

of the families of those diplomatic agents and/or consular officers referred to in section (i) shall enjoy privileges and immunities only insofar as these are granted to them by the Secretary of State for External Affairs."

PART II ADMINISTRATIVE ARRANGEMENTS

(a) Personnel of Missions

1. Arrivals and Departures of Diplomatic and Consular Representatives

All arrivals and departures of diplomatic and consular personnel shall be formally notified, by note from the diplomatic mission, without delay, to the Department of External Affairs. Notices of arrivals of foreign representatives should be accompanied by the following information:

- residence address and telephone number; date of arrival in Canada; biographical notes and a statement as to whether the appointee is an addition to the mission staff; if not, the name of his predecessor; and his rank in the order of precedence. Missions may submit at the same time an application for multiple entry "acceptances" and identity cards for the new appointee and members of his family (see below). Such applications, however, cannot be considered unless supported by an official notification setting out the above-mentioned information.

Notification of departures should similarly be made to the Department within a week's time, indicating the exact date of departure from Ottawa and returning identity (and other) cards.

N.B. Non-resident missions should note that this procedure (as well as the one for securing identity cards) should be followed for all personnel accredited to Canada.

2. Identity Cards and Multiple Entry "Acceptances"

Identity cards and multiple entry "acceptance" are issued by the Department of External Affairs to all career members of diplomatic missions and consular offices on application by the diplomatic mission of the country concerned. Cards and "acceptances" are also issued to the spouses of the above-described persons, to children over the age of 16 living with their parents, and to members of their household staff.

These may be obtained by completing, in duplicate the "Application for identity card and multi-entry "acceptance" forms which are available from the Protocol Division of External Affairs (photocopies are not acceptable).
