Everywhere the enemy resistance was most determined, especially along the Marne, where they still hold some points along the banks of the river, probably hoping that by keeping possession of them as long as possible to save some of their immense stores of ammunition and other materiel.

Southwest of Rheims the British and French have been fighting the Germans incessantly for five days. The Germans are going their utmost in this vicinity to prevent the pivot movement of their armies as retreating northward.

FLEET OF U-BOATS ATTACKS JUSTICIA

From Three to Eight Submarines in Fight With Steamer.

London, July 24.—From three to eight submarines are said to have been concerned in the attack on the Justicia, according to The Daily Mail, which says the fight began at three o'clock Friday afternoon and lasted intermittently until Saturday morning.

When the liner was first struck the torpedo boat destroyers which accompanied her, raced to attack the enemy, and dropped many depth charges, while patrol boats stood by the ship, and a tug took her in tow.

The second and third torpedoes were fired about five o'clock in the afternoon. Both missed their marks, one going ahead of the steamer and the other aft. Two hours later another torpedo was seen coming, but when it got close a gunner on the Justicia with extraordinary aim, hit it clean and exploded it.

All was quiet until 8 o'clock in the evening when the fifth torpedo was sighted. The gunners on the Justicia placed their shots so near it that the torpedo was deflected and missed its target.

Most of the crew by this time had been transferred to other ships which had remained near the liner all night. The Justicia was now on her way to port. Saturday morning on toward 8 o'clock the gunners again were at work, and a sixth and seventh torpedoes went past. Two hours later a submarine fired the eighth and ninth torpedoes, and one of them struck forward and the other aft.

Walking into the guard room at West Dundas street station last night, Sarah Bennett, who says she lives on Beverley street, calmly announced to Sergt. Craig, who was on duty, that she was "good and drunk." She was under the circumstances the sergeant thought it would be best to detain the woman.

WAR SUMMARY

THE DAY'S EVENTS REVIEWED

In the fighting of the Aisne salient the allies yesterday made their principal effort, and achieved further gains on the twelve-mile front between the Rivers Ourcq and Marne. The combat raged furiously during the day. On their left, and immediately behind the Ourcq the French gained immense victories in the remains of Chalet Wood, and, passing eastward, they occupied Becy Village. In the centre French and American troops advanced at some points for a distance of about two miles. Desperate fighting continued in the region of Epieds Village and Trugny, where the German recovered there, but the allies later drove them out, and pursued them beyond Courpion. On the right the allies made considerable progress north of Charleville and Jaulgonne, penetrating Fere Forest. Further east, they extended their bridgehead over the Marne at Treloup, and occupied the south corner of Ris Forest. In this advance they captured five cannon and 50 machine guns, besides considerable war materiel. From the front from the Marne to Rheims the chief event was intermittent artillery actions. The French have occupied the Bois de Rheims, south of Courmays, and taken seven hundred prisoners.

No official news came last night from the British sector west of the Rheims mountain. In this region the British have advanced on a front of some 15 miles, and have captured the Rheims-Fismes railway, and now they have it under range from guns of heavy and medium calibre. Their success in this regard was further enhanced by the capture of the remains of large sectors with materiel, ammunition and reinforcements.

The general situation up till last night was that the allies had reduced the Aisne salient to about one-half its former size. The remains of the Germans inside the salient was still full of danger. The enemy, however, for various reasons, had decided against a retirement from the Marne to the Cerise River. His tenure of the salient hung on a slender thread, the railway from the Ourcq to the Cerise. The French and Americans had reduced their distance from the railroad of this line at Nanteuil by about two miles. Their wedge driven south of the Ourcq is now forming a

SPECIAL MUSIC FOR "HEARTS OF THE WORLD"

The presentation of a motion picture of such a magnitude as D. W. Griffith's "Hearts of the World," which starts an engagement at the Allen Theatre on Saturday, entails a large amount of detail work which is not one thought of by the average patron.

This is true of the special music which has been arranged for "Hearts of the World." It was necessary for Mr. Romanelli, who is the Allen Concert Orchestra, to make a trip to New York to study the musical setting as presented at the "Forty-fourth Street Theatre" during its production. After a week's careful observation, Mr. Romanelli returned to the city with a good deal of material for his musical setting of the picture in Toronto, and has provided for many improvements over the New York setting.

Mrs. Romanelli has enlarged his orchestra to thirty pieces, in order to have the proper setting and variety of instruments for a film production of the magnitude of "Hearts of the World." In order that the opening performances on Saturday may be most auspicious, the orchestra has been put through a series of rehearsals being brought up to the highest standard of perfection.

"The Firefly of France." A picture of most timely interest is the attraction at the Allen Theatre today and tomorrow. The plotting and intrigue of the picture, which America and France is forcibly shown in "The Firefly of France," more so than any other previous motion picture production. Wallace Reid, who is seen as the young American who becomes entangled in the plotting of a Hun spy, but is able to finally capture them, together with important military papers. A special solo by Luigi Romanelli, violinist par excellence, is a feature of the musical program.

U-BOATS FRUSTRATED

INFORMATION ASKED OF GENERAL HOARE

Coroner Has Written for Report on Systems in Aviation Camps.

As Coroner Winnett thought that the jury in reaching a verdict regarding the death of Lieut. A. W. Hill should also have an opportunity of expressing their opinion on the conditions at aviators in general, and this could only be done after taking into consideration a report which is to be submitted by Brigadier-General C. H. Hoare, no decision was reached last night when the inquest, which had been adjourned from Wednesday last, was resumed.

Lieut. Hill was killed when his machine crashed into the ground at Armour Heights aerodrome on July 13. According to the camp doctors who had seen the body at the time the aviator had been instantly killed, but as the machine had caught fire the body was badly burned before it could be removed from the wreckage. It had been said that Lieut. Hill had been out late the night before the accident and was suffering from brain fatigue when he attempted his fatal flight.

Only three witnesses were heard, one of them being Captain J. Leach, M.C., in command at Armour Heights, who had testified at the last sitting of the jury. The other two witnesses were produced to testify as to whether the late Lieut. Hill had been absent from the camp late the night before the fatal accident. Both Lieutenants W. V. Martin and G. K. Berry stated they knew Hill had been in camp early that night and had retired about 10:30. Lieut. Martin said he was roommate of Hill's and on the night before the fatal accident occurred he remembers Hill coming into the room he occupied with three others, and saying he was going to turn in early as he was to make an early flight the following morning. In fact, he had seen him dress and get ready for bed. This was about 10:30.

Lieut. Gordon King Berry testified that he was playing cards on the Friday night in the senior officers' quarters, and Lieut. Hill stood behind him following the game, although he took no part in it. He told witnesses, about 10 o'clock, he would retire early as he had to make an early flight in the morning. Hill had left for his own quarters a few minutes later.

Captain J. Leach, M.C., commander at Armour Heights, said men there were picked aviators from other camps. They were taught all the details of the game, some of the most dangerous ones, so that they might keep control of their machines under all conditions. Accidents, he stated, were very rare, but cases of errors in judgment on the part of the aviators themselves; there might be engine trouble also, but the planes themselves were always in perfect condition, without the slightest defect.

Analysis of Flights. He produced records showing that in 200 flights there had been only one crash, with one fatal accident, and four men taken to the hospital. The greater number of accidents happened to men who could not read the instruments, and thought they had mastered the art. Most accidents were caused by sudden turning, or "steep bank" when too close to the ground. Although aviators had to be taught to fly low as well as high, they were not supposed to do so simply for the sport of the thing. He had seen eight accidents himself and at least five were due to too sudden turning on the field when flying low. Lieut. Hill did not believe an airplane would catch fire unless its engines had been ground off before it struck the ground.

This concluded the evidence and the coroner said that a great many people had got the idea that the dead aviator at the aerodromes was altogether excessive. In fact, an aviator who had returned from England recently when he had got the idea that the dead aviator was altogether excessive. In fact, an aviator who had returned from England recently when he had got the idea that the dead aviator was altogether excessive. In fact, an aviator who had returned from England recently when he had got the idea that the dead aviator was altogether excessive.

INCREASE IN RENTS IS FULLY JUSTIFIED

For the purpose of finding whether the rent increases of the Toronto Housing Co. were justified Commissioner Bradshaw recently examined the company's books and yesterday presented his report to the board of control. Mr. Bradshaw finds that the average rents in 1917, the charges apart from depreciation will probably exceed the revenue, $3,271,000 at Spruce Court the revenue and the charges for the current year will amount to $3,271,000. The increase in operating expenses, he adds, "have chief arisen in the items of taxes, water, heating and labor." The percentage of increase in rents at Riverdale is 10 per cent; at Riverdale, 12 per cent; at Spruce Court, 16 per cent; at Spruce Court, 16 per cent; at Spruce Court, 16 per cent.

Mr. Bradshaw says: "The necessity for increased rents is fully established. Although the shareholders have invested $46,670 they have received no return whatever."
