The unfortunate travelers were naturally effervescent with virtuous indignation. As soon as the train drew up at the station, both leaped to the platform, and rushing into the station, gingerly displayed the eloquent marks of the assault, and demanded vengeance. The police were at once telephoned for, and setsout on the trail of the "miscreant." Their search was soon rewarded. The offender was a kitchen girl in a Galt hotel, who, having come across a bad egg, just threw it out of the window without thinking where it would go. As luck had it, the train was passing at the time and the egg found a target. Of course, the girl pleaded "she didn't mean no harm," and the incident ended. But you don't want to mention either "Galt" or "eggs" to that commercial man for a little while. inte the Situation Here.

Ottawa, Aug. 28.—Hon. Adam Beck and C. B. Smith; members of the hydroelectric commission, arrived in the city from Toronto yesterday morning to look into the situation. The city has applied to it for the power to run the municipal electric plant, and the Hull company made a proposition outlining the terms upon which it would supply it. These were practically the same as by which the city now obtains it.

Mr. Beck and Mr. Smith were in consultation most of the forencom with Mayor Ellis and Ald. Hopewell, representing the city, and F. K. Egan fest the Hull Co.

They adjourned about 1.30 without anything definite being decided upon but a new contract is looked for shortly.

Feeding By the Scales.

The stockman and feeder who knows definitely when the limit for profit has been reached without the aid of scales when finishing stock for market is a rarity. Even the most expert in estimates will often find himself deceived with unusual animals when the scales are consulted. The most prevalent mistake made by haphazard feeders, and one that results in tremendous losses throughout the country, is that of marketing stock a few weeks too socying before they are properly fin.sned.

Buying a cup of tea may be a tra-gedy or a comedy. Much depends on the sex of the buyer. This is the way a man buys it, says a writer in the Lon-don Sketch: He slides sheepishly into the shop, takes the seat in the draft of the door that everybody else has avoided and says to the wattress with a diffident smile

The man tastes the tea, finds that it is bitter from long brewing, slips out of his seat, pays the bill and hurries away from the shop.

Now let us see how a woman buys a cup of tea.

She marches into the shop with a little boy on one side of her and a little girl on the other.

Cleanliness is next to godliness in soultry culture as much as in anything size. Clean quarters keep down the bee, prevent sickness and add to the pod returns.

Lice soon weaken the strongest wils, check egg production and make the business unprofitable.
