A LIVING STATUE.

Presently the moon rose, and as it climbed higher, and its light grew stronger, the building became visible throughout with a light which was most unearthly and ghostly in its character. This impressed itself very much upon Baselson, I had no idea, sergeant, he whispered to the officer, that the place was such a strange, cemeteryish sort of a place as it is, I must own I should not like to be on duty here all night. However, I have brought some little refreshments with me, so let us make ourselves comfortable. In silence, they ate and drank; and in silence, save for the chiming of the clock, or the occasional tread of a policeman, the hours crept on. The policemen passed within a couple of yards of the watchers repeatedly, but whether they knew of their presence or not, Baselson could not judge. The length and weariness of the hours grew intolerable to him, and seeing that the sergeant was as cool and wide awake as when they first entered the lair, he whispered; I feel terribly drowsy, sergeant; I always do about this time. Five minutes nap will make me as fresh as a daisy. Rouse me up if you hear anything before that time.

His companion smiled, and in the same subdued tone gave him the promise.

Nothing did happen requiring Mr. Baselson's presence either before or after the expiration of five minutes although the officer steadily looked out a hundred times during the night. At last the darkness thinned away, and then, after a short gray twilight, dawn came, and the sergeant shook Baselson by the shoulder.

Yes, yes; I'm ready, stammered the exhibitor, then opened his eyes very wide indeed. Why, its daylight! I must have slept—

Yes, of course you have interrupted the other; but let us go out quietly. I don't mind our men seeing us, of course; but others need know nothing of our watch.

I think the less your men or anybody else know about the way we kept our watch the better, said Mr. Baselson, as they left the counter; in fact, I shall regard it as a friendly thing if you say nothing about it.

The sergeant smiled but kept his own counsel, and it may be hinted that Baselson was a very liberal fellow although somewhat hasty. It turned out that no pilfering had taken place that night; nor did any occur for two or three nights after, a fact which Mr. Glisser attributed to the influence of Mr. Baselson's vigilance. He took great interest in the exhibitor's plans and paid him several compliments, which the latter received with but indifferent grace, having reasons, that the other knew of, for thinking ingratulated by the same vigilance.

One morning, a little while after the fruitless watch Mr. Baselson was in a very bad temper, for he had sustained a fresh loss. He was leaning against a pillar, a short distance from his counter, thoughtfully biting the end of his pencil, when a man spoke to him. He looked round at the sound, and a police constable whom he very much disliked for his sphy and unbusiness-like ways, standing close by him. He growled out some hardily civil words, and turned from the man, but the latter was not to be daunted.

I am afraid you have had a loss, sir, said the man, and hope it is not very serious; but at any rate I should like to have a word or two with you.

What for? retorted Baselson. I have lost a gold watch, and as I have not breathed a syllable to a soul, I don't see how you could know anything of it, unless some of your lively force have—

You are too severe, Mr. Baselson, said the other, finding he had stopped you, are, indeed, sir. Now, sir, I have my opinion about these robberies, and I think I have found out the order the thief works in, and can pretty well guess in what quarter he will next try. I believe I can catch him.

You! exclaimed Baselson, with an emphasis which was every thing but complimentary to the officer.

Yes, sir, replied the man firmly, I can—

Slate Roofing Paint!

Agents wanted in every town.

A roof may be covered with a very cheap hingle, and by application of the slate may be made to last from 20 to 25 years. Old roofs can be patched and coated with roofing which better and lasts much longer than new shingles without the slate, for one-third the cost, and although the expense of slating new shingles is only the cost of simply laying them, the Paint is applied against rotting or flying out, and although it is tested by anyone, and appears from the fact that Insurance Companies make nearly the same tariff as for slated roofs. For tin and iron roofs has no equal, as it expands by heat, contracts by cold, and never cracks or scales. For eaves it is particularly adapted, as it will not rot, and in the most exposed places. Roofs covered with the slate paint can be made water-tight at a small expense. The Slate Paint is extremely cheap two gallons will cover 100 square feet of shingle roof, or over 600 of iron. No tar is used in its composition, therefore it does not affect the water from the roof, if turned off from the eaves before the first few rains. On decayed shingles it fills up the holes and pores, hardens them, and gives a new substantial roof that will last for years. Curled or warped shingles it brings to their place and keeps them there, it fills up all holes in tin or felt roofs, and stops all leaks, one coat being equal to five of ordinary etc., etc. The color of the slate when first applied, is dark purple, changing in about a month to a light uniform slate color, and is so all intents and purposes, slate. The paint has a heavy body, but is easily put on, and although slow drying, rain will not affect it in the least one hour after applying. Roofs examined, estimates given, and when required will be thoroughly repaired.

Orders respectfully solicited. S. A. Russell & Co., 60 King Street East, Toronto.
