turned overpowered by its strength. Here we have particular reference to the Telegraph. No stone was left unturned to make the agitation formidable as possible. The lawyers led the way by a lengthy petition setting forth the inconvenience it was to the traternity to be obcauses to Fredericton; and prayed for removal on that ground. Upon this list few eminent lawyers were found; worthless scoundrels.

The citizens then headed a petition asylum and the penitentiary, and some city.

They are working with might and main, using fair means and foul means, telling falsehoods and truths to accomplish their ends: we shall in return appeal to this country. which will make no uncertain sound if the question come before it. The Province, which is the people through their representatives, interests itself little in the contest between St. John and Fredericton: it looks upon the question as it affects the constitutencies as a whole.

But if as anticipating this turn of the and her preparation consists in falsehoods and mis-representation. The St John Sun is delegated to tell the city at that business; our pious friend of the Telegraph, upon whose reputation for early piety St. John relies much in this struggle, has been delegated for the misrepresentations. The following item taken from yesterday's Telegraph will serve to show the low opinion Mr. Elder has of the public intelligence:
