Aerial Service for Newfoundland.

WINTER MAILS MAY BE CARRIED THROUGH THE ETHER.

Mr. F. Sidney Cotton, late R.N.A.S., who has been in town for some weeks in connection with the sealing aeroplanes, leaves for Botwood, where he has his headquarters, to-morrow. Mr. Cotton has been trying to arrange contracts for mail carrying during the winter. There are three aeroplanes at Botwood, at present. The largest is a six seater Westland-Napier of 450 horse power. There is also a five seater Martinside with a 300 h.p. Rolls-Royce engine, and a De Havilland 9, which is a three seater and has a 240 h.p. Studeley-Puma engine. The Westland-Napier won the British Government trials at Martlesham (England) in October, 1920, against all comers. The Martinside plane is a convertible sea-plane and land machine. All three planes are fitted with skis for winter use. The Martinside is arriving before Xmas. Supplies of petrol will be available in the principal outposts as well as at all hangars. Major Cotton is leaving in a fortnight's time on a business trip to Canada and will fly as far as Halifax if the machine has not been damaged on the trip out. Arrangements have been made with the Post Office for a mail to be carried on this flight. Major Cotton has a good staff of mechanics at Botwood where the main base is situated, and excellent facilities for the upkeep of all machines and plant. Mr. Cotton has absolutely no connection with any outside firm, the Government or the sealing owners, but is here entirely in his own interests. He was prevented from locating the main patch of seals last spring by engine trouble and through starting operations too late to enable any time for alterations to be made to machines and engines to suit local conditions, but is sanguine concerning his chances next year. The matter of a mail contract is under the consideration of the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs. It is hoped that, enough mail contracts will be forthcoming to prove beyond doubt the superiority of the aeroplane for this kind of work. Mails can be carried at in some instances, a lower cost to the Government than is now the case. There is a very big future in this country and Labrador for aerial work, but owing to lack of capital investment, it is left to an American to lead the way, with his own capital. Up to the present time nothing has been done by owners of Government regarding next year's seal-fishing. It has been pointed out that delay will jeopardize success, as certain details of organization cannot be carried out until a contract is signed, but the authorities, evidently intend following the same "put-it-off-until-the-last-minute" methods which were the cause of last season's failure.

"No man over had stomach trouble any worse than I did and it had been hanging on for six years when I began to take Tanlac. I used to have a bitter taste in my mouth nearly all the time and a stuffy feeling after eating. Sometimes I had an awful nausea and the least little exertion would make me gasp for breath. Tanlac made a clean sweep of everything that was the matter with me and now I feel good to my finger tips. I can eat anything, my digestion is perfect and I am asleep almost by the time I hit the bed. This medicine certainly did a hundred per cent. job for me."

AT THE WASHINGTON CONFERENCE.

(Associated Press Mail Service)
Prince Iyasaka Tokugawa, head of the Japanese delegation to the Washington Conference on the Limitation of Armaments, is president of the House of Peers and one of the most powerful and popular statesmen in Nippon. If the imperial dynasty had not been restored to full authority with the resignation in 1867 of the shoguns, or heads of the feudal system, he would to-day be the shogun or "great lord" of Japan in place of the present Emperor. The Prince, who is 58 years old, has been noted not only for his efforts to advance the welfare of Japan but for his devotion to works of charity. He has been characterized as "a democratic aristocrat and a man of peace and common sense." The Prince speaks English fluently, having been educated in England, and has been a leader in the adoption of Western customs. He has never had any military training or connections. He has two favorite diversions, wrestling and singing old Japanese folk songs. This is his fourth visit to the United States, the last having been made in 1910 when he was on his way to Europe and when former President Taft entertained him at the White House. Prince Tokugawa has been mentioned as the next probable premier of Japan.

Vice-Admiral Tomosaburo Kato, Minister of the Navy, the second member of the delegation, was the right-hand man of Admirals Togo and Kato in the Russo-Japanese War. He is 62 years old, was educated at the Naval College and later became a professor there. For his services in the great war he was decorated with the Grand Cordon of the Rising Sun. He has been at the head of the Japanese navy since 1915 or during the Okuma ministry.

Baron Kijuro Shidehara, ambassador to the United States and formerly Vice Foreign Minister of Japan, the third representative of the Japanese Government, graduated from the law college of the Tokyo Imperial University in 1895 and has held numerous diplomatic posts. He was minister to the Netherlands at the outbreak of the war. Previously he had been counsellor to the Japanese embassy in Washington. He is 49 years old and was educated in agriculture and commerce before taking up the study of law. Baron Shidehara is a Knight of the Order of Sacred Treasure.

Viscount Yasuya Utsuya, Foreign Minister, former ambassador to the United States, Russia, Austria-Hungary and China, the fourth envoy, is the eldest son of the late General Uchida, a samurai of the former Kumamoto clan. His wife is a daughter of Shozaburo Doguro, a millionaire Nara-ken who was educated at Vassar College. The Viscount is 65 years old and was educated at the College of Law of the Tokyo Imperial University. He was decorated by the Emperor with the First Order of Merit for his diplomatic service abroad.
