

couple of times at two-week intervals; the various dips on the market, such as Cooper's, Little's, etc., are reliable.

A CASE OF SCAB.

Mange in horses and dogs is not easy to control; in horses it affects the mane and tail; spreading to the jaws, body and thighs, there is great itchiness and a tendency to rub, pimples form and discharge a serum and bare spots appear; the skin gets a roughened sore appearance, it usually takes one to two months to develop, and is very contagious, the latter symptoms distinguishing it from eczema. In order to get at the parasites, the hair should be clipped and the clippings burned, the animal should be washed with soap and warm water to a quart of which should be added a tablespoonful of concentrated