TORE UP HER PHOTO BEFORE JUDGE'S EYES

Criminal Libel Case Brought by Sir Frederick Borden Against Editor of Kentville Paper Develops into a Case of Mother Against Daughter—Sensational Scene in Court.

Kentville, N. S., Oct. 14.—The Crown hurled a bombshell at the defence in the Carruthers criminal libel case yesterday when they produced in court Miss Hester Chalcoeur, the woman who, it was alleged, had been enticed away from her home in Ottawa by Sir Frederick Borden, Minister of Militia. She was brought here to testify that she was not a prostitute, as charged by the defence, but a respectable woman who had been enticed away from her home in Ottawa by Sir Frederick Borden, Minister of Militia. She was brought here to testify that she was not a prostitute, as charged by the defence, but a respectable woman who had been enticed away from her home in Ottawa by Sir Frederick Borden, Minister of Militia.

Miss Chalcoeur's entry into court produced quite a flurry and her presence was unexpected by the defence, as they had no intimation of her being in town. Miss Chalcoeur, however, was the central figure in a sensational incident before she left the stand and started the judge and jury by tearing up a photograph of herself when it was handed to her for identification. She sent fragments of the card through the jury box, and assisted her financially and she denied everything that had been imputed against her.

It was a case of daughter against mother and the family shown was very great. Miss Chalcoeur is a daughter of Mrs. Allison, the star witness for the defence, and it was very interesting to hear her testimony. She was brought here to testify that she was not a prostitute, as charged by the defence, but a respectable woman who had been enticed away from her home in Ottawa by Sir Frederick Borden, Minister of Militia.
