Reducing Domestic Friction.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

There is a great deal written and said about the un wisdom of husbands trying to live with the relatives of either. And in that great deal there is as usual, some sense and some nonsense. Of course, society is founded on the unit of the family, and unquestionably it is easier to get along pleasantly when that unit sits itself up in an individual cell. But that doesn't mean that, if necessary and kind to live with another unit, the thing can't be done pleasantly. It doesn't mean that all friction should be condoned as something inevitable.

In-Laws CAN Live Together Pleasantly.

Some of the friction is inevitable. And some just comes from a wrong way of looking at things.

I once knew a man who lived for some years in the home of his wife's people. This household numbered among its members an elderly aunt who was extremely peculiar (to put it mildly) and was constantly doing queer, foolish things.

The husband was a man of strong personality and one would have expected great friction to result. On the contrary they all seemed to get along quite pleasantly.

A mutual friend once asked the man in my presence how he managed to put up with the aunt's queer ways.

He let her alone when she didn't interfere with him.

"Well," he said, "it came to me after I had been there awhile that the only way to do was to let her alone so long as she didn't interfere with me. If I let myself be bothered by them of course the queer things she does would annoy me all the time. But why be bothered if she doesn't get in my way? I made it plain at the beginning that I wouldn't stand for being inconvenienced by her peculiarities. That antagonized her at first but she got over it. And to everything that doesn't personally concern me I keep my eyes shut."

"But doesn't it annoy you even when you don't say anything?"

He kept his mind shut, too.

"No," he said thoughtfully, "it did a little at first. But I guess I keep more than my mouth shut. I try to keep my mind shut too."

How's that for a bit of philosophy? And not just for this situation either, but for many situations.

Of course when two families (or even two people) live together, there are many things which each does which must inevitably concern the other. But there are also many things which don't really interfere—if you will close your mind to them. How much do you suppose the friction in homes would be reduced if people followed that man's plan?

Household Notes.

Toss eggs with a flat wire egg-beater instead of beating them and they will be much lighter.

Unless you have plenty of room for the storage of fruit it should be bought in small quantities.

Before canning carrots or beets see that they are well scrubbed, then scalded to loosen the skin.

THE PEON.

The peon is a bright subject of the Mexican Government, whose principal occupation consists in raising fourteen distinct varieties of continuous and explosive hell. Not all of the Mexican peons follow this occupation the year around, but there are enough of them who prefer the war path to plowing corn to keep your Uncle Samuel awake nights.

Compulsory bathing would do more to civilize the peon than a campaign for consolidated schools.

The only man in Mexico who was ever able to keep the peon in a subdued and docile state was the late Porfirio Diaz. Mr. Diaz was a stern man with a jaw shaped like a cement block, and he always got in the first kick, as Macaulay would say. Whenever Diaz heard that a bunch of long-haired peons had become fired with patriotism and American whisky and were about to uprising, he did not wait to confirm the report by letter. He started for the scene of the uprising before daylight, and when he had finished what he had to say the still-forms of his enemies would be seen draped over the neighbours' fences for a distance of six miles. Nobody ever tried to spring a revolution on P. Diaz without being taken home to his family in a gunny sack. O for a Diaz in Mexico at the present writing!

The Mexican peon, lacks a great many things in order to make him a desirable companion and household pet. Two of the things he lacks most are education and soap, and it is hard to say which would do the most good. opinion is divided. Americans who have lived in Mexico for any length of time say that compulsory bathing, introduced at the point of the bayonet, would do more to civilize the peon than a campaign for consolidated schools. Many peons are peaceful and willing to work occasionally, if left alone, but they are overawed by their warlike brethren, who would rather shed their alcoholic breath on the field of battle than plant one acre of Early Ohio potatoes.

The only difference between the peon and the Filipino is that the latter has quit erupting for the time being. Both would be better citizens if a few of their leaders could be led out shortly before sunrise and completely filled with a low grade of lead ore. We should sympathize with the peon in his ignorance and lack of underwear, but civilization would be advanced several feet if more of the colonels and generals in the peon army could be removed from active pursuits by the neck.

In making fruit salads the fruit can be kept from darkening by squeezing a little lemon juice over it.

BATHS AND BRUSHES.

Many women make their bath much too lengthy a function, with the result that not only the skin but the whole system becomes enervated. The hot bath should be taken quickly, followed by a sponge down or douche of cold or tepid water and a brisk rub down to promote the circulation. After long exercise, or when one is tired, and especially for sufferers from colds, rheumatism or neuralgia, a mustard bath is a wonderful tonic. Simply dissolve one or two teaspoonfuls in the hot water and you will feel better at once.

Two brushes for use in the bathroom are particularly good. One is the bathtub brush with bristles mounted in a convex form adapted to the contour of the tub. The handle is long enough to enable one to scour the tub without stooping over.

The other is cleverly contrived to clean the basin of the toilet closet more thoroughly than the usual mop or cloth. The brush is round and has very stiff bristles, but its special ingenuity consists in the spring which attaches it to the handle. This is of stout wire bending in any direction and its pliability permits the brush to reach every part of the basin, even some distance down the turn of the drain pipe. The hands need never come into contact with the water.

The Land of Plenty.

Westminster Gazette: A friend who has returned from Ireland exalts that country as the most desirable holiday resort in the United Kingdom. The keynote of the delight is liberty. As an Irishman he puts "the whisky first. It is unlimited, he says, and of pre-war quality. Then you can have as much petrol as you want. And there are no restrictions on the supply of sugar. He tells me, in fact, that Irish folk who have been so unwise as to spend their holidays in England have brought their bags of sugar with them. The fourth attraction is sport, unrestricted by the supply of cartridges; but I think that in his estimation this falls a long way short of unlimited whisky, petrol and sugar.

Bed Rock Prices.

(From the Philadelphia Bulletin.)
"Bernard M. Baruch will keep prices down," said a constituent. "Rich as he is, he never consents to be done without a protest."
"Once a hotel man tried to do Mr. Baruch on his bill. Mr. Baruch studied the bill over grimly. Then, putting it in his pocket, he said: "Got any two-cent stamps?"
"Certainly, Mr. Baruch. How many would you like?"
"Humph," said Mr. Baruch. "How much are they apiece?"
"The millionaire's bills after that were always reasonable."

RUSSIANS AND ROMANIAN FIGHTING WELL.

PETROGRAD, To-day. Late to-day the following statement was issued. On the front from our vanguard elements reconnoitering parties advancing in the direction of Riga continue to the line of the River, Neman. Zegenhop-Pauk-Zegevoit - Lupa Bayar. In the region of Jacobov there were fusillades in the first line. There has been intense artillery activity in the direction of Sweden where our batteries have bombarded certain points on the enemy's positions from a point on Vitchonof to south of Vidza; our fire caused several explosions. On the remainder the front nothing of importance occurred.

Roumanian.—In the region south Radatzour elements have taken possession of a height south of Sca. While repulsing the enemy's counter attacks two enemy companies were made prisoners and more than Austrians, 12 officers and six men guns captured in the region north of Oena. Roumanian troops after engagement took possession of height northeast of Slonik, but owing to bitter enemy counter attacks his curtain of fire they had to abandon it.

THE RUSSIAN SITUATION.

PETROGRAD, To-day. M. Avakentiev, Minister of the Interior, said to-day that as a result of the Korniloff revolt, all the Russian fronts for three days remained out the least defence and without command. The severest penalty added, should be inflicted upon the military. The Government would do nothing to mitigate his fate. Government's task now, M. Avakentiev said, would be to struggle against counter revolutionary attempts, to safeguard the national integrity and defend the country against the foreign enemy. M. Tseretelli, former Minister of the Interior, said that the Ministerial Coalition had given good results and that it ought to be maintained, but only on condition that allotments (?) tending to paralyze its functions should be excluded from it. He insisted on the necessity of immediately dissolving the fourth Duma.

ALLIES SUPPORT PROVISIONAL GOVERNMENT.

PETROGRAD, To-day. Diplomatic representatives of the Allied Powers have issued a statement denying all the allegations made by some newspapers that they were taking steps either to support General Korniloff's action or to hinder its suppression, which, the statement adds, is contrary to the role of the Allies with respect to Russian internal affairs. The representatives of the Entente Powers in Petrograd, says the statement, are in sympathy with the great democracy of their day.
