

criticized by non-governmental, academic and other expert bodies on the ground that enforcement has not gone far enough. We would do well, Mr. Chairman, to remember that we should not be mesmerized by the concept of sovereignty.

To these remarks of a general nature, Mr. Chairman, I would reserve our Delegation's right to intervene in the details of the debate at a later stage.