

CANADA'S CASE AT
GENOA CONFERENCE
OF SHIPPING MENQuestions of Inland Waterways and Fishing Industry
Were Held Over.

THOMAS ROBB'S VIEWS

Absence of U. S. Representative Was Prejudicial to Canadian Interests.

London, July 23.—Canada's case as it was presented to the International Seamen's conference at Genoa last week was outlined to your correspondent today by Thomas Robb, secretary of the Shipping Federation, Montreal, who represented the shipowners and general shipping interests of the Dominion at the conference. Mr. Robb expressed the opinion that the inability of the conference to come to any practical agreement regarding the question of hours by no means implied that the discussions were fruitless, inasmuch as it succeeded in arriving at an agreement on a draft of conventions relating to the minimum age for employment in ships and for securing a seaman's right to compensation in case of his ship being lost, and the conference also adopted important recommendations in regard to the drawing up of an international code for seamen, for provision of insurance against unemployment, and other questions directly affecting the daily life of the seafaring community.

So far as Canada was concerned the absence of any United States representatives was felt especially to be a serious defect. When the question arose as to how far workers employed in the fishing industry and inland waterways should be included in the conference, Mr. Robb, addressing the conference, pointed out that Canada and the United States have large lakes which form adjacent boundaries to the two nations. "These lakes," he said, "are navigated by United States and Canadian vessels, and it is most essential in view of the fact that these matters only concern the United States and Canada, that they should be dealt with by these two countries. Before any action is taken by the conference I think we should hear from our United States friends; therefore, I most strongly protest against any recommendation being made from this conference."

Mr. Robb added that his colleague, Mr. Desbarats, deputy minister of the department of naval service, explained to the conference that there are two different laws in Canada, one for the great lakes and rivers, and another for small ones, besides the law for coast traffic. "If Canada is obliged to have three or four laws for inland navigation, it will be still more difficult to agree on one rule for inland navigation for the whole world," was the argument of Mr. Desbarats. Mr. T. Gauthier, delegate for the Canadian seamen, pointed out that Canada used in inland navigation vessels as large as 12,000 tons, to which he contended, the same rules should be applied as to ships for ocean navigation, and he believed the same rules should be applied to vessels below 2,000 tons; otherwise it would be impossible to find seamen willing to go on board the latter if they did not enjoy the same privileges as such on larger vessels.

As regards the fishing industry, the proposition discussed was how far should the workers employed in this industry be included in the decisions of the conference. On this matter, as also on that of inland waterways, the conference eventually decided that control should be vested in the permanent international labor office at Geneva. Any proposals that office may have to suggest to be submitted at the next conference.

SOLDIERS' MEMORIAL

Oil Springs Pays Honor To Memory of Its Brave Men.

OIL SPRINGS, July 22.—In the presence of a large assemblage the soldiers' memorial in Memorial Square was dedicated today to the memory of twelve soldiers of the village and vicinity who fell in the war. Memorial medals were presented by Brig.-Gen. Panet of London to the survivors of the 28 men who went from the village to the front, and to the next of kin of the twelve who made the final sacrifice.

Addresses were delivered by Messrs. P. F. Pardee, M. P., J. E. Armstrong, M. P., J. N. Veale, M. P., P. P., the warden of Lambton, ex-Mayor Strit of Petrolia, and others.

Three necessities.

The unveiling was performed by Capt. Johnston MacAdams of Sarria, formerly commanding officer of the Third Infantry Brigade, whose dedication address took the form of a brief reference to the true character of the Canadian private soldier, which he said was obscured by the soldierly silence maintained by the disciplined men, while others of less merit or experience maintained no such reticence. He spoke of the army which are lacking in civilian life. Three things the Canadian corps furnished us which civilian life must furnish or fail: Meditated plans and policies known to all; leadership based on unselfishness, of which bravery in war was but a form, and comradeship common to all.

Mr. Pardee made a broad and telling appeal based on the sacrifices of the war, urging the alignment of good citizenship on the side of constituted authority, which at no time required strengthening more than in the present time of reconstruction. He expressed his pride in the noble memorial that had been erected at a cost large indeed for the small municipality, and the deepest sympathy that so many had fallen in the field.

The monument is a handsome monolith of grey granite, bearing a life-size statue representing young Canadian manhood, bearing in its hand a broken shield. The following are the names inscribed:

Oil Springs.

Private John Wilson, Somme.

Sergeant M. J. Willoughby, Somme.

SAYS PENITENTIARY
RUINS MEN'S HEALTH

TORONTO, July 22.—Mayor Church has forwarded to Sir Henry Drayton an appeal for reformed methods of handling prisoners in Kingston Penitentiary. He stated that he was in hopes that the Union Government would take up this matter in a big way.

The mayor's letter says in part: "The reason I write is that we have a great many of our own citizens in this institution, who go down there in good health and come back with their health ruined for life, owing to the methods in use there.

"They are human beings, and I think you will agree with me that the housing in this and other similar institutions is deplorable. If there was a scarcity of land in Canada there might be some object for it.

"I also object to youths of 16 and 17 being sent to this institution."
