Miscellaneous.

George said the beautiful girl as she doctored close to him, 'the last time you called you proposed.' 'I did, sweet one.'

I was cured of a severe cold by MINARD'S LINIMENT. Oxford, N. S. R. F. HEWSON.

I was cured of a terrible sprain by MINARD'S LINIMENT. FRED COULSON.

I was cured of Black Erysipelas by MINARD'S LINIMENT. Inglesville. J. W. RUGGLES.

Should be tried.—How my wagon 'going along?' asked the butcher.

All Recommend It. Ask your physician, your druggist and your friends about Shilo's Cure for Consumption. They will recommend it.

The His of Women. Constipation causes more than half the ills of women. Kari's Clover Root Tea is a pleasant cure for Constipation.

She.—So you believe your college education complete, now that you have been graduated? He.—I should say yes!

MINARD'S LINIMENT for Rheumatism. She.—Tell me, when you were in the army, were you cool in the hour of danger? He.—Cool? I actually shivered.

A Fact Worth Knowing. Consumption, LaGrippe, Pneumonia, and all Throat and Lung diseases are cured by Shilo's Cure. For sale by E. Lee Street.

Casey. 'That made Melligan fall off the ladder? Did his fat slip? Rilly. 'It did not. O! told him a joke an hour ago, an' sure, he jist now tumbled.'

RELIEF IN SIX HOURS. Distressing Kidney and Bladder diseases relieved in six hours by the GREAT SOUTH AMERICAN KIDNEY CURE.

A man may go to be full of liquor, but hardly full of spirit when he hears the very decided tones of the voice of the little woman who has sat up for him.

Kari's Clover Root Tea is a sure cure for Headache and nervous disease. Nothing relieves so quickly. For sale by E. Lee Street.

Fig. 'Are you at all interested in secret orders? Fog. 'Only in connection with the soda fountain at the drug store.'

CATARH RELIEVED IN 10 TO 6 MINUTES.—One short puff of the breath through the Blower, supplied with each bottle of Agnew's Catarrh Powder, diffuses this powder over the surface of the nasal passages.

From a masculine point of view, as well as from a grammatical standpoint, while a widow is a positive enchanter, a widower is only comparatively nice.

MINARD'S LINIMENT is the best. 'James,' asked the school teacher, 'what do you do with your odd moments after school?'

It Saves Lives Every Day. Thousands of cases of Consumption, Asthma, Coughs, Colds and Croup are cured every day by Shilo's Cure For sale by E. Lee Street.

Seventh.—If you are a poor man, teach your daughter how to dance and play the piano. She can learn cooking, dressmaking and those things after she is married.—Peck's Son.

Youths Corner. DO YOU KNOW HER? I have a little friend who doesn't like to mend.

While they were eating, Mr. Green came home unexpectedly. He spoke kindly to them all; then turning to Tom, he said: 'Did you pick the stones out of the meadow this afternoon, as I told you, and throw them on the west side, Thomas?'

WHAT GOD GIVES A B. Y. A body to live in and keep clean and healthy, and as a dwelling for his mind and temple for his soul.

A pair of feet to do errands of love and kindness and charity and business, but not to loiter in places of mischief or temptation of sin.

TOM'S BRIGHT IDEA.

He Got the Meadow Clear of Stone and Then Treated to Supper.

'I plowed up the Pike Meadow this morning, and I want you to pick out the stones this afternoon,' Tom said Mr. Green to his son at the dinner-table one day.

'Throw them over on the west side of the lot, then they will be out of the way,' continued his father, as he put on his hat to go back to his work.

'Yes, sir,' said Tom. The door shut, and Tom groaned. 'I was going over to Sam's to make that boat this afternoon,' he explained to his sympathetic mother.

'If you go right about it perhaps you can get through in time to go to Sam's,' advised his mother.

'It will take the whole afternoon to do it alone, and I shan't get through before dark,' said Tom dismally.

'No, ma'am,' trying to look sober, though he smiled in spite of himself. An hour later he came into the dining room where she was sewing and tilted himself on her rocker while he coaxed:

'She did not ask why he wanted the boys to supper, but she knew he was working out some bright idea of his own, and, mother-like, was ready to help, while she watched him curiously.

He was working out some bright idea of his own, and, mother-like, was ready to help, while she watched him curiously. Soon after she heard him mixing some bright red paint.

'I guess so,' she answered. 'I was going to make biscuits, anyway, and I can make a few extra just as well.'

HE WAS A GENTLEMAN. A few days ago I was passing through a pretty, shady street, where some boys were playing at rounds. Among their number was a little lame fellow seemingly about twelve years old—a pale sickly-looking child, supported on two crutches, and who evidently found much difficulty in walking, even with such assistance.

The lame boy wished to join the game, for he did not seem to see how much his infirmity would be in his own way, and how much it would hinder the progress of such an active sport as rounds.

His companions, very good-naturedly, tried to persuade him to stand on one side and let another take his place; and I was glad to notice that none of them hinted that he would be in the way, but they all objected for fear he would hurt himself.

'That was a fine target, Tom,' said one of the boys. 'Where did you get it?'

'Made it,' said Tom promptly. 'Had some paint left over from the boat, you know.'

While they were eating, Mr. Green came home unexpectedly. He spoke kindly to them all; then turning to Tom, he said: 'Did you pick the stones out of the meadow this afternoon, as I told you, and throw them on the west side, Thomas?'

As I passed on I thought to myself that there was a true gentleman.

LOST. 'Lost! in a game of play, a little girl's temper.' Other sad losses are involved. Her mother's pride in her little girl is lost.

Her companions have lost their pleasure in the game. The little girl herself has lost all the bright smiles which made her face so pretty.

And she has also lost the sympathy, the affection, and the good opinion of her companions. All these things were wrapped up and lost, with the little girl's temper. No one can find the lost temper but herself. The place to look for it is called 'Repentance.'

Scott's Emulsion

is Cod-liver Oil emulsified, or made easy of digestion and assimilation. To this is added the Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda, which aid in the digestion of the Oil and increase materially the potency of both.

Physicians recognize its superior merit in all conditions of wasting. It has had the endorsement of the medical profession for 20 years.

Don't be persuaded to take a substitute! Scott's Emulsion, 50c. and $1.

Damp Days often bring coughs and colds while

PYNY - PECTORAL. brings quick relief. Cures all kinds of Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough, Hoarseness, Sore Throat, Asthma, Hay Fever, etc.

A pair of lips to keep pure and unspotted by tobacco or whiskey, and to speak true, kind, brave words; but not to make a smoke-stack of, or a will trough.

A pair of ears to hear the music of birds and trees and rill and human voice, but not to give heed to what the serpent says, or to what dishonors God or his mother.

A pair of eyes to see the beautiful, the good and the true—God's finger prints in the flower and field and snowflake; but not to feast on unclean pictures, or the blotches which Satan daubs and calls pleasure.

A mind to remember and reason and decide and store up wisdom and impart it to others, but not to be turned into a chip basket or rubbish heap for chaff and rubbish and sweepings of the world's stale wit.

A soul as fair as a new-fallen snowflake to receive impressions of good and to develop faculties of powers and virtues which shall shape it day by day, as the artist's chisel shapes the stone, into the image and likeness of Jesus Christ.

Manure applied in the fall, and then hrowed over lightly, will make grass seed sprout. The pastures seem to be benefited by this harrowing, especially if a rain follows right after it.

By applying the manure in this way late in summer it does not interfere with the next season's crop of hay, but rather increases its yield. Of course it keeps the cattle of the pasture for a time, and this certainly should be done for a few weeks in mid-summer anyway.

Pasturing stock on the meadows right after mowing, when the soil is dry and sun very hot, is the surest way to run out a good piece of grass land. After mowing the land needs a rest, and a little stimulating thing will help matters a great deal.

By handling our hay fields in this way we can crop them more years in succession than if we neglected them. Six successive crops of good timothy off the hay field is something unusual, and yet that is just what this system will do every time.

The question is whether the rule of spreading the manure in late summer will not pay if such results are obtainable.

This year hay is apparently going to be high. Already prices are tending upwards, and holders are keeping their old stock for further advances. The coming crop will not be a large one unless more rain falls.

We have had for that matter a number of years lately when good hay paid as well as any crop on the farm. If we but handle the grass land properly we will find it the most remunerative on the farm. Good timothy hay, however, can be grown only on land that is enriched.

Manure is most valuable when it is first voided. It never gains in value by being preserved, but as usually kept there is quite a loss of its so-called value by leaching. Carefully composting the manure makes it finer and more quickly available as that fact, especially if such course is mixed with it, but for all field crops the sooner manure is put upon the land the more good is received from it.

So true is this that progress farmers can't manage right on the snow in winter, provided the land does not wash, while during the rest of the year it is daily spread on the land desired to be fed.

and the door into that place is called 'Shame,' and that door is only open to her.

Strange that she will not enter the door, which conscience points out so plainly, and seek for her lost treasure, seeing how easily she could find it, and how unhappy and uncomfortable the loss of it is making herself and all around her.

And not only can she find it if she chooses to seek, but a rich reward is offered her for its recovery.

The reward is—an approving conscience; a happy mind; her mother's pride; her companions affection and society; the true beauty of a pleasant, smiling face, and a light heart cleared from the heavy weight of her sad loss.

What a silly little girl she must be! First, willing to lose so valuable a thing. And next willing to delay, even a moment before setting about finding it again.—P. K.

It is said that when Queen Victoria was quite a little girl she spent an afternoon with Queen Adelaide, who assured her that she might do anything within reason that she wished. After weighty consideration the little princess declared that nothing would give her such pleasure as to be allowed to clean the windows.

So a cloth, pail and water, and pieces of wash-leather were supplied to her, and greatly did she revel in the indulgence.

Good barnyard manure applied right after the meadows and pastures are mown in the summer gives very beneficial results. It can be hauled out from the yards and stables in August or September, and spread over the stubble. The earlier after the meadows are mown the better, and where they are cut in early July the work can be done profitably then.

This practice will also be greatly improved by a mid-summer manuring, and where the grass has been very thin at cutting it is an easy matter then to apply the manure where most needed. By following this method up systematically meadow land can be made even and regular.

Even straw manure that has not been evenly composted will give good results. The straw protects the roots of the grass from the hot sun, and helps to retain the moisture in the soil after each shower. About ten good loads of manure to the acre applied several years in succession will make such a difference in the yield that one will be surprised.

Manure applied in the fall, and then hrowed over lightly, will make grass seed sprout. The pastures seem to be benefited by this harrowing, especially if a rain follows right after it.
