BULLER AGREES WITH ROBERTS

That the Policy of British War Department Has Shown Much Blundering.

London, Aug. 12. - Lord Roberts' view that the army is now in a worse condition than it was before the war as been powerfully indorsed by Gen.

Writing to a correspondent Gen "Our foolish statesmen of late years have been so anxious to devise some new plan for an entirely new organization that they have overlooked the fact that in our army, militia, and volunteers we have an organization which has done good and effective work in the past, which has stood by the country for over one hundred years, and would, if properly looked fter and brought up to modern requirements, serve the country's need or many years to come.

"Instead of looking after and en ouraging and improving what they d, our statesmen have disorganized the army, discouraged the militia, and isheartened the volunteers. "As Lord Roberts truly told them, the other day, they have produced a state of affairs which is worse from a defense point of view than before the
