The London Dockers' Union has issued

The London Dockers' Union has issued a manifesto forbidding any strike on account of the dock companies' proposed changes. The document expresses the conviction that the companies have no intention of enforcing a lockout or depriving the men of the benefits secured to them by the Mansion House agreement. It says that if any are unjustly dismissed they must complain to the union, which is now called upon to prove its stability by thorough discipline. The Manifesto expresses the belief that the co-operative system will be soon generally adopted.

while he depicted the enormous advantages that would result to the farmers, lumbermen, miners and fishermen of the Dominion from free access to the markets of 65,000,000 people, who, notwithstanding the absurd and heavy restrictions upon trade imposed by both Governments, were still our largest and best customers for the productions of our farms, forests, mines and fisheries. Full and absolute reciprocity would remove all the difficulties which were threatened by the McKinley Bill. Such a measure of reciprocity could without doubt be obtained, and when the next election came the farmer should vote for himself by voting for the men who, if placed in power, would make an honest and determined effort to obtain it.

At the close of his address Mr. Charlton was loudly cheered and warmly congratulated.
