Points From the Congress of Missions.

A Question Which the Laity will ask and the Clergy Must Answer.

The grey and stately city of Edinburgh has for long been the familiar Mecca of the Gospeller. Conventions and congresses, some national, others international, have come and gone with the years; but for impressiveness surely the World Missionary Conference will not only have an abiding place in the public recollection of events, but will, as its promoters believe and expect, mark out a great forward step in Christian vindication and Christian opportunity of foreign mission enterprise.

"No aspect of the Conference," remarks the Scotsman, "will more appeal to the lay mind than the fact that so many Churches, of diverse creeds and organisations, should meet in one great council, their differences all put aside, to consider how best to ensure the triumph of what is common to them all. It is an impressive witness to the unity of the Churches in regard to the essential matters, and it is a happy arguery for the future. The advance of Islam and the quickening to new life of non-Christian nations have created a situation which demands the united action of all the Churches."

The same lesson is rammed home by the Glasgow Herald, which says:—"The note of the present gathering is comprehension. Its business is not with creeds and confession, but with practice. It does not inquire of its members what they believe, but what they are doing or are prepared to do in propagation of a common faith.

So by widening the basis it affords a platform for denominations which have fought bitterly one with another in the past, and which continue to adhere unflinchingly within the domestic domain to their peculiar doctrines and forms of faith, and to defend their historic differences.

"This Missionary Conference, properly regarded, is nothing less than a confession that most of the things which keep, as they have kept, Protestant Christians each in his little narrow fold are of small account when the problems of heathenism and paganism have to be tackled in a business-like and workman-like manner. If the world, without our petty sectarianism, can be won to Christianity without the various denominations fighting over the historic episcopate, and methods of church government, and so forth, why cannot the world which lives at close quarters with the everyday evidences of disunion and division be evangelised in the same catholic and comprehensive spirit? That is a question which this Conference will compel many of our laity to ask. It is one that some day our clergy of all denominations will be obliged to answer."

Dr. Gibson, of Swatow, in one of the debates, emphasised the fact that the native churches are now no longer to be regarded as small and scattered communities. "In Japan and China especially there are growing up strong, healthy churches that are likely before long to become independent of European and American missionaries. Here," as the Manchester Guardian says, "the reputation of the denominational divisions, still so rigid in the Old World, cannot be but a deplorable mistake. These divisions have grown up out of our unhappy history; but the foreign converts have had no such history—no expulsions of Puritans and Methodists, no protests of Baptists, Independents, and Quakers, each resulting in the rise of a new sect. Surely what we should work for on the virgin soil of any new area of Christendom is not a mechanical imitation of our pens and pounds, but the formation of a national church—which, of course, need not be, and Free Churchmen hold must not be, a State-established Church."

On a famous occasion the late Lord Salisbury advised the public to the use of large maps. In a figurative as well as in a realistic sense the Conference met this want. The missionary map was unfolded of both hemispheres, and living indexes were there to point to the white places represented by Christianity and Christian civilisation, and likewise to point to the dark places of the earth where the Gospel had not yet been heard. In Africa alone there are seventy millions of people outside the evangelising sphere of Christianity; in the whole world it is computed there are 113 millions with no Christian provision made for their religious needs.

This Conference devoted much time to the consideration of missionary problems in relation to the non-Christian world in connection with the report of the Commission, which suggests that an international committee should be appointed. Dr. George Robson applied himself to the problem of pagan Africa. In starting language he told also of the enormous advance of Islam, and was not afraid to attack boldly the British administration "which to its shame gives every encouragement to pagans becoming Mohammedan and hinders Christian missions from appealing to Moslems." A strong missionary force, he said, "must be thrown right across the centre of the continent to bar the advance of Islam and to carry the Gospel northward into the Sudan." Than Karl Kumm perhaps no living explorer knows more of this remarkable advance of Mohammedanism in the Sudan and southwards, and he also joined in the accusation that European Governments are directly and indirectly assisting the advance.

"At one Session," says the Scotsman, "the question of whether it was advisable to have native agencies in the East dependent upon foreign support raised a difficult question. Among the natives prejudice is easily stirred against the native evangelists supported by the West, and the taunt is easy that they are traitors to the country in foreign pay. The difficulty, however, of theorising was apparent when one delegate declared that in China, whether desirable or not, it was necessary. And the theories all failed when Dr. Ross told how in Manchuri, in the last few years, 30,000 had been received into the Church, yet only 100 of these were received as the direct result of work of missionaries—the rest were received as the results of the work of native evangelists—and these were supported from the West. The words of Dr. Ross made a profound impression as he said that the work of Christianising the world was hopeless if Christianity depended wholly on the missionary of the West."

Results that are Anticipated.
"As a result of the Conference," says the Guardian, "we anticipate that every missionary society and organisation will be enabled to recognise its place as never before in the missionary enterprise of the world, and thereby to revise its methods and adjust its resources to better purpose; secondly, the waste caused by overlapping will be checked, and the forces of Christian bodies, differing little, if at all, in principle, will be more effectively concentrated; thirdly, the question of co-operation in the mission-field is more capable of solution abroad than it is at home, and the conference may be able to show that 'comity' in mission work is more than a phrase of the newspapers. The advance of Christian unity may be set down as a fourth indirect result which may be looked for; and the last, but not the least valuable, effect will be the education of the United Kingdom in missionary principles, for it is proposed on the conclusion of the conference to scatter the thousand delegates and other workers over the whole country in a campaign of missionary interest."

HAS TEN FISH.—Latest advices received from the whaler Cachelot, operating at Hawke's Harbor, are to the effect that she has ten fish. This is fairly good as the season is early yet.

When Sleep Fails You
DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD will bring rest, comfort and vitality by building up the nerves.

Mr. Jas. Wesley Weaver, a veteran of the Fenian Raid, Port Dalhousie, Ont., writes:—"For years I was afflicted with nervousness and dread insomnia, so that I never knew for three years what a full hour's sleep was, never more than dosing for a few minutes at a time. Heart pain and headaches almost drove me wild. I had spells of weakness and cramps in stomach and limbs. "Though I tried several doctors, I was money uselessly spent. Finally Dr. Chase's Nerve Food was brought to me and eight boxes cured me. I had simply wonderful what benefit have obtained from this treatment. Sleeplessness and headaches are warnings of approaching nervous collapse. You can positively remove these symptoms and prevent prostration or paralysis by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50, at all dealers or Edmanston Bates & Co., Toronto. Write for free copy of Dr. Chase's Recipes."

Shutting the Door.

Special to the Evening Telegram. BERLIN, July 8. The liveliest interest is felt in official circles regarding the Russo-Japanese agreement, the text of which has not yet been forwarded to Germany. The maintenance of the status quo, which the agreement is ostensibly intended to secure, is considered most desirable. The most delicate point in the agreement refers, according to the semi-official Frankfurter Zeitung, to the understanding to act mutually on the defensive against the intervention by third powers in Manchuria, which all belongs to China. It is pointed out that America obtained a concession for the Aguin Chia Chew railroad from China, and the question is now raised here whether the agreement is intended to oppose America's unwelcome intrusion in the Russo-Japanese sphere of influence. If so, the agreement is taken to mean the closing of the open door.

The French Shore Fishery a Blank.

Apparently our hopes for a brighter outlook on the French Shore are doomed to crumble. Schooner after schooner has arrived, nearly all with clean holds.

The following are the arrivals as far as we have been able to get them: H. J. Earle's fleet. Arrivals are: Emma Jane, 8 brls.; Zephyr, from Ming's, 8 brls.; New Vancouver, from Hooping Hr., 60 brls. The last named reports Mabel, 140 brls, still getting a little fish. As far as Mr. Not, who supplied us with the above, can learn the trap fishery is a failure, not from lack of fish but because fish seems to lie in deep water.

J. W. Hodge has the two following arrivals:—Energy, Isaac Earle, master, 65 barrels, and James Gillard, master, 78 barrels.

Boys Have Outing.

The boys attending the Christian Brothers Schools at St. Patrick's Hall had an enjoyable outing at O'Brien's farm, Freshwater Road, yesterday afternoon. Though the affair was impromptu all enjoyed it, and the good Brothers did everything possible to make it a success. The lads entered with zest into the races of various kinds and games of football and cricket, and all voted the evening an extremely pleasant one.

Placentia Notes.

On Sunday, July 3rd, High Mass was celebrated in the Sacred Heart Church, the celebrant being Mgr. Reardon, while Rev. Father Gough was the Deacon and Rev. Father O'Reilly performed the duties of Sub-Deacon. The High Altar was beautifully decorated in honor of the Precious Blood. During the progress of the Mass Rev. Fr. O'Reilly preached a fine sermon on the Gospel of the day. He was listened to with rapt attention by all present, who departed from the church much more enlightened about the Precious Blood than when they entered.

Rev. Dr. O'Reilly was born in Placentia some forty years ago, and was a son of the late Magistrate, Mr. T. O'Reilly. From his earliest years thoughts of the priesthood had been coming through his mind, and at last he determined to study for the religious order. To-day he is one of the best preachers in the island. He will remain a week or two visiting friends in Ye Ancient Capital.

Salmon and trout are taking to the S. E. River already. Some salmon have been caught weighing from 4 to 10 pounds, and trout from 1/2 to 5 pounds. The tourist who may be looking for good fishing cannot secure a more suitable place. Up-to-date hotel accommodations can be had at very low rates at the "River View Hotel," Edward Fulford, proprietor. The river is only two minutes walk from the hotel.

As each train arrives numbers of tourists are coming to share in the everlasting sport that is to be had in the river. To give people an idea of the great sport that can be had would not be out of the way. On Monday evening Mr. W. J. Walsh went to the river, and came back Tuesday morning having six salmon (averaging 6 pounds) and two trout (3 and 3 1/2 pounds). A trip is well worth the money, and after once being there it will not be the last visit. Come early, enjoy the sport, so that your friends will be able to follow you.

Rev. Fr. Fyde arrived from Cape Shore on Monday, and proceeded to the city by train same day.

Mr. Taylor and mother arrived from New York by Saturday's train to enjoy a week's fishing at the S. E. River.

Mr. Billingsby and bride, arrived from the city by Tuesday's inward train. Immediately upon arrival they drove to the S. E. River by carriage and put up at River View Hotel.

Mrs. T. Bonia, and daughter, also Miss M. Collins arrived from the city on Monday.
