Wedding Bells.

St. Francis Xavier Church, Bar Haven, was the scene of an early autumn wedding on last Wednesday morning, when Miss Agnes Brown, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Brown, of Bar Haven, Placentia Bay, was united in the holy bonds of marriage to Mr. John McCue, only son of Mr. and Mrs. James McCue, of the same place. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Francis A. Cacciola, P.P., who in a short exhortation showed how conjugal love was the highest pledge and security for lasting happiness in the married state, and illustrated from St. Paul's description of charity the mutual love which should unite husband and wife. The Sanctuary was prettily decorated with palm branches and flowers of late summer. The bride was given away by her father, and her gown of light blue satin was trimmed with diamante tulle, combined with old point lace which formed a veil that reached nearly to the hem of a court train. Miss Annie Brown, the bride's cousin, was her only attendant. Her costume was of peach bloom and cream satin and she wore a wattleau hat neatly adorned. Mr. Peter Brown supported the groom. The ceremony was followed by a quiet reunion of the immediate relatives of both parties. In the evening a reception took place at the residence of the bride's parents.

At the Crescent.

There are three things which one may be always sure of getting from the "Milam" Picture Company, a good story, fine acting and realistic staging and all three are combined in "The Blind Man's Sacrifice," the feature now showing at the Crescent Picture Palace. The patrons of the Crescent who saw this picture last night were loud in their praise of the whole show. Mr. Knights singing of "Angus MacDonald" is a real treat, and as to-night will be the last opportunity to hear Mr. Knights sing this song, all should make a point of visiting the Crescent to-night. On tomorrow and Saturday "The Half Breed Parson" will be shown. This is a great Indian War feature, produced by the Bison Company, famous for producing Indian War pictures. Mr. Knights has a new song in keeping with the picture.

Directors.

By GEORGE FITCH,
Author of "An Good Old Slivash."
A director is a man who goes to a meeting to direct the affairs of a stock company during the year which has just closed.
It is very easy to be a director. All one has to do is to own a share of stock, accept a fee for attending each meeting and keep out of the way of the grand jury.
Some directors are so foolish as to insist on meddling with the affairs of the company. But this happens usually only in the crude West. If a director of a great New Jersey corporation composed of water and gall in equal parts were to ask the president what he intended to do with the company he would be fired for impertinence too quick.

Directors of this sort are called dummy directors. They are selected by double dummy stockholders and their business is to mind it.
Directors get from $10 to $20 per meeting, according to the enormity of the corporation. They also get a good dinner. After a directorate has been heightened up and made reckless by a dinner, interspersed with high-balls, it can approve in ten minutes transactions which will later take a government receiver ten years to untangle.
Some men belong to as many as forty directorates. After a financier has guessed wrong on the market a few times and has gone out of business with nothing but an ornamental bronze front left, he can pick up a good little income, to say nothing of the gout, by serving on the directorate of his friend's companies.

The beauty of the director system, as used by our greatest captains of industry, is that it provides a body of irresponsible men to assume the responsibility. After a great financier has played ping pong with a fine railroad system for a few years and has reduced it to a shattered or debilitated wreck, it is a great comfort to refer all inquiries to a board of directors, who don't know anything about the case and are perfectly ready to say so.

Some of our most eminent business men have commented very severely upon the United States government and have declared that if it were put in charge of a New York corporation the country could be run for half the present expense. It is affecting to hear a great man who has just run through two or three railroads, declaring with tears in his eyes that the government ought to quit meddling with business and let business run the government. We would be perfectly willing to see the latter experiment if the law would only provide an open season on directors.
