BROTHER LANDS.
THE ENGLISHMAN TO THE AMERICAN.
No hostile stranger nations we,
To war with impious hands:
One land around a common sea,
One people in two hands.
In vain our kindred shores to part
Are waxes between us thrown:
The tide that warms a British heart
Is that which fills your own.
No beacon ranged on either beach
But like an angel stands:
To call new hopes from each to each,
And link our loving lands.
No ship that sails from either shore,
While to and fro it plies:
But weaves the thread of friendship o'er
The gulf that swith us lies.
No Pilgrims from our harbours part,
Or come with eager oars:
But give you more of England's heart,
And more to us of yours.
No song that soothes our children's rest
But unto yours is dear:
No lay that stirred our soldiers' breast
But yours have glowed to hear.
No flame that flashed on Britain's brow,
But gleams on yours alike:
Then, if ye can, abjure us now,
Forget it all—and strike!
—Ernest Jones.

VARIETIES.

Goethe once complained, that a certain writer "put too much water in his ink."

Why is a joiner less handsome than his wife? Kaze he is a deal plainer.

The people of Cincinnati are the benefactors of the human race; for they "lard the lean earth."

There is a lady in Boston, that is habitually so sleepy, that her curiosity cannot be awakened.

Hobbs the locksmith has picked one of Banquo's gory locks; he did it with a pickaxe. He is now at work on a wed-lock.

A CHILD'S SYMPATHY.—A child's eyes, those clear wells of undefined thought; what on earth can be more beautiful? full of hope, love and curiosity: In joy how sparkling, in sympathy how tender! The man who has never tried the companionship of a little child has carelessly passed by one of the greatest pleasures of life, as one passes a rare flower without plucking it or knowing its value. A child cannot understand you, you think; speak to it of the holy things of your religion, of your grief for the loss of a friend, of your love for some one you fear will not love you in return—it will take; it is true, no measure or sounding of your thought; it will not judge how much it should believe, whether you are worthy or fit to attract the love which you seek: but its whole soul will incline to yours, and engraft itself as it were, on your feelings for the hour.
Why is a cow's tail like the letter F? Because it is the end of beef.
Good FEELING.—There are excellent traits among the Irish. A gentleman of Cork received a challenge, which, though "one of the blazers," he declined accepting. His reason for refusing did him honor: "Niver," said he, "could I think of making his mother an orphan."

Why is a fly one of the tallest of insects? Because he stands over six feet without shoes or stockings.

Ruskin, in his last volume of Modern Painters, remarks upon the glasses as follows:—
"Observe the peculiar characters of the grass, which adapt it especially for the service of man, are its humility and cheerfulness. Its humility in that it seems created only for lowest service—appointed to be trod on, and fed upon. Its cheerfulness in that it seems to exult under all kinds of violence and suffering. You roll it, and it is stronger the next day; you mow it, and it multiplies its shoots, as if it were grateful; you tread upon it, and it only sends up richer perfume. Spring comes, and it rejoices with all the earth—glowing with variegated flame of flowers—moving in soft depth of fruitful strength. Winter comes, and though it will not mock its fellow-plants by growing there, it will not pine and mourn, and turn colorless and leafless as they. It is always green, and is only the brighter and gayer for the 'hoar-frost.'"

THE FIRST MARRIAGE.—ADAM'S WEDDING.—An English journal, the Britannian, has an amusing article under the head of "Adam's Wedding." The editor says, that he likes short courtship, and in this Adam acted like a sensible man—he fell asleep a bachelor, and awoke to find himself a married man. He appears to have "popped the question," immediately after meeting Ma'am Eve; and she, without flirtation or shyness, gave him a kiss, and herself. Of that first kiss in this world, we have had, however, our own thoughts, and sometimes in poetical mood have wished we were the man that did it. But the deed is or was done; the chance was Adam's and he improved it. We like the notion of getting married in a garden; it is in good taste. We like a private wedding, and Adam's was strictly private. No envious beaux were there, no croaking old maids, no chattering aunts, and grumbling grandmother. The birds of heaven were minstrels, and the glad sky shed its light upon the scene. One thing about the first wedding brings queer ideas into our heads, spite of scriptural truth. Adam and his wife were rather young to be married; some two or three years old, according to the sagacious speculation of theologians—mere babies—larger, but not older—without a house, without a pot or kettle—nothing but love and Eden!

A valuable horse, "Abdallah Chief," belonging to Austin Waters, and others, of Detroit, broke his leg a few days since, in springing up after rolling. He was bred by R. C. Roe, of Orange County, who sold him for $2,000. Mr. W., a few weeks since, was offered $3,000 for him. He was valued at $4,000, and was deemed one of the most beautiful animals in the country: After his leg was found to be broken, he was killed.

A PLEASING VARIETY.—A stage coach recently arrived in Sacramento, Cal., with a load of Californians, which may be taken as a sample of the travelling population. In it there were two convicts on their way to State Prison, a counterfeiter, a horse thief, a deputy sheriff, a slippery, crafty and prominent politician, an expressman, two county officers, a collector of foreign miners' tax, two negroes and four Chinamen.

She that marries a man because he is a "good match," must not be surprised, if he turns out "a Lucifer."
