Before the debate began, Premier Lloyd George announced that he would at an early date ask leave to introduce a bill "to amend the provisions for the government of Ireland." The premier's announcement of the probable early appearance of the home rule measure was greeted with cheers.

An Imposing Ceremonial. The full ceremonial attending the opening, the first since 1914, was witnessed by many thousands of people who lined the streets thru which the King and Queen and their suite passed.

The route of the royal possession thru the Mall and down Whitehall for more than a mile, was lined by miliin khaki, the guards regiments not having as yet resumed their scarlet uniforms. The guded state coach in which the King and Queen rode was drawn by siz black horses, with postilioned out-riders, while the five state language which followed carried pages of honor, the King's private secretary, equerries, the comptroller, treasurer and other members of the royal household. Each landau was drawn by six bays.

Half an hour before the procession passed thru the streets, the crown crown and sword of state were borne in royal carriage, surrounded by lifeguards, from the lord chamberlain's office at St. James' Palace to the house of tords, There were two guards of honor at Buckingham Palace, and another guard, with the state colors and a regimental band, outside the parliament buildings, from the tower of which the royal standard was raised, when the sovereigns entered.

A large group of state dignitaries, in regalia and bearing emblems of their offices, were gathered at the royal entrance beneath Victory Tower to receive the King and Queen. As the procession proceeded the royal salute of 21 guns was fired by a battery of the Royal Horse Artillery, stationed in St. James' Park, close by.

The King's Speech. King George, in opening the speech from the throne, said:
"My ords and members," instead of the customary "My lords and gentlemen," this innovation being necessi tated for the first time at the prorogation of parliament in December by the election of Lacy Astor to a seat in the house of commons.

Serious consideration of economic conditions thruout the country was urged in the speech. The King, how ever, counseiled patience in the pas-sage of far-reaching reforms, which he said, were necessary to meet abnormal conditions.

Better educational facilities, settlement of the Irish question, adjust-ment of coal mining controverses on enduring basis and the regulation of the liquor traffic, were asked for King George, who also advocated passage of measures stimulating the growth of more tooustuffs at nome. Condition of Ireland. "The condition of Ireland causes me grave concern, but a bill will be immediately laid before you to give effect to proposals for a better govern ment of the country, which was outlined at the end of the last session of parliament. A bill to make further provision for education in Ireland will also be submitted. Absence of facilities for education for a considerable of the child population of certain districts, makes the question one of urgency, but care will be taken to make the measure campatible with the home rule bill,

"Despite increased agricultural production during the war, the populations of these islands are still dangerously dependent upon supplies of food from overseas, and the financial burden of purchasing such supplies in foreign markets against the adverse rate of exchange is very great.

'Uneasiness is also being caused by the unprecedented sale of landed property since the war. A measure will: any hardship which this operation may cause those who occupy the soil, and to stimulate and develop production of essential foodstuffs within the United Kingdom.

After briefly referring to the peace conference, His Majesty said he in tended shortly to ratify peace with Bulgaria and Austria. The negotiations for peace with Turkey, he added, were "being pressed forward with all possible speed." Referring to the recent conference in Paris and London;

Full Peace Must Be Restored. "I earnestly trust that as the result of these meetings a settlement of the long-continued Adriatic dispute will shortly be reached. In order, however, to assure the full blessings of peace and prosperity to Europe, it is essential that not only peace but normal conditions of life should be restored, in eastern Europe and in Russia. So long as those vast regions withhold their full contribution to the stock of commodities for general consumption, the cost of living can hardly be reduced or general prosperity be restored to the world. "The imperative and difficult problems which have risen in the coal mining industry should be settled on an enduring basis. You will be asked to consider a proposal for the acquisition of goal royalties by the state, for the improvement of conditions in the mining areas and for the future ordering of the industry." His majesty's reference to the liquor regulation question was: "Experience during the war showed the clearly injurious effects upon the national efficiency of the execessive consumption of strong drink and the amelioration, in both health and efficiency, which followed appropriate measures of regu-lation and control. A bill accordingly will be presented to you, providing for the development of a suitable system for the peace-time regulation of the sale and supply of alcoholic liquor."

Among the bills which the King said would be introduced were measures for the after-war organization of the army and the navy, for the creation of an adequate supply of cheap electric and water power, and a bill dealing with the reform of the house of com

This official's confidence in the outcome of today's plebiscite in the northern zone is shared by all the pro-Danish population, and few Germans dispute the claim of victory, tho they are unwilling to accept the Danish stimates of their majority.

Beyond Flensburg, after crossing the zone frontier, almost every farm use along the road to Apenrade displays flags, usually Danish, but in Apenrade the German and Schleswig-Holstein colors compete with the Dan-ish flag in every street. Apenrade, a city of 10,000, in the heart of the zone, is believed to be almost equally divided in sentiment, and if trouble occurs in connection with the balloting today this is the logical place for it.
