Catarrh-A New Treatment.

From the Weekly (Toronto) Mail, Aug. 24.
Perhaps the most extraordinary success that has Perhaps the most extraordinary success that has been achieved in modern medicine has been attained by the Dixon treatment for catarrh. Out of two thousand patients treated during the past six months fully ninety per cent have been curred of this stubborn malady. This is none the less starting with the claim is none the less starting with the claim now generally believed by the most scientific men that the disease is due to the presence of living parasites in the tissue, Mr. Dixon at once adapted his cure to their extermination—this accomplished, he claims the catarrh is practically cured and the permanency is unquestioned, as cures effected by him two years ago are cures still. No one else has ever attempted to cure catarrh in this manner, and no other treatment has ever cured catarrh. The application of the remedy is simple and can be done at home, and the present ever cured catarrh. The application of the remedy is simple and can be done at home, and the present ever cured catarrh. You are perhaps aware that the Irish government is preparing to send out a large number of emigrants from the distressed districts of Irelard. Major Gaskell, commissioned by the Dublin officials to collect information and make arrangements, is now in the states and I expect him here. As chairman of the combined city charities I am concerned with this matter in one of its aspects, as it may affect the number of persons needing relief in the city. You are concerned with it in another of its aspects, as it may affect the conduiton of the labor market. I have therefore thought it well to call your attention to the subject. Major Gaskell has been instructed to put himself in communication with me. I will let you know when I hear from him, and perhaps in the meantime you will give the question your consideration.

There should be established by the central government There should be established by the central government a labor bureau for the collection of sufficient information referring to labor and laborers and in case of distress as far as possible the government shou da sist in enabling where necessary the laborers to reach the fields of employment. Some effort should be made to encourage by contract, by custom or by law a more equitable distribution of the products of labor.

The best plan of working out some suitable system might be investigated by the labor bureau. The subject is involved in great difficulties but patient work will produce almost any desired result.

End of a Dissipated Career Westerman J Inman, 65 years of age, who has repeatedly figured in the police court as drunkard, vagrant and even thief, died in the cells at police headquarters at midnight yesterday. He had been locked up at 6 o'clock for drunkenness. At 11 o'clock Policeman McMurray, the station duty man, found Inman suffering from pains in the stomach. Ar hour afterwards he was found stone dead. Coroner Riddel held an inquest yesterday afternoon at the morgue, when a verdict of death from exposure and want of proper pourishment was posure and want of proper nourishment was returned. Inman was a well known charac-ter around Toronto, and in years gone by was well-to-do until whisky got the best of him. He was related to the well-known Inmans of the steamship line of that name, being a nephew of the elder Inman. He acted as their agent for a number of years in Hamilton and Toronto.
