A London cable says that the Zionist movement has achieved a great has been received with distinction at Constantinople and had an audience of two and a half hours with the Sul-The cable says:-

Dr. Hersi submitted his scheme for colonising parts of Southern Palestine, the plans being supported by the strongest recommendations of Emperor William. Dr. Hersi offered a considerable sum of money to secure a definite tenure and practical governing rights. International securities for fulfilling the contract will be demanded by the Porte. It is expected that Emperor William will become the principal surery. An international congress will shortly be called to support the plans. It is proposed to begin the development by rebuilding Jaffa harboring establishing irrigation works. Jewish labor will be employed, and as touses are built, rural Jews from Roumania, Russia and Gallicia will be gradually settled on the land. The cheme is in no sense charitable. THE RUSH FOR GOLD.

The thirst for gold and the desire for adventure prompt men to endure great hardships and take great risks. Durring the past year some startling tales of suffering have come from Cape Nome, but they have not lessened the cagerness of the gold seekers. A depatch from Seattle says:-

spatch from Seattle says:—

The magnitude of the rush to the gold fields of Nome, which is now on, is proving a great surprise to the transportation companies and outfitters, who did not expect anything compared with it, and now find themselves unable to accommodate thousands who are clamoring for passage and supplies. At least a dozen steamers and as many salling craft are scheduled to sail within a week, all crowded to their full capacity and applicants for passage and freight are turned away daily. An effort is being made by old established lines to secure additional steamers to help them out.

A Newark, N. J., pork dealer, who employs a dozen permanent men, and an the busy season has 25 or 20 employes, surprised his permanent men and the public also this week, by giving the men three months' holidays with full pay, instructing them to return to full pay, instructing them to return to work on Sept. 1st. There is little or no business to be done in his line in the summer, and he remarked that he wanted a holiday himself and believed his men needed one also. The act of this good man is sufficiently notable to rthy of special mention.

The London Times laughs at the sug gestion of a European combination against American competition. The against American competition. The Thunderer admits that the scheme might be attempted, but since the interests, traditions and inclinations of Britain would keep the mother country out of any such combination it could not succeed. With the trade of the British empire open to the Americans, a European boycott would not prove effective.

the Cubans is not yet over. The American government has declined to accept the Cuban constitution as adopted by the Havana convention. Though the convention accepted the Platt amendment it also adopted a resolution which would give the island more of independence than is deemed desirable at Washington.

the meaning and effect of the existing law of England to that end," remarks the Broad Arrow. It adds:—"There is no intention on the part of the advocates of the militia ballot to introduce conscription in the European sense, nor is there any idea of making every man in the United Kingdom a soldier; certainly we have never countenanced such proposals, but what is wanted and what we have urged is that the national militia should be doubled or trebled in numbers, and that if necessary the ballot should be enforced to fill the ranks, but only if and so far as is necessary. No responsible writer on army reform has seriously advocated the application of the continuata system to the United Kingdom. It would be both unsuitable and unnecessary. England has no need for such an army, nor would it be either possible or politic to attempt to apply any form of compulsion to provide troops for foreign service. Not even in France or Germany is that attempted; but the principles underlying all forms of consciption are those which for centuries have provided England with an army, and which have only comparatively recently in our history been supplanted by voluntary enlistment, which now is showing signs of falliure, and may endanger the sufficiency of the national forces."

"Our contention is that a really strong and thoroughly effective national militia, primarily designed for home service, but readily available for an amintained as the basis or foundation of a regenerated military system. From this militia, as well as directly from the remaining civil population, should be recruited a professional regulary for the same purposes as no fall to its lot. The exemption of limited number of efficient yeoman and volunteers from service in the milities would ensure the strength as effectiveness of those forces, and the law of the ballot of applied military remedy the deficiencies which an own on apparent in all branches of tarmy. achieve general results which will entirely remedy the deficiencies which are now so apparent in all branches of the army. The ballot can be regulated accurately to produce only such men as may be required. A quota can be fixed, and that quota may by law be altered from time to time so that surpluses on the one hand and deficiencies on the other can be avoided. There is no need or intention to plunge the nation into military servitude, but something clearly must be done even to provide the moderate military forces now proposed by the government. The choice lies between person or pocket, and for the credit of the nation we advocate comprisory personal service in

OUR GAME AND FISH.

(Fredericton Gleaner.)

"There are ten times as many moose in New Brunswick today as there were seven years ago." This statement was made to a reporter last evening by Frederick Irland, or Washington, who had just returned from a six weeks' bear hunt on the Miramichi in the company of Henry Braithwaite, the famous guide, of this city, Mr. Irland reports that they had a detightful trip, and that the woods are over-flowing with game of all sorts. They saw five moose coming out of the woods and quite near the settlement. The winter was a very easy one on all birds and animals.

The trout fishing in the interior waters is better than it has been for many years, and Mr. Irland exhibited a trout twenty-one inches long and weighing three pounds, which he caught on the trip. So abundant and so tame are the moose that coming round a bend in the river one day they, came on a moose swimming and paddled their cance so close to it that Mr. Irland touched it with his paddle. As he has made many trips into the woods of this province, Mr. Irland can testify with considerable certainty as to the increase of game.

Although the bear hunting season had just begun when they came out, they got three fine bears, and Mr. Irland caps every one who goes into the woods this fall is sure of chances at moose.

"I admire New Brunswick more each

"I admire New Brunswick more each ime I come here," said Mr. Irland, and only regret that I was not born ere. The province has the finest unting grounds in North America, and he finest salmon rivers. It will soon ome to pass that the game and fish, if roperly protected, will be far more aluable than the timber.

Nashwaak as a Salmon River.

Nashwaak as a Saimon River.

I often wonder if the people of the Nashwaak. Valley realise what a fortune would come to them if they would combine and insist on the opening of a flahway into that stream, through the dam of Marysville? Every time I travel up and down that river, I think it could be made as valuable a salmon stream as the Restigouche, where single farms with salmon pools on them have been sold for as much as thirty thousand dollars. The salmon rivers of North America are very few in number, and none is more beautiful or more available than the Nashwaak, At one time it was as good a salmon stream as there was in the province, and it could easily be made so again. Look at the Tobique, the Northweat Miramich, and other rivers that have been replenished and protected. There was once a fishway in the Nashwaak dam, but it was taken out and never replaced. Even now some fish come every year and try to get up the Nashwaak but cannot do so. The Nashwaak but cannot do so. The Nashwaak dam, but it was taken out and never replaced. Even now some fish come every year and try to get up the Nashwaak but cannot do so. The Nashwaak is an ideal salmon river in many respects and if the government backed by the strong sentiment of the people would insist upon the fish being allowed to ascend the river and would afford them the same protection there as is given on the Restigouche the Nashwaak would, I am certain, become one of the most tamous salmon fishing rivers in America."

It will be remembered that Mr. Irland devotes four or five months every year to hunting and fishing, and has followed the pastime in every part of North America, and is well qualified to speak upon the matter he spoke so freely upon to the Gleaner. "It is a well known fact," continued Mr Irland, "that every salmon in a sood dahing river is worth ten times its commercial value. The fly-fishing brings men into the country who will gladly pay for their fun, and the whole Nashwaak might be dotted with summer cottages and fishing cituls. This would make a market for farm croducts. And Fredericton, already amous as a sporting centre, would become all the more so if it were at the nouth of a fine admon stream like the Nashwaak might be. I know it is no iffair of mine, but sishing and shooting are half my life to me, and I am haly felling you what every man feels the love to see the enimals and birds and half in their own wild, free home," Mr. Irland, had a long talk with Pre-lown Chestinut of the Tourist Association. He left upon the early morning can for Washington, and says he will se back here next fall long enough to set a moose, the took almost a huntered photographs of live moose, bears

OTTAWA NEWS.

OTTAWA, May il.—The secretary of the Dominion Rills Association has just received the prize list for the Bisley meeting. Lord Roberts presents a silver cup as a prize which is to be shot for under military conditions of a very practical character. The competing teams from any cavairy or infantry unit of the home, indian or colonial forces will consist each of one non-commissioned officer of any rank and hime lance corporate or privates, to fire ten shots each from the magazine rifle. Each man will have a target to himself, placed on the ground line, the target being a life size representation of the head and shoulders of a man in the act of firing. The men will be placed three paces apart, in the rear of a small breastwork, three feet high, which may be used as a rest, the men taking cover behind the work so completely as to conceal themselves and their rifles from view from the targets. At a whistle signal each man will rise into any suitable firing postion, fire one shot at his target, and drop down under cover. The remaining shots will be fired in the same manner with an interval of but aix seconds between each shot.

It is proposed to erect the branch of the royal mint on Nepean Point, near the printing bureau. The Victoria museum is to be located at the north end of Major's Hill Park, while the new dominion observatory will be placed in the rear of the parliament buildings on the site now occupied by the summer house.

Workmen excavating for the foundation of a building on Queen street this morning unearthed the stone on which D'Arcy McGee fell when shot bearing an inscription to this effect.

The question of the purchase of the west side electric plant is not yet killed, as stated in some quarters yesterday. There as a majority of the council in favor of the purchase, but even its warmest advocates do not feel that a large expenditure should be made upon the vote of a bare majority. Had yesterday's vote resulted in a decision to acquire the plant the city would have had to pay the meney, and if the members refused to vote for the issue of debentures the company could have recovered the price. Such opinion was given by the recorder. At the next meeting the usual thirty day notice for the issue of debentures will be given, and in the meantime further enquiries will be made. If the purchase of the plant should not be effected several members are of opinion that the north end plant should be enlarged and the west side streets lighted from that station.

A NOVA SCOTIA SUICIDE.

AMHERST, N. S., May 31.—Urlah Johnson, an elderly farmer and merchant at Port Phillip, on the Northport and Pugwash road, committed suicide yesterday morning by hanging himself by means of a skate strap tied to a bedpost in his room. After adjusting the strap to his neck he had evidently sat down and strangled himself to death, as he was in that position, with his back against the bedpost, when found, life being extinct. He had been in a very melancholy condition for some time, and of late his mental condition bordered on insanity. He leaves a widow and six children. Dr. Dakin of Pugwash held an inquest, at which the verdict was that the deceased committed suicide by strangling himself.
