

appearance.
ted to them,
of joy that

nce had pre-
all the per-
d, and unto afety. Ma-
occurrences
ace. I may mber of old
n those of
ty years, as
hodist Epis-
ch the mild
Yet it may
ng country-
have suffer-
unvarnished
age them to
ay also, ac-
to the gen-
m.
ERTON.

NOTE.—On pages 29 and 30 of the foregoing narrative, mention is made of the reception, by the suffering volunteers, of a seasonable supply of clothes that had been made up and sent to the army by the patriotic ladies of Kentucky. I have, since the commencement of this publication, met with an article that appeared in the Frankfort Commonwealth (when that paper was under the editorial direction of ORLANDO BROWN, Esq.) entitled "Kentucky Mothers," in which allusion is made to the same transaction. I have thought it not irrelevant to append it to this, as it shows, in a striking manner, the deep devotion to country felt by the ladies of Kentucky, and the extent of the sacrifices they were prepared to make. Although Mr. Brown did not give the name of this noble mother, I have his permission to state that the lady alluded to is the venerable MRS. ELIZABETH LOVE, who yet resides in Frankfort, beloved by all for her eminent worth, and characterized by high intellectual endowments associated with fervent piety, unaffected charity, and every trait that dignifies and adorns the female sex.