HAROLD HAS FINE PERFORMANCE

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 2.-Prince Alert paced a mile at Oakley Park to-day without a break, without the wind shield and over a track that was rendered full two seconds slow because of the rains of last night, in 2.01 3-4. The gelding was accompanied by but one runner. Mart Demarest drove him. The racing dragged throughout the afternoon and when darkness came only two events had been finished. The 2.02 pace, the feature of the card, was won by the Canadian gelding, Harold H., after he had been beaten in the first heat by Dariel. In the second heat Harold H. won by a head, and in the third he barely nosed out. Dan R., who had no speed until the last half of the beat. The 2.17 pace was won by Daniel J., after an interesting contest with Directum Miler. Joe Lisco and Biron Rogers each have two heats in the unfinished 2.09 pace. Only one heat was decided in the 2.16 trot, Grey Gem, the even-money favorite, winning it. Major Delmar will make an attempt to-morrow to beat 2.00. The racing dragged throughout

DINEEN SHUT OUT PITTSBURG. DINEEN SHUT OUT PITTSBURG.

Boston, Oct. 2.—The Boston Americans evened their initial defeat by shutting out Pittsburg 3 to 0 to-day in the second of the games for the world's championship. Dincen pitched one of the best games of his career. The National team got but three hits and only five men reached first base out of the 2 who faced Dineen. Leever started in to pitch for Pittsburg. He was hit freely and Vali replaced him after the first inning. Barring wildness, Vali pitched cleverly, although superb support extricated him from several awkward situations. The score:—

SECRET SALE OF ALASKA. Great Britain was Especially Kept in the Dark

London, Oct. 3.-Sir Edward Carson resumed his argument on the meaning of the word "coast" before the Alaskan Boundary Commission yesterday. Referring to Mr. Tay lor's definition of "political coast" and "physical coast," he said it lor's definition of "poli*cal coast" and "physical coast," he said it was absurd to suppose the negotiators of the treaty of 1825 had a professor of international law at their elbow to instruct them on such fine points. He said there was no question that the negotiators employed the word "coast" to designate the edge of the ocean, to which alone a line can be drawn paralellel. It is impossible to draw a line parallel to the inlets; therefore the inlets could not be included in the definition. He produced a photograph of the head of Lynn Canal to show how utterly that narrow channel lacks the essential characteristics of the ocean, and showed how Nerschode and other negotiators spoke of Portland Channel as having its mouth on the ocean and its head within the continent, and argued that that description is equally applicable to Lynn Canal, the head of which, therefore, could not be the ocean.

Discussing article seven of the treaty of 1825, which must refer either to the whole northwest coast or only to the lisiere, he said it could not possibly refer to the former, because Nerschode distinctly refused to grant any trading privileges north of latitude 59. If it did not include any land north of 50, it could not include that south of 53.40; therefore it applied only to the lisiere, and its reciprocal character was recognized by British ownership of that portion of the inland waters therein.

Dealing with Mr. Watson's theory of acquiescence, he said there could be no acquiescence where it could be shown that the question was the inland waters therein.

Dealing with Mr. Watson's theory of acquiescence, he said there could be no acquiescence where it could be shown that the question was open between the parties. England was not bound to keep on protesting at every turn. The sale of Alaska was kept a profound secret from the world, and particularly from England. At that time Canada did not exist as a dominion, and England had no political organization in those inaccessible regions, but the United States knew perfectly well that there was no acquiescence. He said Dennis' report of 1874 was based on an incorrect United States map. Moreover, Dennis' recommendations were never approved nor acted on by the Canadian Government. He quoted Cameron's report to show that in 1875 the Canadian Government called for adherence to the terms of the treaty and declared that periodically afterwards England notified the United States that a divergence of views existed in regard to this boundary.

KAFFIR CHIEF AT SCHOOL

Admitted to St. Andrew's College at Toronto Yesterday.

Toronto, Oct. 3. - -- fame of Ontario's educational institutions has reached South Africa, whether from the fair teachers who have been sent out from this Province or from the quick-witted intelligence displayed by Canadian soldiers during the war is not known. But Mahlangenl, the nineteen-vegated as pro-Canadian soldiers during the war is not known. But Mahlangeni, the nipeteen-year-old son of a prominent Kaffir chief and a six-fooler, is now enrolled as a student at St. Andrew's College.

The history of Mahlangeni's pursuit of Knowledge is interesting. His father is a weathy farmer in South Africa. A tutor tuned the youth in the English language, and, with a desire for a medical successon, Mahlangeni landed in the United States about three months ago. He sired, and was restless away from the sired, and will be successful that the sired, and was restless away from the sired, and we fitted the University College, where the officers of the Y.M.C.A. ARCHER V. SACRED HEART. Close of the Defence at the London

London, Ont., Oct. 3.-The case for the defence in Archer v. Sacred Heart Convent was closed at the Assizes at 7 o'clock last evening. During the afternoon over a dozen nuns the convent were put in the witness box by the defence, and every one of them testified that while at the convent Sister Archer acted strangely. The witnesses declared their conviction that she was responsible for the series of mischievous acts committed while plaintiff was at the institution. This conviction was founded upon suspicion and the results of observation of her actions. None of the witnesses, however, could tell of a single serious act of mischief in which Nun Archer had been detected. Madame Anna Onahan, of the sister house in Detroit, who was present when Sister Archer took her simple vows at Omaha in 1887, contradicted the story told by plaintiff as to what was said on that occasion. Rev. Father Aylward, rector of St. Peter's Cathedral of this city, was the last witness. His evidence was corroborative of that of box by the defence, and every one of of this city, was the last witness. His evidence was corroborative of that of Rev. Mother Sheridan. Plaintiff will again take the stand in the morning. Expert evidence as to insanity will also probably be given. The case will likely go to the jury during the day.

Galt, Oct. 3.-Geo. F. Kellcher, local lawyer, acting for J. Costin, Post-master at Glenmorris, has issued a writ against Judge Hardy of Brantford for $5,000 damages for trespass, malicious arrest, prosecution and false imprisonment. Last spring Costin appeared in the Brantford Division Court as a judgment debtor, and was ordered to pay so much a menth on an account he owed. He did not comply with the order, and was summoned to show why he had not done so. When he appeared before Judge Hardy on this summons for examination the Judge is alleged to have said, "I won't examine that man but will commit him to itel. alleged to have said, "I won't examine that man, but will commit him to jail for ten days." Costin maintains that he was not given an opportunity to explain why he had not complied with the Judge's order, and his imprisonment was malicious. "Costin did not serve the ten days in the Brantford jail, but after a few hours' incarceration paid $20 on account, under protest, and was released.
