Latest Freak of the Suffragists.

Special Evening Telegram.
LONDON To-Day.
Except as an advertisement for the cause, the opposition of the suffragists to the taking of the Census in London last night, was apparently a futile demonstration. The midnight meetings which they proposed to hold at Trafalgar Square and at Westminster, with the object of marching in procession to the Skating Rink, where the women were to spend the night, proved fruitless. Not a score of suffragists appeared at either rendezvous. There were exciting scenes at the Skating Rink, though enormous crowds had gathered to watch proceedings, and blocked the entrance and prevented the ingress of the suffragists, many of whom fainted in the crush. A large force of police was called to clear the neighbourhood. Many women spent the night in the rink, but were counted by the census officials. At Edinburgh, Birmingham and other cities, the suffragists adopted similar tactics.

I am free to wander anywhere I please.
On the Zephyr, on the Tempest, or the Breeze;
I am here to-day a moment, and am gone.
Or I languorously float my way along.
I can terrize the Teller of the Deep;
And I'm deadliest of all when Salts are Sleep;
I am Darkness in the very Noon of Day;
I am Midnight with the Blackness swept away.
As the Sun above me gloriously bright,
I descend, and lo! beneath me it is Night;
There is nothing but the Shadow of the Tomb
Quite so terribly effective as my Gloom.
I can baffle any Man upon the Sea.
But I know there's none on Earth can baffle Me!
My Supremacy is always so complete
That I reek not of the Horrors which I mete.
I impede the Limer's mad careering speed;
I consider not the Compass nor the Log.
I'm a Vapour; I'm a Breath; I am Havoc; I am Death;
I'm the Spirit of the Ocean. I AM FOG.

Derelict Vessel Sighted
Mr. H. W. LeMessurier, Assistant Collector of Customs, had the following wire to-day from Tidewater Costello, of Woods' Island:—"Wm. Cammie, just returned from Wild Cove, reports schooner miles off shore in ice, no compass, no sails set, no light at night, and driving to the northward."
This is likely the vessel reported the other day from Bonne Bay. She is moving along with the ice, and if more particulars can be had, another and fuller message will be received about the derelict. It is thought that it might be the Goodwin, missing since December, but it is strange that nothing has been heard from her crew. It is possible that they abandoned her and got to the Canadian side of the Straits and would be there with the hivers all winter. They may therefore be heard from when communication is opened later in the season.
DIED OF DIPHTHERIA.—One of the patients suffering from diphtheria in the Fever Hospital, in the person of Maggie Turk, aged 4 1/2 years, of 24 Pleasant Street, died this morning. The little one had the malady in its worst form. No new cases of that or any other disease are reported to-day.
