

A Royal Number.

THE October "Canadian Magazine" will be a Royal number, to signalize the visit to Canada of their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York. The articles will be illustrated with a number of new photographs now published in Canada for the first time.

The Significance of the Royal Visit, by Arthur H. U. Colquhoun, will be a suggestive article which will be worth reading.

The Duke and Duchess of York at Home, by Claude Bryan (a Canadian living in London) will be exactly what its title indicates. It will describe the apartments of their Royal Highnesses in Ambassadors' Court, St. James' Palace, and give a history of the Palace and its occupants. There will be pictures of St. James' Palace, York Cottage, the Duke and Duchess, and their children.

Presentation at Court, by Joanna E. Wood, will be found interesting just at this time. It describes the routine of this function and the various features connected with the presentation of a debutante to Her Majesty—the official recognition that a young woman has begun her social career. This article will be illustrated.

Perils of the Red Box and A Maid of Many Moods, the two serials which have run through this volume of the Magazine will be concluded in October. In November there will commence a series of Secret Service Stories, being the adventures of a detective named Arthur Hallam, who served the Government of Britain for many years at Scotland Yard. He was sent abroad on many diplomatic visits and has extraordinary experiences. This will be the liveliest series of adventures ever recited in the pages of any Canadian periodical.

Sport will receive special attention during October and November. There will be an article on Wild Geese Shooting by W. P. Silver, a Halifax sportsman; an article on the Game Laws of Ontario and Quebec by A. C. Shaw; an article on Rowing by Captain R. K. Barker; an article on Cricket, and other special features.

Other Features will include some excellent short stories and several articles which will hold the attention of those who read for information as well as pleasure. The forthcoming numbers of the Magazine will be found to be the most valuable as well as the most interesting issues ever given to the public.

"Every cultured Canadian home should have The Canadian Magazine, not only because it contains good matter and excellent illustrations, but because it breathes the high and hopeful spirit of our new nation, and gives special attention to things Canadian."—Teachers' Monthly.
