the interference of the Committee is, that it seems to imply an assumption on their part of a right of controlling the members of the Church in the exer-cise of their elective franchise. This assumption I utterly repudiate—I deny the right of any Minister, I utterly repudiate—I deny the right of any Minister, or of any other person, to dictate to me as to how or for whom I should cast my vote; and I am sure that such an attempt to usurp the controlling of the political bias of the people, will only end in dissen-sion and strife. Another reason why, even if I admitted the principle of receiving support from the State, I should oppose the countenancing of the present Bill by our Ministers is, that while it ex-oludes those denominations with whom we have communion and consider evangelical, it courts al-liance with at least one Church which the members of the Methodist body have been always taught to was currently reported this forenoon :---
