

DECIMATING THEIR RANKS

Boer Force Reduced by 255
the Past Week.

Leyds Says the Execution of Scheepers Is Assassination.

Boers Send British Prisoners Back to Camp Stripped of Their Clothing.

London, Jan. 21.—Lord Kitchener reports that since Jan. 13, 21 Boers were killed, 13 were wounded, 170 were made prisoners and 41 surrendered.

BOERS BECOMING DEMORALIZED.

The correspondent of the Times at Pretoria says: Nearly every day produces evidence of demoralization of the Boers in the Transvaal. A petition bearing the signature of many prominent prisoners captured recently by the British, has been issued, imploring Botha to "END QUICKLY THE TERRIBLE WAR."

Commandant Trichard has also written Botha, telling him he must come quickly and talk with him. (Trichard's) commando, with his men are very much dissatisfied, threaten to surrender and will no longer listen to their immediate commander. Prisoners now falling into the hands of the British invariably seem relieved rather than otherwise at being captured. But it must not be inferred from this that the Boers are becoming demoralized. The only alternative is to continue the piling down process unintermittently. The great difficulty being met with by the British forces in these operations is want of horses. What is required apart from spare horses is large columns, only half the men being employed at night. It is impossible to require the men to stand more than three night marches weekly.

PATROL CUT UP.
A Cradock, Cape Colony, dispatch says: "We sent a commando of Boers on Saturday night last cut up a patrol of fifty men belonging to the local town guard, on the Tarkenton road. A few stragglers have returned. The remainder of the party are missing."

PROTEST FROM LEYDS.
Dr. Leyds, the European representative of the Transvaal, has addressed a protest to the powers against the execution of Boer Commandant Scheepers, whose death sentence, confirmed by Lord Kitchener, he describes as an assassination, justifying retaliation on the part of Gen. Botha and Dewet.

NO OVERTURES FOR PEACE.
The colonial secretary, Mr. Chamberlain, in the House of Commons yesterday, said there was no foundation for the reports that overtures for peace in South Africa had been made by the Boer envoys.

NATAL MENACED.
The Boers are concentrating once more on the Natal frontier. General Botha, with 1,500 men, is in the extreme south of the Vryheid district, with half his burgers at Inhlayez and the other half at Babanango. The enemy have one pom-pom and two field guns with them.

Surrendered Boers state that a great number of Botha's men are composed of Natal rebels, who will not hear of the surrender of their Transvaal brethren, although the latter are anxious to yield. Fifty of the Transvaal men attempted to come in the other day, but only ten escaped the vigilance of the Natal Boers.

CHARGED WITH FOUR MURDERS.
The Boer commandant Kritzinger, who was captured at Hanover Road, Cape Colony, about a month ago, is charged with four murders, in addition to train wrecking and cruelty to prisoners.

(Kritzinger was one of the most successful Boer leaders in guerrilla warfare in Cape Colony. It is asserted by some that he is really a rebel, and therefore a British subject. On Christmas Eve the Paris Rappel printed a dispatch from Durban, Natal, stating that Gen. Louis Botha, the Boer commander-in-chief, was holding up five British officers, and had notified Lord Kitchener that if Kritzinger was sentenced to death they would be shot.)

A Throat and Lung Treatment
That Has Been Largely Imitated, But Never Successfully Rivalled, is Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine.

There is no guesswork about the virtues of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. It has been before the people too long, and witnessed too many a battle fought on the lips of those who have been cured of their coughs and colds, to be considered an experiment of unknown value.

Year by year, as the fall and winter seasons come and go, the sale of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine increases steadily and rapidly. It has proven its remarkable value, won its laurels, and continues to lead the van as the most popular and most largely used cough and cold medicine of the country.

Children especially are fond of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, because it is sweet and pleasant to the taste, and quickly relieves and cures them when gasping for breath with choking-up air passages, or tearing the linings of the throat and bronchial tubes with a severe and painful cough.

Bronchitis, whooping cough, croup, sore throat and severe chest colds and painful coughs are relieved and cured promptly and thoroughly by this famous preparation. It also frees the asthmatic sufferer from the dreadful paroxysms which cause him such keen agony, and cures asthma, as has been proven in a hundred cases.

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine aids expectoration, clears the throat and air passages, soothes and heals the inflamed linings of the bronchial tubes, and cures every cough of every description. But it is far more than a mere cough cure, for its action is far-reaching, and it thoroughly removes the cause of the cough.

You cannot compare Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine with any remedy you ever used. It is unique as a treatment for colds and lung troubles. There are other preparations of linseed and turpentine put up in imitation of Dr. Chase's, and it is therefore important that you be careful when buying; 25 cents a bottle, family size, three times as much, 60 cents. At all dealers, or Edmanston, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Starts With a Cold.

Catarrh is a lingering cold which refuses to yield to ordinary treatment.

Catarrh usually starts with a cold in the head, and if left unchecked in this climate, rarely gets well of itself. As fresh colds are taken the disease spreads, getting deeper and deeper, creeping along the mucous membranes from nose to throat, from throat to windpipe, from windpipe to bronchial tubes, and from bronchial tubes to lung cells.

The mucous membranes all connect, one with another. Hence it is easy to spread from one part to another lined with this same membrane. This is why catarrh in the head soon affects the throat, and finally the stomach itself, bringing on chronic catarrh of the stomach, which is a most obstinate form of dyspepsia.

Everybody is now well agreed that catarrh is a blood disease, and not a local application simply gives temporary relief from the purely local symptoms without the remotest effect in staying the progress of the disease. There is a new preparation recently offered to the public that is apparently destined to do away with every form of catarrh treatment.

This new remedy is not a secret patent medicine, but is a large, pleasant-tasting tablet composed of blood root, red gum, and not a trace of opium, and other valuable and harmless specifics, which are taken internally and seem to have a remarkably beneficial effect upon the blood and mucous membranes, apparently eliminating the catarrhal poison from the whole system.

These tablets, while being pleasant, convenient and absolutely safe to use, have made cures in long-standing cases of catarrh that are little short of marvelous. They are sold by druggists under name of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, and any catarrh sufferer who has tried inhalers, lotions, ointments, salves, etc., and realizes their inconvenience and uselessness, will fully appreciate the difference between a mere palliative and a permanent cure after giving Stuart's Catarrh Tablets an impartial trial.

All druggists sell them at 50 cents for full sized package, and no matter where the catarrh is located, in the head, throat, lungs or stomach, Stuart's Catarrh Tablets will surely cure you, and the effective result of even a few days use.

THE GOVERNMENT'S WAR POLICY.
The first important debate began in the House of Commons last night, on an amendment to the address, moved by Frederick Cavley (Liberal), in reply to the speech from the throne. The debate called out Mr. Chamberlain, the colonial secretary, who vigorously took the field in defense of the war policy. The minister's statement that if, as Lord Rosebery's speech intimated, the Boers believed they could at any time secure a reprieve of Lord Kitchener, would be a serious blow to the government's programme was not without effect. It would not propose any general confiscation of property. Justice would be meted out for military offenses and other crimes, but there would be no interference with the government expected to extend the conquered people full political rights as soon as practicable.

Mr. Labouchere (Liberal) declined to support the amendment of Mr. Cavley. John Dillon (Irish Nationalist) proposed to omit the clause of the amendment providing funds to carry on the war, and add a clause denouncing the policy of the concentration camps.

Mr. Dillon's amendment was rejected by a vote of 283 to 64, the majority of the Liberals voting against it.

BOER BRUTALITY.
Ladybrand, Orange River Colony, Jan. 19.—Six Boers belonging to Major Heath's command were captured Friday. They were stripped by the Boers and sent back to camp naked. The captured British came into camp the other day without a shred of clothing, the Boers having relieved them of it, together with their horses, rifles and ammunition. Small batches of prisoners are arriving here daily from the columns operating near by. Major Heath captured six Boers north of Kurruksburg.

ENEMY REFUSED.
Small bodies of Boers have made many attempts lately to break through the line of posts and get into the southwestern district. On Thursday three separate attempts of this kind were repulsed. Col. Balfin's column, which is operating near Ficksburg, captured four Boers on Thursday. Col. Delisle has driven Commandant Maréchal's forces towards Doornburg.

Col. Doran's column attacked West's commando, 24 miles from Ricard, Cape Colony, Friday night. One Boer was killed and six others were captured. Three natives and a number of horses were also taken.

Why He Lost His Job.
[New York Post.]
Cameras and yellow journalism appear to be inseparable. Each of the yellow and some of the more conservative newspapers as well—maintains a photograph bureau, in charge of competent men, and the reporters regularly arm themselves with cameras, as well as with "copy" paper when sent out on a story. In one local office the craze for pictures has about reached the limit, as this true tale will show. A reporter was discharged last week; no reason was given. He was curious to know why his services had been dispensed with, and sent a mutual friend to the editor. "Yes," wrote good stuff. We had no fault to find with him in that respect," the explanation came. "But, you see, he got us so few photographs!"

JOTTINGS FROM NEAR-BY PLACES.

STRATHROY
Advertiser Agent, J. D. Meekison. Strathroy, Jan. 21.—Mrs. Henderson, of London, is visiting her brother, W. Fawcett, Front street.

The numbers constituting the programme rendered at the meeting of the Collegiate Literary Society, Tuesday, Jan. 17, were excellent, as usual. The readings by Messrs. D. Wyatt and H. Oum were laugh-provoking, the latter showing his moving from the throne. The musical selections by the Misses Flossie and Stella Thomas and C. Lenfesty were much appreciated, as were also the choruses by the ladies. Visitors are welcome, and are promised a good entertainment. Meeting commences at 8:30 Fridays.

At the last regular meeting of Court Steadfast, No. 8419, J. A. Steele, the secretary of the lodge, handed in his resignation, and J. R. Nicholson was in consequence appointed to that post.

May I Send You A Book?

I will mail you any book from the list below if you send me your address. With it I will send an order on your nearest druggist for six bottles of Dr. Chase's Restorative. If you think that you need it after reading this book, you are welcome to take it a month at my risk. If it cures, pay your druggist $5.00. If it fails, I will pay him myself.

This remarkable offer is made after a lifetime's experience. I have learned how to strengthen the entire nervous system, that nerve that alone operates every vital organ. I make each organ do its duty by bringing back its nerve power. No case is too difficult. I take the risk in all.

In five years 550,000 people have accepted this offer, and 39 in each 40 paid. They paid because the cure was so good. No druggist accepts a penny otherwise. The decision is left with you.

Note that if my Restorative cures, the cost is a trifle. If it fails, it is free. Can you neglect such an offer when 39 out of 40 who write me are cured?

Simply state which book you want and name of your dealer. The books are: Book No. 1 on Druggists; Book No. 2 on the Heart; Book No. 3 on the Kidney; Book No. 4 for Women; Book No. 5 for Men (weekly); Book No. 6 on Rheumatism.

The order will hold their anniversary banquet in J. Brown's dining parlor on the evening of the 23rd inst.

The annual congregational meeting of St. Andrew's Church will be held in the basement of the church next Tuesday evening.

Mr. Truman Morgan left last week to attend Stratford Business College.

Mr. W. G. Meekison has accepted a position in Guelph.

THORNDALE

Thorndale, Jan. 20.—A very pleasant evening was spent last Thursday at the rectory of St. George's Church, Thorndale, given under the auspices of the Christian Workers. A fine and varied programme was carried out.

Mr. Ed. Wright filling the capacity of chairman in a very capable manner. In the course of the evening speeches were called for from Mr. Salter, Mr. Ed. Wright, Mr. John Taylor, Mr. Campbell, Dr. Hughes and Mr. Ben Harding, whose impromptu address was both witty and clever.

At the close of the evening, and everyone present declared it one of the most enjoyable socials tendered. The young ladies deserve great credit for making it such a success.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

Marks' Brothers Company "Stood Em Up" at the London.

The "Standing Room Only" sign was called into use early in the hour before the performance at the London Opera House last night, and when the curtain went up every seat in box, orchestra, balcony and gallery was filled, while dozens had been turned away.

The evening was the opening of a two weeks' engagement by the Marks Bros. Company, under the management of Mr. J. H. Marks. The bill for the evening was "The Inkeeper's Daughter," and the audience with the manner of its presentation.

An especially good feature were the specialties. The first of these, a leading vaudeville circuit, gave one of the best acts seen on a local stage this season.

famous novel, "The Sky-Pilot," a tale of the foot-hills. Mr. Armstrong tells the story of "The Sky-Pilot," while over 200 beautifully colored views are flashed upon the screen. The many enterprising views for "The Sky-Pilot" were taken by himself last summer in the far west, where the scenes of the story are laid. Subscribers to the Metropolitan Course are promised this evening one of the best numbers in the entire series.

"VANITY FAIR."
Notable in the season's attractions is the production of "Vanity Fair," with Gertrude Coghlan as Becky Sharp, at the Grand on Saturday (matinee and night). Miss Coghlan is by nature an actress, being the daughter of the late Charles Coghlan, and a relative of the other famous footlight favorites bearing the name. Besides possessing the talents which have been hereditary in the family, Gertrude's father, in his desire to have her shine among America's leading actresses, devoted much time and pains in carefully preparing her for the stage. Miss Coghlan's success proves her to be an artist of a high order.

"IN A WOMAN'S POWER."
The secret service, the most exclusive of the many enterprises of the United States Government, is the theme of the new melodrama, "In a Woman's Power," which will be at the Grand next Monday evening. Many new sensations and effects are attempted in this production, including the railroad scene, showing the robbery of an express car while the train is moving at a high rate of speed. A good company has been engaged.

DR. HARBOTTLE WAS CONVICTED

Of Shooting With Intent To Do Bodily Harm.

Outcome of the Sensational Affair at Burford—The Doctor Sentenced to a Year in Prison.

Brantford, Ont., Jan. 20.—Dr. Harbottle of Burford, was charged at the courthouse today with shooting H. Stuart, of Burford, with intent of doing bodily harm. The doctor pleaded not guilty, and wanted to be tried at once. Judge Hardy presided.

H. Stuart, the first witness, was standing on a corner when the doctor came up. They walked together to the postoffice. When coming up the doctor followed up behind him, the doctor caught up with him and walked together for a few rods. No conversation passed between them. When the corner was reached, the doctor turned in front of him and took a pistol out of his pocket and fired, the bullet striking witness on the right temple. He picked up his hat and went to a doctor's room.

Of the shot he was confined to the house for two weeks. At the time of Lady-smith's relief there were no hostile demonstrations against the doctor, who was believed to be a Boer sympathizer. The doctor had some of the offenders fined. He (Stuart) was one of the losing witnesses, and there might be some feeling since that.

On cross-examination witness said the doctor's residence had been damaged on one occasion during British victories, also at other times. The doctor had been abused by resident boys. The doctor and he were never on good speaking terms.

Joe Porter, the next witness, testified that he saw the shooting. Saw the doctor overtake Stuart at the corner, where a number of people were standing in conversation. He was standing on the corner when Stuart reached it. He halted. Harbottle took a pace forward and fired. There was a conversation between the two men. The witness swore that while the doctor and Stuart were walking together from the postoffice, some one cried out, "Fire up, Stuart." Witness also testified to the doctor's property being considerably damaged.

THE DEFENSE.
Ann Harbottle, for the defense, started to give evidence in regard to injuries to her father's property at different times, when discussion arose between the prosecuting attorney over evidence of earlier circumstances. The judge ruled in favor of the prosecution, that earlier annoyances should not be considered in the affair.

Dr. Harbottle, the prisoner, testified that he was continually annoyed by residents of the village. Stones were thrown at his door, and his life was never out of danger. Misses had been thrown through his window. In his endeavor to protect his property he had been kept up at night. On the streets of the village he had been insulted, yelled at and threatened.

At parties she arrives early, so as to be useful, if called upon to give the slightest help. She generally succeeds in introducing guests to the people who have not the slightest desire of making acquaintance and young couples who are not in the least anxious to dance together. As long as the guests keep arriving she takes her post just behind the hostess or close by her side. People ask themselves who she is, whether she is a party hostess, or a kind smile for everyone. She is a regular society stager, up to every trick, and feels she is indispensable, that at every moment she is needed, the rescue of the hostess, set her out of every possible little difficulty. She knows everybody. She is a living encyclopedia of names.

When the party is complete she disappears from the side of the hostess, who begins to breathe more freely. She disappears, but she does not go. She finds that she still may be able to render thousands of services, and the immediately sets about it. Her most objectionable habit is that of rendering services. It is a disease, but a disease that keeps her in good health and cheerful spirits. Now she multiplies drawing rooms, dancing rooms and refreshment rooms. In the reports given of parties in the society papers, she is thus described: "Mrs. A., with a graceful smile for everyone, was everywhere." In England they say, "was ubiquitous." And so she is.

In the refreshment rooms she sees that everyone gets something to eat or drink; she suggests to such and such men that Mrs. B., or Lady C., has had nothing; then she makes an introduction, and by and by she is introduced to the hostess: "Poor Mrs. B., or 'Poor Lady C.' I found that no one was paying any attention to her, so I introduced her to you, and I got her something to eat." And the hostess whispers back: "So kind of you." You cannot get rid of her, because she never gives you an opportunity for quarreling. She is not a gossip, much less of a wicked tongue. On the contrary, she speaks well of everyone, and gives you a good turn, and of this constantly getting on your nerves, you might like her, even get very fond of her.

At home she rules husband, children, servants and all things therein. She has advice ready for every trouble, a cure for every indisposition, a solution for every problem. She knows what is good for her husband much better than he does himself, and expects him to be grateful for the unceasing interest she takes in him and his well-being.

She is honestly persuaded that he owes everything in life to her skill, her "push," and her diplomacy, and she would resent any promotion, he might get outside of her influence. The fact that she is married helps to make her most people think that, after all, they must be thankful for their lot, which might have been much worse. They reflect that they might be married to her.

Other witnesses gave evidence that the prisoner was incessantly tormented by residents of the village. In coming out of the postoffice, he tried to avoid Stuart, but could not, and he was crowded and elbowed in his anger, he discharged the pistol; intended to be an expert pistol shot; intended to make a swift fire, and kill and maim Stuart, with the intention of frightening him.

When questioned in regard to his motive for firing, he said that he believed the act would bring pressure to bear upon the authorities, and measures would be taken to prevent any further annoyance. The doctor's son testified to damage to his father's house. He had seen Stuart tormenting his father, and heard Stuart call him objectionable names.

The judge addressed the prisoner on the seriousness of the crime and sentenced him to one year in Central Prison.

A NUISANCE OF SOCIETY.
M. Max O'Rell Writes Concerning Madame Ubiquitous.

She Is One of Those Beings Who Make One Exclaim: "O, Save Us From Our Friends!"

[Max O'Rell.]
The meddling woman is not a bad woman, not even an objectionable woman. She is a bit of a nuisance, though she is often pleasant and cheerful
