Duke of Argyll's Tea Tree.

(From the 'Scotsman.')

A correspondent tells of coming across, during a country stroll, a climbing shrub with green foliage and a few thorns. On taking it home and examining it he found that it was the plant commonly known as the Duke of Argyll's tea tree, belonging to the same natural order (Solanaceae) as the potato and tomato. London tells us that it got its aristocratic name from the fact that a teaplant, Thea viridis, was sent to the Duke of Argyll at the same time as this plant, and the labels became accidentally transposed. The alien seems to have quickly established itself in the southern counties of England and was recorded by British botanists under the name of Lyctum barbarum and Barbary box thorn. It is described in the text books as a naturalized British plant on the southern coasts of England, but it seems to have established itself well on the Scotish coasts, too. Like a good many other aliens it has flourished for a long time under a false name in this country, for it was only lately discovered that its real name is Lyctum chinense, and that it is at native of China and not of Barbary, as was thought.

thought that the negro will have to decide between Kaufman and Ketchel for his next opponent; or it is just possible that Johnson will come out with the declaration that he will fight the winner of a Kaufman-Ketchel bout.

James Coffeoth, the San Francisco fight promoter, will also be present to the expected fight conference and will stand ready to put in a bid for any kind of a match that may result. Coffroth says that he will give $30,000 for a 45-round bout between Johnson and Ketchel for July 5th at Colma, but the negro will not be able to fight at that time because of theatrical engagements in Great Britain. It is possible, therefore, that Ketchel will be matched with Kaufman for July 5th, unless the latter follows Johnson and Langford to England. At any rate, to-morrow's expected pow-wow should serve to throw a stronger searchlight on the present heavy-weight situation and also show more exclusively than ever who is really anxious to fight.

If Kaufman defeats Tony Ross decisively in their ten-roud bout at the Fairmont A. C. on Tuesday night, he will find both Ketchel and Perguson, the big Boston slugger, ready to meet him for a similar distance. Ketchel wante to be $5.000 that Kaufman is own. New York, April 12.—A match between Jack Johnson, the heavyweight champion, and Stanley Ketchell, the middleweight champion, for a bout some time next October at Colma, Cal., has been practically arranged by James Cofforth, manager of the Colma Club, and the final details of the fight will be determinted at a meeting of the fighters and Cofforth here to-night.

Cofforth made the announcement to-day that the match had been arranged, but said a few details, such as the selection of a referce, would have to be settled before the articles were signed.

"I spent more than three hours with Jack Johnson," said Cofforth, "and he is satisfied to fight Ketchell. The mill will take place during Portola week in Colma. I talked with Jeffries, but he would not give me a definite answer whether he would fight Johnson or not, but he did say that if he met the negro it would be ready to enter the ring. with white bits containing aphorisms which have now become hackneyed quotations.

Victor Hugo wrote "Les Miserables" standing up, an attitude which Hawthorne also assumed when he wrote many of his romances.

One leg thrown over the arm of a chair or sitting on the arm of his secretary's chair were Napoleon's favorite positions while dictating to Bourrienne, a position which he varied now and then by patting that scribe on the head or pulling his ears. Sir Walter Scott could while reclining on a lounge dictate to two amanuenses, who frequently had to stop writing, so funny the dictated passages heemed to them.

Balzac, in a monk's robe, frequently wrote from midnight till noon, taking draughts of strong coffee when drowsiness attacked him, and thus shortening his life by many years, no doubt.

Killed His Mother

Ossining, N. Y., April 12.-For the murder of his mother, Susan Carlin, in her home in Brooklyn, one year ago, Edward Carlin, aged 22, was put to death by electrocution in the Sing Sing prison early to-day. One shock of the current, consisting of 1,814 volts, only, was applied.

Carlin had been an inmate of charitable or reformatory institutions a greater part of his life, beginning in infancy when his father died. He blamed his mother for permitting him to remain in these institutions, and when he was released from the reformatory a year ago, immediately purchased a revolver, went direct to his mother's house, and killed her.
