THE CLEVELAND WEIGHS LESS THIS SEASON—BUT IT'S A STRONGER AND HANDSOMER WHEEL and it's the extreme in accuracy of manufacturing, finishing and inspecting—the ball and roller bearings are distinctive of this high grade machine—the skeleton gearcase is a neat, light and useful feature—the improved cones are most up-to-date—the automatic oiling device is a bit of clever mechanism—the hubs—the crown—the fork sides—chain, pin and bolt, all combine for durability and to make the best wheel—altogether the Cleveland is as close to perfection as bicycles go.

Massey-Harris

Bicycles 1900

Their very name is their guarantee—want proof of their staunchness?—want proof of their strength?—want them compared with other makes?—here's evidence from the Government "Blue Books"—the Victorian Government of Australia recently purchased a number of Massey-Harris Bicycles for use in its Cycle Postal Department—at about the same time the New South Wales Government purchased a number of American and other makes of wheels for similar service, and from statistics printed it is shown that it cost twenty times more for repairs on the American collection than for the Massey-Harris Bicycles—improvements and features in the 1900 models are not made for the sake of change, but in the everlasting trying to make the best wheel better—get a catalogue and study it.

Detroit Free Press: A good story is being told on Mike Heenan, the veteran detective of the Canadian division of the Michigan Central railroad. A train loaded with merchandise was sidetracked at a small country station and some one had broken open the cars and stolen part of the goods. Heenan was sent by the company to investigate the robbery and he decided to carry on his investigations under the guise of a farm laborer, as he was of the opinion that the theft had been committed by an old farmer that lived in the vicinity.

So the detective dressed in blue jeans and had a change of shirts tied up in a colored handkerchief. He walked from the nearest station, a distance of five miles, and arrived at the farmer's place near evening. To his request for work the farmer told him that he was in need of some person to hoe corn and that if Heenan wished he could commence in the morning. Mike jumped at the chance, and for three days from sunrise until dark, he labored in that field of corn.

While the other farm hands were sleeping Mike was keeping his detective eye open in hopes that he could find a clue to the missing goods. However, nothing suspicious was seen and Heenan decided on the fourth morning to quit his job and return home. Accordingly he told the farmer, "Sorry you are going but I'll try to get another man."

"I suppose you will be after paying me for me work in the corn field," said Mike.

"Not by a hanged grig," replied the farmer, with a fiendish grin, "the Michigan Central pays your salary."

Mike did not stop to ask the farmer where he had received his information, but slowly started for the railway, inwardly cursing the corn field and the hoe handle that had raised blisters all over his hands.
