CORK DUST IGNITES, BLOWS MAN AND BOILER THROUGH BRICK WALL

Four Escape Unhurt, Two Injured, One May Not Live.

New York, Nov. 14.—Thirty feet of the front wall of a one-story brick building at 88 Second Avenue, Brooklyn, was blown out by an explosion of cork dust. One man received injuries believed to be fatal and another was severely burned.

The building houses the boiler room of the David E. Kennedy Company, manufacturers of cork floor tiling. It was in the boiler room that the explosion occurred. Each of the huge boilers had a dust cap over it through which the cork dust was drawn into a vent pipe.

The dust in one of the cups was ignited and the resulting explosion blew the boiler through the thirty-foot gap in the wall. John Lynch of Brooklyn, watchman in the plant, was blown through the wall with the boiler.

He received extensive burns about the body and was badly cut and bruised. It was said at Holy Family Hospital, where he was taken, that he had slight chance of recovery. Four men working in the rear of the boiler room escaped unhurt, but Thomas Barr, of Jersey City, who was in an adjoining room, was killed by the explosion and a gas tank.

The factory is near the gas works and throngs of women besieged the lines formed by the police reserves, believing that their husbands, fathers or sons, employees of the gas company, had been injured by the explosion of a gas tank.

Fire followed the blast, but was extinguished promptly. The damage was estimated at $10,000.

Upper 5th Ave. Values Jump Millions in Night

Aesthetic value of buildings in Fifth avenue along Central Park probably will be improved when palatial apartment houses replace some of the private homes that line this street. Plans are being filed for the modern type structures which in time will make the luxurious town house, shut up in summer and most of the winter, as extinct as the dinosaur. This is the view of J. E. R. Carpenter, architect, of 608 Madison avenue, who brought the test case and won it against the ruling that buildings along the upper avenue must be restricted to a height of seventy-five feet.

The property along the park has increased millions of dollars in value over night. Lots held at $10,000 to $12,000 a front foot have jumped in value to $18,000 and $15,000. One property, rejected at $800,000, is said to have a ready market at $375,000. The gross gain is as high as 80 per cent. in some instances, restoring the values of November, 1921, when zoning restriction passed.

Robert B. Knowles of Taylor, Knowles & Hack, attorneys for those who want to transform the avenue, advised clients to file their plans with the Tenement House Department. He said that since the Supreme Court had held the zoning amendment to be unconstitutional the granting of a stay was at the discretion of the higher court. The Fifth Avenue Association, bent
