We take the liberty of sending the NORTHWEST REVIEW to many of our friends to whom we hope it will be acceptable, and to all it will be delivered at the very reasonable cost of $2.50 per year. The reading matter of the NORTHWEST REVIEW is selected with care, and every paragraph will be found interesting. It will compare favorably with weekly papers of the Northwest and we believe it deserves a warm support, especially among Catholics. We trust our friends will help to increase the circulation of the NORTHWEST REVIEW by sending in their names with the subscription fee mentioned, to the office, corner of McDermott and Arthur streets, Winnipeg.

A small number of immigrants arrived by the Port Arthur train on Saturday night. A tew went to Brandon and the rest will distribute themselves over the territories.

Track-laying has commenced in earnest on the C. P. R. Southwestern extension, west of Manitou. A large gang of men are at present engaged, and their number will be still further increased in two or three days.

Mr. F. H. Brydges returned Monday last from a trip over the Manitoba and Northwestern Railway as far as the end of the track. The construction of this season's extension, being fifty one and a half miles west of Minnedosa, was completed on Thursday. This includes track-laying, and the running of regular trains will commence at once. At Newdale several buildings are going up on the town site at the station. At Shoal Lake, where the railway touches the north end, quite a number of structures are also in course of erection. It is be believed that Shoal Lake will become a most popular summer resort, being picturesquely situated in the midst of an large, and will be used for general meetings of the society. The other two rooms will be used for committee pur poses. The smaller rooms are fully supplied with tables well equipped with appliances for chess, draughts and other sources of amusement for members. There is a fine piano in one of the rooms. The establishment of a Scottish library is in contemplation. The rooms have been furnished through the contributions of the members.

A Neat Little Church.

From the Free Press.

The cosy little Church of the Immacuulate Conception at Point Douglas has been handsomely renovated. The chapel has been painted a light and dark drab by Mr. Alfred Morris, while the altar has been frescoed by the same gentleman. In addition to this the altar has been enlarged so that a good view of it can be had from every part of the church. The building which adjoined the church has been converted into a residence for the parish priest, Rev. Father Cherrier. It has been greatly enlarged, conveniently divided into rooms and painted and furnished in a neat and comfortable manner. The completion of this building left the apartments over the chapel where the priest formerly had his rooms—open for school purposes. This school is conducted by the Sisters of St. Mary's Academy and upon the same educational basis that predominate in that very excellent institution. The rooms have been suitably improved, are well-lighted and ventilated, and afford the little girls every comfort and convenience. The attendance at present numbers between sixty and seventy pupils, and the rev. sisters so devoted to the cause of presiminary education and Christianity, are indefatigable in their efforts to cultivate the young intellect. The congregation of the church of the Immaculate Conception are as generous in their offerings as they are devout in their religious duties. Their pastor fully recognizes this and ere the lapse of many years hopes to see a more commo- underneath the legend, "All that pleases dious and handsome edifice erected upon the grounds as a monument of pious devotion and Catholicity.
