Trade Union's Outburst Quelled.

In 1834 it was agreed by the Trade Unions at large that a grand assemblage of all the trades should take place in Copenhagen Fields on April 21, to procure the recall of the Dorsetshire labourers, who had been indicted at Dorchester Spring Assizes, under an obsolete statute, for belonging to an agricultural union, and sentenced to seven years' transportation.

It was among these Trade Unions a little band of ferocious conspirators—the "Glorious band," as they called themselves—who carried out, and determined to seize the Minister at the Home Office at the moment of reception, let in others, like the other officers, take the King and Queen prisoners, secure the Bank of England and the Tower. Lord Melbourne received warning of this and the Duke of Wellington made preparations. On the Sunday night twenty-nine pieces of artillery were brought and placed on the roof of the Government offices to command the streets, while large bodies of troops were brought in, and placed ready for action. By Monday morning all the Public offices were strongly guarded, the police stations filled with armed men, and five thousand householders sworn in as special constables. The Under Secretary—Mr. Phillips—received the deputation, and informed them that Lord Melbourne could not receive a deputation accompanied by a procession of thirty thousand men. So the petition was placed on a car

So the petition was placed on a car

all blue and crimson, and carried away, to be presented again in a quiet and orderly way, by a small deputation. The procession then proceeded to Kensington Common, and soon after broke up; and so ended the day of the Trades. No soldiers were seen in the streets, and scarcely a policeman; when London slept that night, the artillery and soldiers were conveyed away; and the next day the great city was as if nothing had happened. Public opinion bore so strongly upon the Dorsetshire Labourers' case that a free pardon was sent out to them, and they returned from Van Dieman's Land in 1837, to be escorted through the streets of London by another procession of the Trades.

Nfld. Poultry Association

MARCH EGG LAYING CONTEST.
At the regular monthly meeting of the Poultry Association held in the Board of Trade Room on Monday, Mr. R. J. Kroner was admitted to membership. This gentleman is going into the poultry business commercially, having recently purchased a farm on the Torbay Road owned by Mr. Courtney. He is now arranging to erect a model plant. Mr. Kroner will raise White Wyandottes. President G. R. Williams welcomed the new member after which Secretary W. D. McCarter read the following report on the Association's Egg laying competition for the month of March:—(1) White Wyandottes, 23%; (2) Rhode Island Red, 22; (3) White Wyandotte's, 17%; (4) White Leghorns (2 pens equal), 13%; (5) White Leghorns, (2 pens equal), 12%; (6) White Wyandottes, 9%; (7) Anconas, 8%; (8) White Leghorns, 6. The above is the average number of eggs per hen in the different pens. These pens contain different number of birds, fed according to the discretion of the owners. The plans of a model poultry house, submitted by Mr. McCarter were unanimously accepted, and the public will be given copies for a nominal sum. Mr. James Pike of Crabbes, was elected an Honorary Member of the Association in recognition of his work on the west side of the Island. Hon. President LeMesle, C. M. G., presented the Association with a prize for the egg laying contest. Arrangements were made to advertise hatching eggs this Spring. These will be sold at a low cost. A very interesting debate was held before the meeting adjourned.

An Imperial Shrine.

MAGNIFICENT MEMORIAL TO BE LOVED EMPEROR.

TOKIO, (Associated Press).—A visit to Japan's magnificent memorial building and park, dedicated to her beloved Emperor Meiji, is included on the program to be followed by the Prince of Wales during the week he will spend in Tokyo, as the guest of Prince Regent Hirohito and the Imperial Government. Although Emperor Meiji died just a decade ago, his mausoleum and the beautiful four-mile park surrounding it has taken a place in the hearts of the Japanese that is not rivalled by the reverence America holds for her Arlington Cemetery or England for her Westminster Abbey. This may be traced to the fact that the Meiji Shrine, unlike the national memorials of most other countries, is a product of the present generation. The millions of yen to construct it were raised by popular subscription and the tremendous amount of labor entailed was given by the young men of the nation.

JAPANESE MECCA.

The buildings are of pure Shinto architecture. The massive pillars and cross beams of the Torii, at the entrance to the shrine, were cut in the Arisan mountains of Formosa and brought to Tokyo. Scores of giant trees, gnarled and twisted by centuries, were taken bodily, with tons of their native earth, from the high-road between Kamakura and Kyoto and transplanted in Meiji park. Volunteer workers and freely given funds accomplished this almost Herculean task. Although the park was first opened to the public less than a year ago, millions of pilgrims from all parts of the empire have come here to pay their tribute of homage and respect.

A Spiritualist Converted.

Dr. A. D. Watson, a former president of the Toronto Society for Psychical Research, author of "The Twentieth Plane" and "Life Through Death," has changed his views on spiritualism. Some time ago, it was announced that he had severed relations with Louis Benjamin, the medium known by the "Twentieth Plane." Now Dr. Watson expresses the opinion that messages from mediums are usually unreliable or "faked," and that engaging in spiritism is positively dangerous to health. He will write another book giving expression to his revised opinions.
