One day last week, while sad and dreary, As we wended, weak and weary, Across the unswept floor: We heard, at first, a gentle tapping, Then it became an earnest rauping At our sanctum door.

"Come in!" we said; yet while we pondered
And in silence we still wondered
What for us could be in store:
Then, the door-bolt gently turning.
In he walked. Our cheeks was burning!
Thoughts of crimson gore.

"Are you the man who does the writing?"
(What word will rhyme with this but fight-

ng?
Quickly thought we, o'er and o'er).
we are," we gently told him.
ling to the boys to hold him,
If he tried to beat us sore.

"Then you'll please give me a credit Opposite that little debit Op two dollars more; I like your paper and will take it As long as you strive to make it As good as it has been before." We jumped! he dodged! thus we miss or we should have surely kissed him, to matter if the boys did roar' So seldom treated in this manner, We felt inclined to sing hosannah! Only this and nothing more.

A melancholy accident, in which three lives were lost, occurred on May 25th, at Clontarf. About seven o'clock three young men, respectively named McNally, Woods and Somers, residing at Church road, went out from the East road Wharf to Clontarf in a boat which was rigged with one sail. They had not been long on the water before the wind, which was blowing fresh caught the sail, and the boat capsized, a large quantity of loose ballast falling to one side and so assisting the catastrope. On shore the cries of the young men was heard, both at the Constabulary Barracks and by people walking near the baths. A man named Power, hearing the screams, jumped into the water, and swam out to where a boat was lying at Ancher. water, and swam out t o where a boat was lying at Anchor. He brought it ashore, and put off to the rescue; but though the capsized boat was soon found lying on its side, the search for its occupants was unsuccessful. Several other boats also had put out but their their efforts equally unsuccessful. availing. The search was continued all night, and next morning the dead body of McNally was found lying in the mud at a short distance from the shore at Fairview; and about an hour later, when the tide had further gone out, the bodies of Somers and Woods were seen in the mud at some distance from the capsized boat, one on the eastern and the other on "The hand of death has been heavy on the town of Ennis, and has choosen his victims amongst the oldest and most respected inhabitants. Last post we recorded the death and funeral of the late Francis Keane, Esq., Hermitage. To-day our pages record the funeral of John Kerin, Esq., Castlefergus, and to-day we have to announce the death of the veteran and favorite banker, James Menzies. It is forty years since he came to Ennis and opened the Branch Office for the Provincial Bank, but so thoroughly did he associate himself with the interest of his employers and his clients, so thoroughly did he win their confidence, that the Bank was better known amongst the country people as "Mr. Menzies' Bank."

CORK.

The South Cork Militia were disbanded on May 22d, at Fermoy, and their conduct on their arrival at Mallow station was very bad, a large number of the men acting in a most disgraceful manner. Finding the carriages of a train about to start for Cork already so much occupied (mostly) by emigrants that they could not obtain room there for themselves, they attacked the unoffending occupants and threw them out of the carriages. At least two of the migrants were severely injured.

This standard article is compounded with the greatest care. Its effects are as wonderful and as satisfactory as ever. It restores gray or faded hair to its youthful color.

It removes all eruptions, itching and dandruff. It gives the head a cooling, soothing sensation of great comfort, and the scalp by its use becomes white and clean. By its tonic properties it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, preventing baldness, and making the hair grow thick and strong. As a dressing, nothing has been found so effectual or desirable.
