Forty-Two Inches Going Over CARNEGIE TRUST CO. Springbank Dam at 2:30 This Afternoon.

At 2:30 this afternoon there were 42 inches of water going over Springbank dam. This is nearly two feet less than yesterday, and Engineer Simmie reports that the water is steadily receding. The rain of Sunday night had a great deal to do with the flood of yesterday, although there is still a lot of snow in some parts of the country. North of London the snow has not disappeared by any means, and in some of the woods and in marshy places there is a lot of water and ice yet to come. It is not anticipated, however, that there will be any trouble.
