

Poetry.

The following pleasant deu d'oeuvre appears in the Life of RICHARD HANCOCK, D. D. Lord Bishop of Calcutta, recently published by his widow. It serves to show that this extraordinary man could, as his commentator well observes, "write very good verse, which none but quick and clever men can do."

SYMPATHY.

A knight and a lady once met in a grove, While each was in quest of a fugitive love; A river ran mournfully murmuring by, And they wept in its waters for sympathy. "O never was knight such a sorrow that bore!" "O never was maid so desponding before!" "From life and lifeless, let us instantly fly, And join in the company!" "They searched for an eddy that suited the dead— But here was a noble and there was a weed; "How tiresome it is!" said the fair with a sigh; So they sat down to rest them in company. They gazed on each other, the maid and the knight; How fair was her form, and how goodly his height; "One mournful embrace!" said the youth, "and I'll be so kissing and crying next company."

THE PROUD DUKE OF SOMERSET AND THE PAINTER.—His grace was himself a patron of art, and did not obtain his name without cause. He had employed James Seymour to paint the figures—artists say portraits—of his horses at Petworth, and condescended to sit with his humble namesake at table. One day at dinner his grace filled his glass, and saying with a suzer, "Cousin Seymour, your health, drink it off." "My Lord," said the artist, "I believe I have the honour of being related to your Grace." The proud peer rose from the table, and ordered his steward to dismiss the presumptuous painter, and employ a humbler brother of the brush. This was accordingly done; but when the new painter saw the spirited works of his predecessor he shook his head, and retiring said, "No man in England can compete with James Seymour." The Duke now condescended to recall his discarded artist. "My Lord," was the answer of Seymour, "I can now prove to the world that I am of your blood—A good cause!"—Familial Library: Lives of British Painters and Sculptors, Vol. III.

FEMALE STRIKE FOR WAGES.—On Wednesday last, the farmers of the parish of Ouseley, Wilts, agreed to reduce the wages of the female hay-makers from tenpence to ninepence per day; which caused general dissatisfaction among them, and some of them assembled next morning at the bell, and told the bell. Their numbers soon increased to between 60 and 70; when a resolution was passed, that they would not return to their work till the old price of tenpence per day should be obtained from their employers!—Bath Chronicle.

When Lord Thurlow was created a peer, the proper officer of the herald's College waited on him for his pedigree, that it might be presented to the House of Peers in the customary manner. Lord Thurlow's stern nature could never yield to any exposure of the meanness of his origin, for his father was an honest weaver at Norwich. The oft repeated question respecting his father was at last varied by the Herald to "What was your mother's name?" "I cannot tell" was the only surly reply, and this reply is now recorded in the House of Peers instead of a long pedigree.

It is stated that Sir Walter Scott will realize by one moiety of the Waverley Novels upwards of £200,000, and Health, the engraver, more than £200,000 by his illustrations of these Novels. At the last meeting of the London Medical-Botanical Society, professor Houston mentioned the following extraordinary instance of the production of vegetable life.—A bulbous root, which was found in the hand of an Egyptian mummy in which situation it has very probably been more than two thousand years, germinated on being exposed to the atmosphere, though when discovered it was apparently in a state of perfect dryness. The root was subsequently put into the ground, where it grew with readiness and vigour.

CURE FOR THE TOOTH-ACHE.—At a recent meeting of the London Medical Society, Dr. Blake stated that the extraction or excision of teeth was unnecessary. He was enabled, he said, to cure the most desperate cases of tooth-ache (unless the disease was connected with rheumatism) by application of the following remedy to the diseased tooth: "Alum, reduced to an impalpable powder, two drachms; nitrous spirit of ether, seven drachms; mix, and apply them to the tooth."
