smith in American Messenger Sacred Heart.

There are two roads leading from Silverton, the nearest railroad station, to Pinos Altos which meet near the latter town at a point where the downhill grade begins. It is a dangerous piece of road; but one grows reckless of danger in the wild west, and no steps had been taken to improve the existing conditions. Dinah was taking her lively young charge out for a walk, and near this place Bobby give the camp its name, we left him with the soughing winds to sing his requiem. Thus fitly he crowned his work of expis-tion, for "greater love than this hath no man, that he lay down his life for his out for a walk, and near this place Bobby out for a walk, and near this place Bobby caught sight of his friend. The child was carrying a large flag and as soon as he spied Sowers he charged down upon him with a howl of delight, brandishing his brilliant banner and yelling like an Apache. The wagon with its heavy freight came round a bend of the road at this innerture and the sindern apparition. The closing exercises took place at Loretto Abbey on Thursday morning June 29, in the presence of His Grace Archbishop O'Connor, Very Rev. J JMcCann, V G, Rev. Fathers Murray, Rohleder, McBrady, Cruise and WMc-Cann. this juncture and the sudden apparition frightened the mules. They gave a fran-tic leap which snapped the chain holding the brake in place, and, released from all frightened the mules. They gave a frantic leap which snapped the chain holding the brake in place, and, released from all curb, the wagon pressed rapidly down upon the astonished animals, terrifying them beyond all possible control of the driver. On they came at a mad gallop, and, while the danger was most imminent, Bobby took it into his young head to cross the road. I was conscious of a shout, then a sickening sense of horror cansed me to shield my eyes like a woman so that I did not see Bill Sowers fling his violin in the ditch and with a single bound, clear the space that lay between him and Bobby, grasping the child's arm and thrusting him aside, as the eight mules, their terror increased by the shouts around them, dashed down the hill at maddened speed. The leaders struck him and in a minute it was allower! Life was quite extinct when I reached the spot and kindly friends were bearing his poor, mangied form to the shabby room he had so lately quitted.

As the men stole softly in to look their last upon his quiet features to which death gave a noolility life had withheld, there was moisture in many eyes hat had been long unused to tears.

I took Bobby, none the worse for his narrow escape, and crying loudly for "Uncle," to come, too, and delivered him to his mother, leaving all explanation to Dinah who, panting, tearful, and conscience-stricken, made a mournful bodyguard. When I returned to the chamber of death Muir was already there. His bugy had not been half a mile behind the runaway team and he had of ourse.

Pale and trembling, he walked excitedly up and down the narrow room, a strange contrast to the peaceful figure lying upon the held before ns. upon Bobby's escape.

"My God, Jack, think what I owe him!" he gasped. "If he could only have lived until I got here it would not True, there was nothing to be done; and, as we were leaving the room after giving final directions for the funeral, one of the men handed me a letter.

"I found this in his pocket, Mr. Holiday, and saw that it was directed to you. His purse and knife I have given to the boss: there were no other parera."

Touching his hat the man passed on and thus, sooner than he intended, I rereceived poor Sowers' letter. It was not

"DEAR FRIEND:—I may be deed and my troubles over when you read this for I am feeble beyond my years, and life, at best is uncertain, I expected to carry my recret with me to the grave; but, since Bobby's birt day, I have feit sure that you have suspected the truth, and I know that I can trust you. Imogen Muir is my daughter and Bobby my own grandchild. How proud it makes me feel to write this; but they must never know it. I shall not blight he life, poor child, as I did he: mother's, to matter how great the sacribee may be to me. She shall not suffer the disgrace of having drunken Bill Sowers' known as her fatte. Drink has been my curse from the start; it ruined the brilliant career that was mine for the asking; it caused me to leave my young Professor medial in VI. class English obtained by Miss May Williams.

Certificates of promotion to senior V class obtained by Misses Marte Smith, and Emma Drink has been my curse from the start; it reined the brilliant carser that was mine for the asking; it caused me to leave my young wife in a fli of brutal frenzy, and, when a few yoars la er I had accumulated a modest fortune and worked out as I hoped, my explain, I came back to the old Kentucky home tead to beg her forgiveness they showed me a new made grave and told me her father had taken the child and gone they knew not where. Think of it—my child! He was a reticent made of strong prejudices and he hated me because I was a musician. Then I suppose I went mad I know! I spent my last cent in frantic and fruitless efforts to trace my daughter; but here as always, whiskey was too much for me. It cloud what brain I had and stranded man physical and financial wreck in El Paso. There I lived, and drauk, and straved ustil, in a fit of restless wandering such as often selzed me. I defirted into your camp. You know the rest, and now I must leave this place which has become a neaven to me and resume my tramping. It would not be honorable to stay, neither to Muir, nor to her, nor Bobby. I dare not ask your advice for I feel that your goodness of heart would overrule your judgment. The step I am about to take must be right because it is so very hard. Try a d think kindly of "Your ald friend,"

"Your old friend, "ROBERT BERARD,"

So my suspicions were correct! I sat for hours thinking over the sad situa-tion and that night I sent for Muir and placed the letter in his hand. I knew was breaking a tacitly enjoined promise and yet, with the sight of that dead face before me, I could not bear that he whose life had paid the forfeit of his unselfish devotion should be buried as an alien.

devotion should be buried as all allel.

Muir was no less moved than I.

"A noble life misspent, a grand heart broken!" he exclaimed, "Would to Heaven we could call him back! And Heaven we could call nim back: And now I must tell my wife"

But this I forbade. He had made this supreme sacrifice, I urged, to spare her this knowledge and we had no right to render it abortive. My wiser counsel prevailed and Imagen Mair never guessed that the man who saved her how at the that the man who saved her boy at the cost of his own life was bound by any erofula but the scrofulous disposition. This is generally and chiefly indicated by jutaneous eruptions; sometimes by pale less, nervousness and general debility.

The disease afflicted Mrs. K. T. Snyder. Union St., Troy, Ohio, when she was righteen years old, manifesting itself by bunch in her neck, which caused great pain, was lanced, and became a running sore.

It afflicted the daughter of Mrs. J. H. Jones, Parker City, Ind., when 13 years old and developed so rapidly that when she was 18 she had eleven running sores on her neck and about her ears. These sufferers were not benefited by professional treatment, but, as they volun-tarily say, were completely cured by

Hood's Sarsaparilla

This peculiar medicine positively corrects the scrofulous disposition and radically and permanently cures the disease.

No honors that the camp could pay were denied Bill Sowers at the last. By the manager's orders, the mill was shut down, the stores closed for the day and all business suspended. To us who understood, it seemed a satire; and yet, no more could be done to show our respect and gratitude, and, in a lonely grave beneath one of the tall pines that give the camp its name, we left him with First class bonors, Miss Bertie Plunkett

ST JOSEPH'S ACADEMY, TORONTO.

Of the many school Commencements which are a feature of this season, persaps the most charming and attractive its way was that which took place at it. Joseph's Academy, Toronto, on Friday, the 21st.

At eight in the morning of this feast of the patron of youth, High Mass was elebrated in the lovely Convent Chapel. The Gregorian music redered by the pupils displayed exquisite taste and skill, and added much to the importance of the pupils displayed exquisite taste and skill, and added much to the importances of his grand closing act of worship.

The distribution of honors holds are the Archishop and a large assembly of clergy. Upon the stage, arranged in tiers, were the pupils, their black uniforms making a fitting background for the graduates, who occupied the center and front. The graduates of 1901 are: Miss Meehan if Toronto; Miss Mulcahy, of Orillia, and Miss Casserley, of Tottenham. These formed a charming picture in their white gowns and huge bouquets of white roses, and in their youthful modesty were very types of the sweet girl graduate. They were attended by little maids of honor, who accompanied them when they descended to receive their honors, or to be crowned with golden wreaths, which is a part of the ceremonial of graduation.

The programme was short but well selected, and executed with skill and expression. At the close the Archbishop addressed the pupils, congraduating them on the successful issue of their school year, giving them words of advice touching the vacation, and concluding with many good wishes for future successes.

"THE PIHES." CHATHAM ONT.

The Commencement exercises of the Ursuline Academy took place Friday afternoon, and was attended by a large and appreciative audience. This year's entertainment was exceptionally fine, being a great success, both in point of attendance and artistic merit. St. Cecilia's Hall was beautifully decorated with garlands, evergreens, palms, ferns and flowers, and presented a scene which could well allure and charm the eye of the most refined critic. The first number on the programme was a grand three-part chorus by over eighty voices. The music was by Beethoven, and glowed with warmth and enthusiasm.

Beethoven, and glowed with warmth and enthusiasm. The second number, by Misses Edmonson and Sullivan, was remarkably well interpreted. In tone coloring and phrasing these young ladies proved themselves highly aristic, and one could see at a glance that ensemble playing had been given much attention. Special mention should be made of Miss Sullivan's musical attainments. Last year she was the gold medalist. This year she has taken a scholarship, having passed with honors the Toronto Conservatory of Music examinations in both the theoretical and technical instrumental music course. Miss Sullivan is quite devoid of the garlsh mannerisms which are so great a fault with a large number of players, and her interpretations have a scholarly grace and beauty that are positively enchanting.

interpretations and beauty that are positively ling.

Miss Edmonson is also deserving of the greatest praise. Her solos were exceed ingly well rendered, and showed to won derful advantage her rare power and in strumental ability. She has also secure honors from the Toronto Conservator in the technical instrumental mus course.

in the technical instrumental music course.

The course, "Ring Out Wild Bells," was sung by Misses Gavin, Goggin, Locklin, Bower, Sullivan, Deziel and Petley. The manner in which these young ladies rendered this difficult piece evidenced decided talent on their part, and much care and painstaking* on the part of their teachers.

The instrumental by Misses Deziel, O'Leary, Thomas and Bower was well deserving of the applause given.

An original cantata by several of the senior pupils of the Academy was a charming number, and was one of the best on the programme. "Mizpah" carried a beautiful floral bouquet emblematic of her mission. The performers of the cantata sang that most beautiful flymm, "Lead, Kindly Light." The singing of this grand hymn was so remarkably well rendered and so touching that many of the audience were visibly affected, and listened to it with breathless attention.
"Queen Flora's Day-Dream," an operattention. "Queen Flora's Day-Dream," an oper etta, by the younger pupils, was a very pleasing feature of the exercises. The little ones, so lavishly adorned by natur with sweet simplicity and childhood innocence, never fail to charm. Thes wonderful exhibitions of musical an weil and naturally rendered, and appreciatively applauded.

The two graduates of the day were miss Mary Gertrude Sullivan, of Troy, New York, and Miss Frances O'Gorman, of this city. Miss Sullivan has been a student at "The Pines" for the last five years, and her presence and happy mariner will be greatly missed by her teachers and school mates. Miss Frances O'Gorman, who has been a pupil of the Ursuline Religions from childhood, has always won the love and esteem of her teachers, by her kind, amiable disposition.
