Note of Thanks to Rev. Canon Smith

Editor Evening Telegram:
Dear Sir.—I wish to offer my hearty thanks to the Rev. Canon Smith for his advice and counsel re Catholicity of the Church of England. I have no doubt, whatever, on that point, and it was not for that reason that I wrote, neither was it to receive assurance of its being so; but being young and enthusiastic and alive to all such questions, especially those regarding my Church, I could not bear to hear such a remark passed without feeling hurt; and then when I saw it answered by the Rev. Mr. Hewitt I had to give vent to my feelings and congratulate him for doing so. I am sorry to see that he is the only clergyman in the country to take it up, and it was for that reason as much, perhaps, as for any other that I wrote. I think silence on the part of the clergy on such a question would cause their people to misrepresent them and perhaps cause some uneasiness if not harm among the illiterate, for there are many of our people who are not fully instructed on the subject, and it is very seldom that we get a sermon on sectarianism, in fact, I have never heard one, and I venture to say that half of our people if asked the question: "Why do you belong to the Church of England?" would not be able to answer it; therefore, I say that such a statement made by His Grace the Archbishop should be answered so that our people may be made aware of the fact that we are not afraid to stand up for our Faith.

"It is all very well to talk of peace but when ill-feeling is aroused, caused by such a statement how can peace be restored until the question is explained and settled satisfactorily; for as I said above, unfortunately there are a good many who are not too well instructed and convinced on the subject or there would not be so many leaving the Church and joining other sects.

As to the Godly and Christian lives led by some of our Roman Catholic brethren I have no doubt. Certainly, it is quite natural for a man to follow the instructions of his childhood and as he is taught so he will live "Bring up a child in the way he should go and when he is old he will not depart from it." I consider that the doctrines taught in any Church whether right or wrong, will not deprave a man from entering heaven therefore, if the people believe in a wrong doctrine, which they have been taught, and which they have been taught to put faith in, it is not their fault, and, therefore, "will be beaten with few stripes." If a blind man put faith in a guide to lead him to a place of safety and the guide leads him into danger, whose fault is it—the blind man's or the leader's?

Sir, I did not intend to say so much when I commenced, and if I have said anything, whether in this or in the preceding article, to offend any of my Roman Catholic brethren, I willingly apologise and humbly beg their pardon; and rev. sir, I will in the future take your advice and have nothing more to say on the subject whether occasion rises or no, but if I should I will follow your example and simply laugh at it.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for space,
I remain yours, etc.,
H. DAWE.
Ronne Bay, June 6th. 1910.

Football Fives.

A large attendance of people interested in sports viewed the play by the preliminary football fives at St. George's Field last evening.

The Casuals beat the C. E. L. in the Senior League by two goals to one.

The Collegians defeated the Feldians by a similar score, and the St. Bon's gained lost ground by knocking out the Star by one goal.

The Highlanders beat the C. C. C. by two goals and one corner; and the Methodist Guards outshone the C. L. B. by one goal to nil.

The Methodist College won against the Bishop Field boys by a goal and a corner.

During the evening the C. L. B. Band played fine selections of music which greatly added to the pleasure of the evening.

The balance of the preliminaries will be played to-night.

Mr. W. J. Higgins did the referee work in his usual equitable and disinterested manner.

Trout Competition.

Yesterday some splendid trout were brought into the Martin Hardware store. They were caught by Waltonians who whipped the streams and lakes in the country on Wednesday.

The fish were on exhibition in the window of the store yesterday. Mr. A. Pincock took the first prize with a rainbow weighing 3 lb. 1 oz.; Mr. W. Pittman was second with a German brown, 15 oz.; and Mr. E. O'Neill third, with a half dozen natives weighing 2 lbs. 4 oz. The prizes received were for 1st and 2nd two fine trout poles, and the 3rd a fishing reel.

MUNICIPAL METHODS

The Way We Do Things.

Editor Evening Telegram:

Dear Sir.—Though the Torphy incident in its immediate consequences has been a misfortune for the city, we may hope that its ultimate results may redound to the city's advantage. It is no small matter to have discovered that our present Council is quite incapable of discharging the duties it was expected by the electorate to fulfill, for it may lead us to choose not only different men than those now in office, but a different class of men. If this result is achieved we may console ourselves and even rejoice that a discipline was administered to us which has been severe enough to turn us towards civic righteousness and efficiency. It may be thought that he Council has been already exposed as being guilty of every sort of incapacity which a municipal body can be charged with, but this is a mistake. There is still another feature in their conduct which so far has not been presented to the public gaze. I propose now to develop this feature. Gentlemen, in whom such high powers and great responsibilities are vested might not unreasonably be expected to display ordinary judgment and discretion, when matters of moment come before them for decision. Their own unaided intelligence is inadequate to the determination of the issues, they have officially to decide might also not unreasonably be expected that they would call to their assistance those of better judgment and more expert knowledge than themselves. This is all the more to be reckoned upon when the services of just such persons are not only available to the Council, but are expressly provided for the purpose of being consulted in such cases of difficulty. Yet it would seem that the egregious body whose inefficiency I have been celebrating have studiously neglected the assistance of the experts who are retained to give advice and counsel, but some other inexpert advice has been taken and followed. We know that the Council wished to acquire the Torphy property for the use of the city, for the attempt to acquire it was made. And we give the Council the credit of not wishing deliberately to prevent their successors from acquiring the property—still less do we charge them with wilfully conspiring to make the obstruction they deprecated more extensive and more difficult to remove. Yet that is what they did. What reasons, then, moved them to this course? The reason first alleged was that, although the Council could prevent the erection of a new house, if it so desired it could not interfere with alteration to an old one, even though those alterations amounted practically to rebuilding, and though the foundations were permitted to thrust further forward towards the street. Now it is quite plain that such a construction of a statute as this is would never present itself to the singularly commonplace minds of this Council. Yet this construction did recommend itself to the intelligence of some person, who not only communicated it to the Council, or some member of that body, but had the address to secure acceptance for his notion. Now, to whom did this sapient notion occur; to which of the Councillors was it communicated? We know, the person who did NOT suggest this idea to the Council, and that is the Solicitor, for the fact is that the Solicitor was not called in to advise upon the matter. Here, then, is a very singular circumstance in the conduct of our Councillors. They have at their disposal the services of a Solicitor whose duty it is to advise them whenever he is called upon in just such nice matters as this. And there need be no delicacy in requesting the benefit of his opinion, for he is very handsomely paid indeed for rendering it. Then why was he not called in? Why was not his advice taken and followed? Surely this was just such an occasion as called for the professional advice of the Council's lawyer, for the Council saw itself not only balked of a design which it professed at least to cherish, but saw that design in danger of being buried for all time, and, worse than all, saw themselves converted into the instruments for thwarting their own wishes and prejudicing the city whose welfare they were in duty bound to serve. And yet, from start to finish, so far as I can discover, the Solicitor's advice was never sought and never taken. And, to make matters worse still, advice which did not proceed from their own Solicitor, or from any Solicitor, or from any person competent to advise upon the construction of a statute, was actually taken. Whether it was sought or not does not matter. The point is that it was taken, and that responsible advice was not. It is difficult to express in polite terms one's sense of the fatuous folly of gentlemen who act like this. With these concluding remarks I have done, I hope, with the Torphy incident. I have dealt with this incident at length, not so much, perhaps, out of regard to its intrinsic importance, as for the sake of the illustration it gives of the methods of the Council which still misgoverns the city. This transaction alone should seal the fate of any member of the present Municipal Board who sought re-election, but I shall endeavour in a future letter or two to show that this is not at all an isolated instance of the mismanagement of our civic affairs which has been going on during the last four years.

Yours truly,
REFORM.

McMurdo's Store News

FRIDAY, JUNE 10, 1910.
To the man who is liverish everything appears blue and yellow, figuratively speaking; there is headache; usually constipation and a general all-overish sick feeling. Sodium Phosphate, which can be obtained in the form of an effervescent salt is a reliable remedy for this condition. A dose, taken before breakfast daily, will often dissipate these unpleasant symptoms, and make the "liverish" person fit for the day's work. Price 40c. a bottle.
As a general household remedy for bruises, sprains, inflamed condition of the skin, eye trouble, burns, and many other minor external troubles, Witch Hazel ranks high. You should keep a bottle in the house, ready for emergencies. Price 25c.

Should be Covered.

On Military Road in some places it has been noticed that parts of the ties and track of the street railway line laid there a few years ago protrude in some cases the rails rising a couple of inches over the ground. This is especially so opposite Mrs. Summers' store. This is a great source of annoyance to drivers of vehicles, is a danger to horses, and this and other places like it should be covered.

College Cricket.

The Feldians and Methodists played at St. George's Field last evening. The game was decided in favor of the latter on the result of the first innings in which they put up a score of 55 runs against 47 made by the Feldians. C. Fenwick contributed 27 to the Methodists' score, and batted beautifully. Messrs. W. W. Blackall and C. W. Ryan were the umpires. The Feldians have now a total of 4 points to their credit as against two each on the part of the other colleges.

DIPHTHERIA AND TYPHOID.—Those diseases seem to be lingering in the city yet. A case of typhoid developed at Cook St. last evening; the patient was taken to hospital. There is also a case on Monroe St., and diphtheria on Theatre Hill.

FUNERAL.—The burial of Mr. Albert Downs will take place to-morrow from No. 6 Charlton St., at 3.30.

WALKING MATCH.—It looks now as if there would be a much smaller number of entries for the 20 mile walking match this season than heretofore. The event will take place on June 22nd.
